ALLIES' WAR AIMS BACKED BY POPE, IT IS AFFIRMED

What Purports to be His Views Published by Spanish Newspaper.

GIVEN BY MGR. TEDESCHINI

WANTS 'PEACE OF JUSTICE'

Alsace-Lorraine and Italia Irredenta Restored, Free Poland, Turks Ousted from Palestine.

A cable message from Paris received by the official French Bureau of Information in this city and made public last night, indicates that Mgr. Frederico Tedeschini, who has been under Secretary of State of the Vatican, has succeeded Cardinal Gasparri as Papal Secretary of State.

Previous dispatches direct from Rome credited "many Italian newspapers and some authorities on Vatican affairs" as affirming that Cardinal Gasparri had resigned, partly because of ill-health and partly because of the Pope's desire to institute a new policy in relation to Germany. The semi-official Vatican organ flatly denied, however, that the Cardinal had retired. The message received by the Bureau of Information quotes Mgr. Tedeschini as declaring for "a peace of justice." It follows:

"In a conversation which Mgr. Frederico Tedeschini, new Secretary of State of the Vatican, had with the Rome correspondent of the A. B. C., a Spanish newspaper, he made the following interesting declarations:

"'Only a Christian peace is desirable because it will be a peace of justice. Some people have pretended that a Christian peace ought to be a white peace or a peace without result, that is, a peace bringing the world back to the status quo ante.

"'This is not exact. We believe, on the contrary, that there are rights which justice must respect. We cannot believe, for instance, that Catholic Poland will revert to the same state as it was before the war. As Christians we cannot approve that Palestine should remain under the Turkish yoke.

"'We believe also that every one would be satisfied to see Alsace-Lorraine returned to France. We believe finally that if the Italian provinces now under Austrian domination should be returned to Italy, no Christian would oppose it, just as no Christian would declare himself opposed to the unification of Rumania in the East.'"

For a long time it has been common gossip in ecclesiastical circles in Rome that Cardinal Gasparri was not conducting the Papal Foreign Office to suit the Roman Curia. On the other hand, his friends stated that he was conducting it with absolute ecclesiastical and diplomatic correctness, adding that the fact that Catholic nations were at war imposed upon the Vatican a neutrality which could not betray sympathy even for one side or the other.

This was, however, before the visit Cardinal Mercier made to Rome late in 1915 to reveal personally to Pope Benedict XV. the details of the German atrocities in Belgium. After trying in vain to prevent, short of using bodily restraint, the Cardinal's visit the German authorities sent his Eminence of Cologne, Cardinal Hartmann, to watch him, and, if possible, to prevent a private audience with the Holy Father. Rightly or wrongly Cardinal Gasparri has been accused of furthering the designs of the German Cardinal. In any case, Cardinal Mercier had his private audience with the Pope.

When the crisis was at its height the two Cardinals met at a reception, and Hartmann said: "Reassure yourself, your Eminence, we shall not speak of war."

To which Mercier replied: "And you, Eminence, be reassured, we shall not talk of peace."

As Foreign Secretary it has been Cardinal Gasparri's duty to transact all the foreign business of the Vatican, both secular and ecclesiastic; but after the visit of Cardinal Mercier the Pope himself has signed all letters pertaining to the atrocities and deportations in Belgium and France, whether these letters were addressed to ecclesiastics or heads of States. At the same time, it is also said, the Secretary has always insisted on the formality of conducting all negotiations personally with M. Vangenhouvel, the Belgian Minister at the Vatican, and in the absence of the Holy Father. It was Gasparri also, and not the Pope, who in April last announced that the German Kaiser, giving heed to representations from the Vatican, felt disposed to discontinue forcible deportations of Belgian workmen.

Gasparri's conduct, while technically correct, became, according to report, more and more a source of annoyance to the Roman curia, as they believed that in a matter of so great importance his Holiness should be reached and heard without any ministerial intermediary.

Rupprecht Enjoins Troops to Eat No More Than Necessary

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Reuter's correspondent at British Headquarters reports that an order issued to the Ypres group of the armies of Crown Prince Rupprecht has been found which reads as follows:

"The fact that economy in bread cereals has been taken into consideration makes it necessary to sanction an increased ration only where it is really needful. Officers are requested to explain again to their subordinates the serious nature of the economic situation in Germany and give instructions that the strictest economy must be exercised with regard to all supplies.

"Nothing must be consumed beyond that which is really necessary and not the smallest particle must be wasted."

Vote to Send Delegates to Stockholm, but Seamen's Union Threatens to Stop Them.

WOULD GO ONLY TO CONSULT

And Present the British Point of View as to War Issues and Peace Terms.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—By a vote of 1,046,000 to 550,000 the conference of the British Labor Party held at Westminster today voted to send delegates to the Stockholm Consultative Conference. Disorder marked the session and ended only when the result of the card vote was given out. The resolution was carried after an amendment by the dock workers, opposing it, had been defeated by a vote of 391,000 to 1,651,000.

When the final vote on the resolution was announced, a delegate shouted that no matter what the convention did, the Firemen's and Seamen's Union would see to it that the delegates would never reach Stockholm. This possibility was openly discussed today, members of the Seamen's Union asserting that the question of British participation was under their control, and they might prevent the delegates from sailing by refusing to man ships, as they did when J. Ramsay MacDonald's party attempted some time ago to leave the country to visit Russia and Stockholm.

The decision of the laborites to send representatives to Stockholm is a reversal of the policy to which the party committed itself at a recent convention. The change was due to an alteration of the plans of the Socialists by which the conference will be merely a consultative gathering for the presentation of the views of the different sections, instead of one for framing peace terms or a platform of the international Socialists on war questions.

Russian influence has been an important factor in the British decision. Arthur Henderson, Minister without portfolio, returned from Petrograd convinced that British laborites should participate in the convention at Stockholm, and British Socialist correspondents at Petrograd have been sending cablegrams stating that it would be a mistake for the Russians to be left to confer with Germans and neutrals while the voice of the British workmen was not heard.

To Present British Viewpoint.

The British majority delegates will present the British point of view on war, made public in a memorandum, issued today by a special sub-committee of the Labor Party Executive Committee, and will be submitted to the special allied labor conference Aug. 21, prior to its proposed submission successively to the Allied and International Socialist Conferences.

Today's session of the conference aroused much public interest. Large crowds assembled in the neighborhood of the hall, watching the arrival of the delegates, who were admitted slowly, owing to the double scrutiny of their credentials.

William Purdy, Chairman of the Labor Party, presided and opened the conference by saying:

"The labor movement has given its best to insure to the Entente Allies a decisive victory over militarism, which has shown itself brutal in application and determined to extinguish all ideals of democracy and liberty.

"Labor's inflexible resolution is to see justice done and reparation made and that still is the determination of the great masses of the industrial classes of the country and the colonies.

"No peace will be satisfactory unless it guarantees complete freedom from the aggression of militarism.

"Our Russian comrades need all the sympathy the Labor Party here can give them, and there is no question of a separate peace. We must stand shoulder to shoulder until a righteous peace is obtained. We are sure our Russian comrades are not going to exchange a hard-won freedom for a sham one under the heel of Prussian militarism.

"The invitation to attend the Stockholm conference deserves careful consideration, as the decision called for is probably the most important in the history of the labor movement."

Henderson Explains His Position.

Arthur Henderson, Labor member of the British War Council, who was cheered when he rose to speak before the vote was taken, said:

"I address the conference with a deep sense of my own responsibility. It must be borne in mind that the situation in Russia is constantly changing. Otherwise injustice will be done to the merits of the case. Before I went to Russia I opposed the holding of an ordinary conference. On my arrival in Petrograd, however, I met the executives of the Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Del-

ASKS SIX BILLIONS IN NEW ISSUES OF WAR BONDS

McAdoo Tells Congress Leaders Bill Ought to be Passed Soon.

INTEREST TO BE 4 OR 4½%

QUESTION BEFORE CABINET

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Legislation at this session of Congress providing for another great bond issue became a possibility today when Secretary McAdoo went to the Capitol to discuss with leaders in Congress the advisability of passing an additional Bond bill. Although sentiment in Congress is against further bond legislation before the regular session, it was understood that Secretary McAdoo told leaders he considered a bond issue necessary, and suggested a $6,000,000,000 bill.

The bond issue question was discussed this afternoon at a Cabinet meeting that lasted three hours. The Russian situation and other important topics were considered also.

Secretary McAdoo is reported to have advised legislators that it probably would be necessary to increase the interest rate on the new bonds. A rate of 4 or 4½ per cent. was discussed about the Capitol today following his departure.

The Secretary went to the Capitol to see Representative Kitchin, Chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means. Mr. Kitchin was in North Carolina and Mr. McAdoo will hold a conference with him on his return here next week.

The absence of Mr. Kitchin prevented a formal discussion of the bond issue. The subject was mentioned informally and briefly to other members of the committee and House members by the Secretary.

Should the Administration decide to issue new bonds bearing an interest rate of 4 or 4½ per cent., the rate on the bonds already authorized and sold would be increased automatically. The $5,000,000,000 Bond bill passed several months ago provided that in the event of a subsequent issue of bonds at a higher rate of interest the old bonds should be converted into obligations paying the new rate.

During his "Liberty Loan tour" Secretary McAdoo told his audiences that it probably would be necessary to issue a total of $10,000,000,000 in bonds during the first year of the war.

The Treasury Department has submitted supplemental estimates for war expense calling for nearly $8,000,000,000. The War Revenue bill, now pending in the Senate, will produce only two billions, and six billions or more must eventually be raised by the issue of bonds unless other taxation schemes are worked out.

Members of the Senate Finance Committee recently indicated a desire to postpone consideration of revenue legislation, except the War Revenue bill, until December. It was understood at the Capitol today, however, that Secretary McAdoo would like to have Congress enact bond legislation before it adjourns, and there is likely to be a controversy over the different plans when the leaders of both houses are consulted.

TAFT MUCH BETTER; ASKS FOR SOME FOOD

Ex-President Sure He Will Recover Soon and Refuses to Bother His Family.

CLAY CENTER, Kan., Aug. 10.—Ex-President Taft is much better tonight. "He improved wonderfully today," according to a statement given out tonight by Dr. B. F. Morgan, the attending physician.

Mr. Taft asked for food today, the first time since Monday, when he was stricken with an intestinal disorder. He ate a soft-boiled egg and some toast. Not only is his physical condition improved, but his mental attitude has brightened. He was cheerful today and was more talkative. The principal news events were read to him and he commented briefly.

The former President was asked if there was any word he wanted to send to his relatives.

"No," he replied. "I will be out of here soon, and I don't want to bother them."

"That has been his attitude throughout," Dr. Morgan said. "He will do anything to assist me in administering his needs. And, above all, he always is as cheerful as possible under the circumstances."

Dr. Morgan said it was impossible to say when Mr. Taft would be able to resume his speaking tour. He said, however, that it probably would take some time for Mr. Taft to regain his strength after he leaves his bed.

Mrs. Taft, who is in Canada, is being kept informed of her husband's condition.

Dr. Morgan stated late tonight that indications point to a speedy recovery. It is planned to give Mr. Taft more nourishment tomorrow morning.

Clay Center, Kan., Aug. 10.
Thanks for your kind telegram. Am better today, and apparently improving favorably. WM. H. TAFT.

Still Talk of Sending American Troops to Russia

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The United States Government has not decided against sending a small contingent of American troops to Russia for the moral effect of such an expedition, it was declared today on the highest authority, but there is no prospect that the matter will be settled for some time. The proposal, it was learned, is still under consideration, and in official circles there was a tendency to believe that such an expedition would be highly advantageous both to Russia and to America, and incidentally to the benefit of the Allies.

It was stated today that the physical problems present the most difficult phase of the matter, the question of transport being critical in Russia. The value of the presence of American troops would be almost wholly moral, being proof to the great masses of the Russian people of the brotherhood in arms of Russia and the United States.

WESTHOEK RIDGE IS WON BY BRITISH

HEAVY FIGHTING FOLLOWS

LONDON, Aug. 10.—By a sharp stroke early this morning east of Ypres, General Haig penetrated the German lines to a depth of several hundred yards, completing the capture of the village of Westhoek, and carrying the remaining positions held by the Germans on the Westhoek ridge. The attack was made on a front of nearly two miles south of the Ypres-Roulers Railway.

All the German forward positions east of the town of Hooge on the battle front between Frezenburg and the Ypres-Menin road were won, according to The Associated Press correspondent at the British front, who adds:

"This section of the front was the scene of some of the hardest fighting on the first day of the battle of Flanders. South of Westhoek the terrain is marshy in places and in the wooded section the Germans had strengthened their positions by constructing deep dugouts. These obstacles, however, did not deter the onward rush of the British troops. They forged forward in the wake of a protecting barrage from their artillery and achieved most of the objectives in a remarkably short space of time.

"The forcing of the Germans from the Westhoek Ridge adds a strong link to the new line of British defenses. Possession of this ridge has been bitterly contested for, because it dominates the surrounding country and provides an enviable position for the troops occupying it.

"In the general attack July 31 the British occupied the major portion of the Westhoek Ridge and a large part of the village of Westhoek, and they maintained their position in the face of fierce artillery fire and several heavy counterattacks by the enemy. Until today the British have rested on the laurels won in that first attack.

"During the last few days comparatively fair weather has done wonders in drying the ground and the British appear to have struck at the earliest possible moment to strengthen their positions here."

In addition to this success French forces on the left flank of the British lines made further progress to the east and north of Bixchoote last night. The Associated Press correspondent says of this:

"Near the junction of the French and British Armies the French pushed their lines across the Steenbeck River and a little north of this point occupied on the west bank of the stream several farms that the Germans had been forced to evacuate under pressure of artillery fire and the gradual tightening of the French lines. Among the booty captured by the French were five guns which the enemy had been unable to remove in their hurried withdrawal.

Fighting Still Going On.

Our attack this morning east of Ypres was delivered on a front of nearly two miles south of the Ypres-Roulers Railway.

On the right wing of the attack heavy fighting occurred for the high ground astride of the Ypres-Menin road. Some progress was made by our troops in this area, and the fighting continues.

In the centre and on the left our attack, after overcoming the enemy's resistance, resulted in our gaining the whole of our objectives.

In addition to Westhoek and Westhoek Ridge, which we now completely hold, our troops established themselves in Glencorse Wood. In the fierce fighting that occurred heavy casualties were inflicted on the enemy. We took 240 prisoners.

In addition to the foregoing number of prisoners, we captured in successful raids last night east of Monchy-le-Preux, 88 of the enemy.

The enemy raided one of our posts southeast of Guenappe and two of our men are missing. Another hostile raiding party was repulsed northeast of Gouzeaucourt.

There was great activity in the air yesterday, but strong westerly winds and thick clouds made it difficult for our airplanes to engage the enemy's machines. We successfully carried out bombing and artillery observation work during the day.

In the air fighting five German machines were brought down and five others driven down out of control. In addition two German observation balloons were brought down in flames and four others were driven down badly damaged.

The day bulletin says:

"In the course of a successful local attack, delivered early this morning east of Ypres, our troops completed the capture of the village of Westhoek and secured the remaining positions held by the enemy on the high ground known as Westhoek ridge.

On the left flank of the battlefront

READY TO STOP EXTORTION

FLOUR AND WHEAT FIRST

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Herbert C. Hoover was named formally as Food Administrator today by President Wilson, under authority invested in him by Congress, and immediately served notice on speculators and profiteers that the time of reckoning had come for those who would not co-operate in the efforts of the Government to obtain lower prices for the consumer and help supply the allies of America in the war against Germany.

With the full approval of the President, obtained after a long conference at the White House tonight, Mr. Hoover announced that the food administration would not hesitate to apply to the full the drastic and coercive powers that Congress had granted. It was at the same time a warning to those who had engaged in gambling with the food supply and in extortion that the United States Government, through its food administration, was the only agency which could hope successfully to corner the food market.

That action, through power of purchase or otherwise, it was broadly intimated, would be followed out if the best interests of the people of the country and the Allies demanded it. Among the first steps to be taken, Mr. Hoover announced, would be the control of wheat and flour.

The rapidity with which the President and Mr. Hoover acted today was accepted as proof that there would be no hesitancy upon the part of the Government to use in full the great powers conferred by the food control law.

The bill was signed by Speaker Clark in the House at 12:03 o'clock and by Senator Saulsbury, Vice President pro tem. of the Senate, at 12:18 o'clock. Then it was rushed to the President, who added his approval early in the afternoon and announced the appointment of Mr. Hoover.

Hoover Sees the President.

As soon as he received word of his selection Mr. Hoover asked for an appointment with the President, and they went into conference at 5 o'clock this afternoon. When he left the President Mr. Hoover began work at once on his statement of principles. While he used strong words, he expressed the hope that all would co-operate with him.

By a queer coincidenee, today was Mr. Hoover's forty-third birthday. The President sent him as a gift the pen with which he signed the Food Control bill.

In his statement Mr. Hoover outlined the needs of the Allies and the great part which he believed the consumers, as well as the producers, could play in alleviating suffering and distress. With proper co-operation and the exercise of the unusual powers granted by the Food bill, he felt sure the situation could be met. The powers, he said, would be used to protect honest and patriotic men against those who saw fit to gamble on the sufferings of others.

Food Administrator's Appeal.

Mr. Hoover's statement follows:

The hopes of the food administration are threefold. First, to so guide the trade in the fundamental food commodities as to eliminate vicious speculation, extortion and wasteful practices and to stabilize prices in the essential staples. Second, to guard our exports so that against the world's shortage we retain sufficient supplies for our own people, and to co-operate with the Allies to prevent inflation of prices, and third, that we stimulate in every manner within our power the saving of our food in order that we may increase exports to our Allies to a point which will enable them to properly provision their armies and to feed their peoples during the coming Winter.

The food administration is called into being to stabilize and not to disturb conditions and to defend honest enterprise against illegitimate competition. It has been devised to correct the abnormalities and abuses that have crept into trade by reason of the world disturbance and to restore business as far as may be to a reasonable basis.

The business men of this country, I am convinced, as a result of many hundreds of conferences with representatives of the great forces of food supply, realize their own patriotic obligation and the solemnity of the situation, and will fairly and generously co-operate in meeting this national emergency. I do not believe that drastic force need be applied to maintain economic distribution and sane use of supplies by the great majority of American people, and I have learned a deep and abiding faith in the intelligence of the average American business man, whose aid we anticipate and depend on to remedy the evils developed by the war, which he admits and deplores as deeply as ourselves. But if there be those who expect to exploit this hour of sacrifice, if there are men or organizations scheming to increase the trials of this country, we shall not hesitate to apply to the full the drastic, coercive powers that Congress has conferred upon us in this instrument.

Wheat and Flour Control First.

In enforcing the measures of the act it is not our intention to proceed with a host of punitive measures, but

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Under orders from Major Gen. J. Franklin Bell, commanding the Department of the East, with headquarters at Governors Island, the 2,000 army officers and embryo officers at the officers' training camp at Fort Myer are on the watch for a German spy who during the last week is alleged to have visited Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming. Colonel Charles W. Fenton, the camp commandant, furnished a description of the spy, as received from Adjt. Gen. W. A. Simpson of the Eastern Department, as follows:

Just informed that man identified as Karl Otto von Helferish, officer German Army and member of their Intelligence Office, was at Fort D. A. Russell, Wyoming, on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and Sunday morning last week, apparently observing movement of troops. His identify was not learned until disappearance.

TO BE NO STRIKE ON GOVERNMENT WORK

NEW FEDERAL WAGE BOARD

Will Fix Compensation for Labor on All Jobs in Which War Preparations Figure.

Following a conference at the Hotel Vanderbilt between representatives of the Government, labor leaders, and contractors, it was declared at noon yesterday that the threatened strike of carpenters, which would have tied up at least 48,000 men now employed on Government war contracts all over the United States, had been called off. Most of the 2,000 men who had already been called out went back yesterday afternoon, while several hundred others, employed by the Steers Company on the Pelham Bay Barracks for the Naval Reserve, will resume work on Monday.

The Brotherhood of Carpenters, represented by T. M. Guerin, Executive Board member for this district, had demanded that the Steers Company of 17 Battery Place, which is acting as agent for the Government in constructing the Naval Militia barracks, cease to employ ironworkers to do carpenters' work. According to Mr. Guerin, the ironworkers were not members of the American Federation of Labor and also, in a good many instances, they were not skilled carpenters and their carpenter work was dangerous.

Henry Steers, President of the Steers Company, held out at the conference on Thursday against making any change in the conditions of his working force. The labor leaders then offered to admit the nonunion men in the union and waive initiation fee. This also at first was rejected. But later, Admiral F. R. Harris of the United States Navy, Chief of the Department of Yards and Docks, and John Moffatt, a representative of the Department of Labor, interceded, pointing out that the Government would suffer in its prosecution of the war unless an agreement was reached.

By the terms of the agreement, henceforth all carpenter work done on Government contracts in the hands of the Steers Company will be done by members of the brotherhood. The brotherhood guarantees to supply the contractors with all the men needed from their headquarters at 1,431 Broadway.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—An interdepartmental committee on the adjustment of wage scales of employes in Government plants has been created, it was announced by the Navy Department today, under the Presidency of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin D. Roosevelt. The other members are Walter Lippmann, Assistant to the Secretary of War, and William Blackmon, Conciliator of the Department of Labor.

It was originally planned that a special board, representing the Navy Department alone, should prepare wage scales for the term of a year, but the project was enlarged to take in work under the War Department as well. The new committee begins its work this month, and in September will institute the new wage schedules. It will receive reports on Aug. 24, on which it will base its findings. There will be no oral agreements and no special hearings of any kind.

The War Department also has started a separate investigation of wage conditions, so that both the War and Navy Departments are well prepared with information which has been collected and collated during the last few months.

The committee, in determining the wages for the next twelve months, will take as a basis the average wage paid in any community as that to be paid by the Government. In some instances the

ARMY INSURANCE BEFORE CONGRESS

ENFORCED THRIFT ALSO

Government Allowances Monthly to Families—Cost for Two Years Placed at $556,650,000.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The Administration's program for insuring soldiers, sailors, and marines was placed before Congress today in identical bills introduced by Senator Simmons and Representative Alexander. Committee hearings will be held soon, and the measure probably will be taken up in the Senate and House as soon as the War Tax bill has been disposed of.

In its general features the insurance program varies little from previously announced outlines, the chief innovation being the proposal to compel men and officers to allot a minimum of $15 a month out of their pay to dependent wives and children. The bill proposes to vest in the War and Navy Departments authority to compel such payments.

To instill thrift, to enable a man to build up a fund out of which he can pay the insurance premiums, "and, above all, better to preserve equality and democracy among the members of our own forces and between them and the Allies," provision is made enabling the War and Navy Departments, by regulation, to compel men who do not allot one-half of their pay to deposit so much of the half pay as is not allotted, these deposits to bear interest at 4 per cent. per annum, compounded semi-annually.

Allowances to Families.

Provision is made for the payment of Government allowances to families of men in the nation's armed forces. The proposed allowances vary between $5 and $50 monthly, according to the circumstances of the dependents, and would be in addition to the sum allotted under the compulsory allotment feature of the bill.

Indemnities for partial and total disability would vary from a minimum of $40 a month for privates up to $200 for higher officers. The education of injured men in vocations by which they could earn a livelihood also is provided for.

Under the terms of the bill soldiers, sailors, and marines would be enabled to obtain insurance on their lives during the war in sums from $1,000 to $10,000, the Government taking the risk and the men paying the premiums. The rate would be approximately $8 per $1,000 of insurance and the premiums would be payable by installments out of pay.

The cost of carrying out the program is estimated by Secretary McAdoo at approximately $176,000,000 for the first year of the war and $380,000,000 for the second. The bill provides no method of obtaining this sum, and a bond issue to cover it may be determined upon later.

The cost as estimated is divided as follows:

	First Year.	Second Year.
Family allowances	$141,000,000	$190,000,000
Death indemnities	3,700,000	22,000,000
Compensation for total disability	5,250,000	35,000,000
Compensation for partial disability	3,200,000	21,000,000
Insurance against death and disability	23,000,000	112,500,000
Totals	$176,150,000	$380,500,000

The total for the two years, $556,650,000, Mr. McAdoo estimates at less than 6 per cent. of the cost to the country of conducting the war.

In its general features the bill was approved by the advisory committee of insurance representatives summoned by Secretary McAdoo to Washington July 2.

"They opposed, however," Mr. McAdoo advised the President in a letter made public with the introduction of the bills, "the grant of any Government insurance over and above the compensation, on the ground that the other provisions were liberal enough, and might be made more liberal in ways suggested by them. They favored, over and above compensation, the payment by the Government of $1,000 in each case of death during service, or within five years after discharge of service, in lieu of insurance."

Children up to 18 years of age—"or if incapable of pursuing a substantially gainful occupation because of mental or physical infirmities, then without age limit"—and wives of men and officers, would receive family allowances within the limits designated during the term

New Board in Its Place Will Be Named by Governor This Morning.

TO CANCEL EXEMPTIONS

243 Out of More Than 650 Men Examined in District 99 Had Been Excused.

By direction of President Wilson, Governor Whitman last night ordered the immediate removal of the members of Local Exemption Board 99, having jurisdiction in one of the most densely populated sections of the east side. For several days complaints have reached the State and Federal authorities concerning this board's conduct, and the Governor's order, transmitted by telegraph to Deputy Attorney General Roscoe Conkling, who has charge of the draft examination in this city, stated that the action was taken "because of the irregularities reported to have occurred" in this district. Governor Whitman's order, as telegraphed to Mr. Conkling by Adjt. Gen. Louis W. Stotesbury, reads:

Because of the irregularities reported to have occurred in local Exemption Board Division 99, located at Lewis and Rivington Streets, Borough of Manhattan, and after an investigation for the last few days on the part of the Department of Justice, Governor Whitman at 5:20 this afternoon transmitted the following order to the Adjutant:

By direction of the President, Louis L. Cherry, Dr. Henry M. Groehl, and Dr. S. J. Bernfeld are summarily removed from local Exemption Board Division 99, City of New York, and all cases on which they have acted will be reopened by the new board which will be appointed at once. Governor Whitman urges that the charges now made be prosecuted to the fullest extent.

The members of the board were: Dr. Louis I. Cherry, druggist of 464 Grand Street; Dr. Henry Michael Groehl of 275 Rivington Street, and Dr. Samuel J. Bernfeld, who is Dr. Groehl's next door neighbor at 273 Rivington Street. The board had examined more than 650 men of draft age and granted exemption to 243, while claims filed by more than 200 other men had not been passed on when the board was suddenly dismissed.

When Deputy Attorney General Conkling arrived at the board's headquarters, in Public School 88, at Rivington and Lewis Streets, prepared to serve the removal papers on the three doctors, he found the headquarters locked. A young girl seated on the steps of the school building told him that the board had adjourned about ten minutes before he arrived.

Mr. Conkling then drove to the homes of Drs. Cherry, Groehl, and Bernfeld, and in each instance he was informed by a member of the household that the doctor had left home and no one knew when he would be back.

"All three of them," said a woman who answered the bell at Dr. Bernfeld's home, "left here some time ago. They went in a big automobile, and said they were going for a ride."

"Do you know where they went?" Mr. Conkling asked.

"No, Sir; they may have gone to the island," she replied.

Still Out in Automobile.

At the home of Dr. Cherry, two young men were playing cards when Mr. Conkling entered. They did not even look up.

"Can you tell me where Dr. Cherry is?" asked Mr. Conkling.

"No, ask somebody else," one young man curtly answered. Dr. Cherry is the proprietor of a drug store in the building, where he lives on the third floor. The second floor is the headquarters of the Republican organization of the Fourth Assembly District. In the drug store the clerk pleaded ignorance as to his employer's whereabouts and declared he had not seen him since early in the afternoon.

A second time Mr. Conkling visited the homes of Dr. Groehl and Dr. Bernfeld, and again was told that the doctors were still out in that automobile.

Mr. Conkling then returned to Public School 88 and sent a policeman for the janitor. When the latter arrived Mr. Conkling took charge of all the papers in the room and ordered the police to keep the room and records under guard until a new board was appointed.

Mr. Conkling said that the charges which had been made against the board were of the most serious nature. For several days, he added, these charges have been coming in, some directed to him at his headquarters in the State Arsenal, others to the Adjutant General in Albany, and still others to Provost Marshal General Crowder in Washington. The charges refer to exemptions granted by the board, and every man who has been exempted or who has filed an exemption claim will now have to submit to a re-examination by the new board which Governor Whitman will name this morning.

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Conkling, "practically all the work done in this district, one of the biggest in the city, will have to be done over. A new call will be immediately issued and every man named in the first call, and I fear this will also include the patriotic fellows who have waived exemption, will have to face the new doctors. It goes without saying that every man who received exemption at the hands of the dismissed board will have to submit to a very rigid cross-examination.

"I had hoped that New York would be spared such a spectacle as this, but the evidence in this case is such that no other action could have been taken by President Wilson and Governor Whitman. I want to say that we have no evidence against Dr. Groehl, but he was a member of the board and for that reason had to suffer along with the others."

Mr. Conkling conferred with Assistant United States District Attorney John C. Knox and other Federal officials before going to the east side to serve the removal papers on the members of the board.

"Do the charges against the members of this board, with the exception of Dr. Groehl, allege that exemptions were being bought by men of draft age?" Mr. Conkling was asked.

"Yes, that is the plain inference to be drawn," Mr. Conkling replied, "and the charges investigated by the Department of Justice agents were of that nature."

Aided by Young Man.

A young man whose name was not disclosed aided the Government in its investigation, and is said to have stated that he was prepared to pay $300 for his exemption. This young man, it was said, conferred with a certain man "in the cellar of his home" as late as two days ago.

At midnight Mr. Conkling and two policemen detailed by Police Headquarters were still at the headquarters of the board, and Mr. Conkling said he would personally go over all the records of the board. He added that he could not discuss the records which he had gone over.

In this city, sixty-three local exemption boards reported up to midnight last night that 6,015 men were examined yesterday, of whom 2,081 were enrolled. This makes 18,577 men who have been added to the national army from this city to date.

United States Marshal McCarthy stated yesterday that he had received from various local boards lists of men who had failed to report for examination. These lists had been turned over ot Captain William M. Offley of the Department of Justice, who is now engaged in tracing the men named. The lists received so far include some 300 names.

"I think many of these men have not intended to evade service," said Marshal McCarthy. "They are part of the floating population and leave no forwarding addresses for mail. I think it would help a great deal if local boards would turn over lists of the absentees to the newspapers for publication."

Andrew Marano, 23 years old, of 420 Washington Street, Manhattan, was one of the few willing ones who appeared at Board 89, Clark and Dominick Streets, yesterday. He is an Italian with a wife and child to support, but he was pleased when the doctors told him he would make a fine soldier.

"All right, I go," he said. "Thirty dollars a month is better for the wife and baby than what I get working as longshoreman. Three of my brothers and a cousin were killed in this war. I want to get revenge."

James O'Kane of 152 East 124th Street is in a hurry to get to the front. He was examined and passed by Board 166, at Second Avenue and 125th Street, last week. Yesterday he came back to the board and said:

"Let me have a gun. I want to go at once."

Members of the board were sorry. But they had no guns, and O'Kane will have to wait until he gets into camp to begin the war.

A statement commending the manner in which local board 135, located at Barnard College, conducted its draft work was issued from the offices of the Provost Marshal General in this city. This board completed its work last night, having filled its quota of 288 men with a good margin to spare. There were 198 men accepted by physicians who made no exemption claims. Exemption claims of twenty-five other fit men were disallowed.

The board summoned 900 men, and of this number 141 failed to appear or were transferred to other boards for examination, 92 claimed exemption as aliens, and 22 claimed exemption because they were already in the military service. Temporary disability of 12 men postponed their examination. Exemption claims were made by 294 other men accepted by the doctors.

RUSSELL HITS PACIFISTS.

Former Socialist Calls Them Traitors and Says Party Is Ruined.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Aroused by the pacifist meeting yesterday in the Capitol, Charles Edward Russell, former Socialist and member of the commission to Russia, today denounced all persons proposing peace at this time or failing in unswerving support of the Administration. Mr. Russell was particularly severe in his criticism of Socialists and members of Congress aiding the peace propaganda. Incidentally, he declared, as a result of peace activities in the United States, Socialists had absolutely ruined their party. Mr. Russell said the party now consisted of little more than an alien pro-German element. The men who were in it for such uplift as they could bring to the working people, he said, must seek elsewhere for political affiliation.

"One peace resolution offered in the United States Congress today is a greater asset to the Kaiser than a thousand men on the firing line," Mr. Russell said. "Any Socialist that does not understand that this is the last final decisive struggle between autocracy and democracy is too blind or too dull to understand anything about socialism.

"Loyalty to the United States Government in this crisis is loyalty to every ideal of improvement to which we have subscribed and a lack of support is treason to every article of every creed of reform. If the men who are talking this most peculiar peace stuff are ignorant of the effect of their work, they are too hopelessly ignorant to be allowed to take any part in public life, and should be retired from it instantly. If they are not ignorant of the effect of their work, they are conscious traitors and should have at once the prompt attention of the nearest United States attorney."

ALLEGED SLACKER SEIZED.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Aug. 10.—Ernest Person, a servant employed at the home of Frank A. Vanderlip in Scarborough, was taken from a steamer in New York harbor by United States authorities and returned to Ossining today accused of trying to evade military duty.

His name was in the second draft call to registrants to appear before the local exemption board. One of the members, Daniel P. Hayes, was notified that Person intended to flee to Sweden. By communicating with the office of the Collector of the Port Person was located and forced to appear before the exemption board and be physically examined by Dr. C. E. Sweet. When he registered Person said he had taken out his first papers, but when found on the steamer he declared that he was a subject of Sweden.

BOARD OF APPEALS STARTS ITS WORK

COMMITTEES ARE NAMED

The District Board for the City of New York, which is to sit as a Court of Appeals in exemption cases decided by local boards, met yesterday morning in the Federal Building and after adopting the recommendations of the committees on rules, location of headquarters, and hiring of employes, appointed five committees to take up immediately the appeals that have already come before the board.

The five committees met in the afternoon in the Federal Building to arrange for a distribution of the cases already on hand, so that complete reports may be ready for the full board at its next regular meeting at 10:30 Monday morning.

Hundreds of persons thronged the board's meeting room and the corridors of the Federal Building, while the meeting was going on and immediately after the vote of adjournment was taken there was a rush of men and women to the clerk's desk to present appeals and to make personal explanations of their reasons for claiming examination on behalf of themselves or drafted relatives.

They were informed by W. B. Davenport, the clerk of the board, that no oral arguments or applications could be heard under the rules. Each appeal is to be decided on affidavits, or other papers, which must be drawn up in accordance with the regulations prescribed by the President under the terms of the selective draft law. Mr. Davenport assured all that their cases would receive prompt and proper consideration. Each appeal must be decided within five days of the filing of the papers in the case with the clerk of the board.

The five committees which are to consider appeals in the intervals between the meetings of the full board which are fixed for Monday, Wednesday, and Friday of each week until all appeals have been disposed of are designated by letters, as follows:

Committee B—Judge E. H. Cullen, George B. Agnew, Dr. Herman T. Radin, W. W. Mills.

Committee E—Meier Steinbrink, James A. Delahanty, George T. McGuire, I. T. Flatto, Dr. J. Evan Shuttleworth.

After announcing these committees Chairman Charles E. Hughes said:

"The efforts of the board and the various committees will be directed to disposing of each case rapidly and efficiently and at the same time with absolute fidelity. We shall be utterly swamped with work unless we deal with all matters that come before us in an orderly and efficient manner."

Five members of the board have not yet qualified. These are Edwin L. Garvin, Charles E. Simms, John Dalton, and Samuel H. Evins, who hold official positions under the City charter, a clause of which debars them from accepting any position under the Federal Government, and Nathan Straus, who is ill and unable to attend to board duties at present, and who has announced his intention of resigning in order that some one else may be appointed in his place. Adj. Gen. Stotesbury and Provost Marshal General Crowder will be notified that these five men have not qualified and will be asked to take the necessary steps to have their places filled immediately in order that the work of the board may not be delayed.

Former Supreme Court Justice George L. Ingraham, Chairman of the Committee on Rules, reported that after due consideration the suggestion that the work of the board be done by sitting committees sitting in each of the five boroughs was abandoned as impracticable.

The committee recommended that all work be done at central headquarters. It also recommended that no oral applications or arguments be received, that in order to facilitate the work of the board all applications be presented with proper supporting affidavits.

"We will probably have to consider from 20,000 to 25,000 appeals presented here," said Mr. Ingraham, "and each case must be decided within five days of the filing of the papers in the case with the clerk of the board. If we are to scatter this work among committees we would be going on for a year or more.

"In view of this we have decided to * * * that all the work must be done here."

The committee recommended the appointment of a Vice Chairman and Assistant Secretary and also suggested that regular meetings of the full board be held on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week.

It also recommended the appointment of five committees of three men each to examine and arrange papers in each case for expeditious consideration and decision by the full board. It was recommended that these committees should meet daily in the interim between meetings of the full board. The Chairman was given authority to increase the number of men on these committees if this should be deemed necessary.

It was decided that all papers must be filed with the Secretary, either personally or by mail. The five days in which each appeal must be decided will begin with the filing of the papers with the Secretary. The report was adopted unanimously.

George B. Agnew presented the report of the committee on location of headquarters. He announced that the committee had decided that the Federal Building was the most convenient and in every way the most suitable place available for the purposes of the board.

The committee had therefore made arrangements with the custodian of the building, through Marshal McCarthy, to use Room 828 as a meeting room, Room 828 as a waiting room, and Rooms 818 and 819 as filing rooms. Marshal McCarthy and the custodian have been asked to arrange to supply the necessary attendants and sergeants at arms.

Chairman Hughes announced that Marshal McCarthy had offered him the use of his own office whenever he wished to make us of it.

The report was adopted.

The report of the Committee on Employes was then presented by Colonel Dykman. He announced that the committee had asked the Adjutant General for a ruling on the question of expending money for clerk hire and the installation of a filing system similar to the one already in use by the local boards. The committee recommended the employment of seven stenographers, one for each committee and one each for the Chairman and Secretary, the employment of seven messengers and seven officer guards.

The Chairman and Secretary were authorized to hire all employes, including one or more telephone operators, and to contract with the telephone company for the installation of the necessary telephone service in the board headquarters. To establish an efficient system of filing records, the committee recommended the appointment of a chief clerk and four filing clerks, more to be employed as required, at the authorized wage of $2.50 a day. Colonel Dykman suggested that it might be difficult to obtain good stenographers at $2.50 a day, but said a sufficient number might be found to undertake the work at this low figure as a patriotic duty.

When the five committees of the board met in the afternoon in Room 333, Federal Building, Chairman Hughes announced that only one of the appeals sent in from local boards had been accompanied by the necessary affidavits and records for consideration by the district board.

"In very few cases," said Mr. Hughes, "have we received from local boards the records and affidavits which they are required to send us and which must be considered in each case. From some boards we have received certifications of men who have not been exempted or discharged, but from many boards we have not received such certificates.

"In addition to the one exemption appeal which is in shape for consideration by our board, we have received three or four original requests for exemption on industrial grounds. These cases will be turned over to Committee A, of which Judge Ingraham is Chairman. The committee will report at the regular meeting of the board Monday morning.

"In view of the fact that we have not received full papers in any other cases there will be no work that can be done by the committees tomorrow. The committees will meet Monday and take up any cases that may have been turned over to the board in the meantime."

The first appeal to be taken up by the district board is that of Girach Sarchin of 1,449 Boston Road, the Bronx. Sarchin, who has taken out his first papers, was marked for service by Board 18, 1,385 Prospect Avenue, the Bronx, after he had passed the physical examination. He bases his appeal on the claim that he is not a citizen of this country and that if he must go to war he has a right to demand that he be sent back to Russia to fight for his native land.

During the afternoon scores of young men and a few women flocked into the board's meeting room to seek information in regard to exemption and how to bring appeals before the board. Many wanted exemption blanks or books of rules. As none of the necessary supplies has reached the district board, they were told to come back Monday or go to their local boards.

Several Interborough power house and sub-station employes appeared with industrial exemption claims ready for presentation to the board. These claims had been prepared on blanks furnished by the company. Motormen and other employes are not considered to be entitled to exemption on industrial grounds.

Henry C. Du Fresne, Secretary to General Manager Wilson of the Norma Company, manufacturers of ball bearings, is seeking exemption on the ground that inasmuch as the company's output is likely to be in great demand for the running gear of airplanes, his services are indispensable.

A medical student put in a plea for exemption on the ground that nobody could do his work for him.

"I think I am entitled to exemption," he said, "because I am working in the interest of humanity."

A man who described himself as the General Manager of a large shoe manufacturing concern said he was going to claim exemption on the ground that his company had a big contract for army shoes.

Benjamin A. Goldstein, a partner in the Wallabout Trucking Company of Brooklyn, seeks exemption on the ground that his concern has a contract to haul United States mail in Brooklyn.

One man whispered to the doorman: "Do you think I stand any show for exemption?" I'm supporting fourteen bartenders."

Mrs. Ernest G. Rogers said she wished to present a plea for exemption on behalf of her husband, who is employed as bookkeeper in an ammunition factory, as he could not enter a plea of sole support.

The committee wishes to have it understood that all claims for exemption or discharge, and all proof in support of appeals from decisions of local boards must be presented in English. One letter in Italian and two in Spanish were received today. The board has no translator or interpreter.

SEAMEN AND OWNERS MAKE WAR AGREEMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—American seamen and their employers have come to a full agreement on wages and working conditions during the war, which Government officials said today solves the problem of obtaining sufficient men to operate the great merchant fleet the country is building.

Announcement of the understanding was made by the Department of Labor, which with the Department of Commerce and the Shipping Board assisted in the negotiations. The agreement was signed by a committee of sixteen, representing employers, employes, and the three Government agencies. The committee was named at a conference here last week of all interests concerned. Pacific coast and lake seamen and employers who were not present at the conference are expected to enter the agreement.

The wage scale was fixed as follows: Sailors and firemen, $60 a month; coal passers, $50; oilers and water tenders, $65; boatswains, $70; carpenters, $75. Overtime pay for cargo work will be figured at 50 cents an hour and for ship work at 40 cents. A 50 per cent. bonus will be paid to crews entering the war zone, and employers will pay seamen $100 each compensation for loss of personal effects when ships are sunk.

The scale of wages and bonus for steward and cook will remain unchanged for the present.

To increase the number of men available for work every ship will carry a certain number of boys. The number of able-bodied seamen will be reduced by increasing the number of ordinary seamen in the crews.

It was agreed that bonus and other conditions arising through the war should terminate with the war, but that the wage scale should remain in force for a year thereafter.

Employers and seamen will unite in an appeal to be sent to men who have left the sea asking them to return to service.

The Provost Marshal General's office will be requested to exempt seamen from military service on the grounds that the scarcity of sailors makes the services of those who follow the sea as valuable as those of the men who carry guns.

of service of the men insured. The amounts would depend on the sex of the family, the allotment made by the husband or father out of his pay, and other circumstances, to be determined in each individual case. Other dependent relatives would receive allowances only in case voluntary allotments were made them out of the pay of the man insured.

The Case of Injured Men.

The bill does not attempt to cover the methods to be pursued in re-educating and rehabilitating injured men. Two principles, however, are recognized, the man's obligation to avail himself of such opportunities as the Government may provide under penalty of loss of compensation during "any period of unreasonable refusal," and man's right to disability compensation regardless of his individual economic recuperation. The amount of indemnities paid in cases of partial disability, however, would vary from time to time, according to the altered circumstances of the man insured.

"Assume that a man were totally disabled by losing both legs and both arms in battle," Mr. McAdoo wrote the President by way of illustration. "Under the compensation provisions of this bill, if he were a private and unmarried, he would receive $40 per month, and if, as most probable, he needed a nurse or attendant, up to $20 additional.

"If he had a widowed mother dependent on him for support, he would get another $10. If he subsequently married, his compensation would be increased at once by $15. If, later on, he had children, the compensation would again be increased $10 a month for each of the first two children, a possible maximum of $105 a month.

"In addition to this monthly payment, he would be fitted with artificial limbs and have treatment. His compensation or pension would not be affected by any increased earnings. Furthermore, if he wanted to set up as a small storekeeper, under the compensation system he would be allowed to commute $20 a month of his compensation; this might give him $1,000 or more, and still leave him protected to some extent."

When disability results in death, dependents would receive from $15 to $60 a month, the sum again being rated according to the circumstance of the dependents. This feature of the program is regardless of the insurance which the man or officer may take if he wishes, paying the premium therefor himself.

All insurance of this character, the bill provides, would be "nonassignable and free from the claims of the creditors of or of the beneficiary." It would be limited to wife, children, and other specified kindred. A period of four months is provided for after the passage of the act within which insurance may be applied for and those who are totally disabled or die before they have had an opportunity to insure within the prescribed period of 120 days, insurance in the sum of $5,000 is deemed to have been applied for and granted.

On the administrative side the bill provides for a division of the Government's War Risk Insurance Bureau into two sections, one on marine and seamen's insurance, the other on military and naval insurance, each division to be under the supervision of a Commissioner under the bureau's direction.

RED CROSS ALSO WILL AID.

Will Provide Where Government Alliance Is Idadequate.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—While the Government alone can assume the task of looking after dependents of those who fight the nation's battle at the front, the Red Cross will undertake to help so far as it can. The Red Cross policy in such cases was outlined today in this statement by Chairman Davison of the War Council:

"Obviously the task of providing for the financial assistance of the families of our soldiers and sailors is so large that the Government alone can assume it. In no other way can the burden be discharged fairly and as a matter of right rather than charity. No voluntary organization or organizations could adequately cope with a duty of such magnitude.

"The American people will not, of course, permit families to suffer want because their breadwinners are fighting for their country. Cases will undoubtedly arise wherein the allowance of the Government will not be adequate to protect a family from financial distress. Such instances the Red Cross will hope to provide for through its chapters.

"The Red Cross chapters can and will provide also the friendly services which may be needed and acceptable because of ill health or other misfortune or because of family conditions which if neglected would result in need and suffering or disaster to the home.

"That this work may be done with thoroughness and uniformity the Red Cross has published The Manual of Home Service for the guidance of chapters. This civilian relief work is under the direction of W. Frank Persons, Director General of Civilian Relief."

DENIES CAMP ORDER IS AIMED AT WOOD

War Department Explains Plan to Put Training Under Division Commanders.

TO ELIMINATE 'RED TAPE'

New Rules, Which Are Made Public, Are Said to be Designed to Minimize Labor.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The power and authority of department commanders of the army were considerably diminished by general orders made public today by the War Department. They relieve department commanders from control of "all that pertains to administration, instruction, training, and discipline" of all the organized tactical divisions of the national army and the National Guard after they shall have arrived at their divisional camps.

Under the former regulations, a department commander had control of all troops in his department, the only exceptions being the general hospitals, which are under the Surgeon General of the Army; arsenals, which are under the Chief of Ordnance, and special organizations, such as depots, &c., which are controlled directly from Washington. The new general orders, however, provide that the supply of the national army and National Guard divisions shall be under the department commanders, this being the limit of their control.

It was believed by some that the action of the War Department was aimed particularly at General Leonard Wood, Commander of the Southern Department, where a large number of the cantonments will be situated. There has long been a feeling in military circles that General Wood has incurred the displeasure of the Administration, owing to his great friendship for former President Roosevelt and to incidents, such as that at Plattsburg, where he invited Colonel Roosevelt to deliver a speech. In that speech President Wilson was criticised.

At the War Department the intimation that the new orders related in any sense to any personal considerations was emphatically repudiated. They were prepared, it was declared, with a view to eliminating all "red tape" from the administration of the divisional camps.

Designed to Reduce Labor.

It was considered best, it was said, for the new troops to be trained by the general officers who would direct them on the battlefield. The orders are intended to reduce correspondence and labor to a minimum, and to relieve the War Department of the troublesome detail which will attend the conduct of the camps.

The divisional camp commanders under the orders will be required to pursue a most vigorous policy. The success of the camps will be directly up to them, and reputations may be made or destroyed by their management. The divisional camp commanders must realize at the outset, it was asserted at the War Department, that the one object of the camps is to train men for war, as thoroughly and as quickly as possible, through concentration of authority and responsibility in the commanders.

War Department authorities insisted that there was no animus in the orders; that they were not directed at any one, and that so far as General Wood might be concerned, his duties were still of the utmost importance. It is expected, although no official announcement has been made, that General Wood will direct the great movement of troops to Europe once they shall have completed their work in the cantonments.

If this duty should be assigned to General Wood, it was pointed out, he would have no time to devote to the control of the camps, as the problems of transport overseas, and the movement of both men and supplies, would be sufficient to engage all his study and time.

The text of the new orders follows:

"War Department.

"Washington, July 20.

"1. Paragraph 491, Army Regulations, is amended so as to exempt from the control of Department Commanders, in all that pertains to administration, instruction, training, and discipline, all of the organized tactical divisions of the National Guard and national army after they have arrived at their divisional camps.

"Division commanders are enjoined to reduce correspondence and other administrative labor to a minimum, to decide all questions arising within their jurisdiction which are not reserved by law or regulations for the decision of the War Department, to forward no communications to the War Department that can properly be disposed of by themselves, and to pursue a vigorous policy with respect to the instruction and training of the troops under their command.

Camp Supply Depots.

"2. Supply of these divisions will be effected in accordance with the following general instructions: (a) Department Commanders will at once take steps to establish a camp supply depot at each camp of the National Guard or of the national army within the limits of their departments.

"Camp supply depots will include supplies from all supply departments for the camp at which located. The personnel for each will include a representative from each supply department to be known as camp quartermaster, camp ordnance officer, &c., and such assistants as may be necessary. The work of the depot will be co-ordinated by an officer to be designated by the division commander. The representatives of supply departments which furnish few articles of equipment for troops may be taken from divisions.

"(b) Camp supply depots will be filled from general depots or direct from contractors, under direction of bureau chiefs, who will designate the general depots to which requisitions from the camp depots will be sent by department commanders after action thereon by them.

"(c). Camp supply depots will be under direction of division commanders, and organizations will requisition supplies from their own camp supply depots.

"(d) The initial supplies for each camp supply depot will be furnished either on requisition from camp supply depots to department commanders or without requisition, as may be directed by the chief of the bureau concerned, on advance information of the number of organizations, strength, and date of arrival at camps.

"(e) Thereafter maintenance supplies will be kept up by requisition from camp supply depots to department commanders, or to depots designated for their supply, as far as total stocks and deliveries will admit, on the basis of one month at camp supply depots, one month en route, and one month requisitioned for.

Supplies to be Kept.

"(f) The Quartermaster Corps will maintain in camp supply depots, on the above basis, supplies of clothing and equipage, subsistence stores, forage, fuel, crude and mineral oil, gasoline, lime, blacksmith coal, and other additional camp supplies; the other supply departments, such articles as are included in the equipment manuals, including spare parts and cleaning materials. The engineer department will include materials for instruction in trench warfare.

"(g) The National Guard, when called into Federal service, will be supplied with necessary articles of uniform and personal equipment at mobilization points.

"(h) Heavy tentage for the National Guard, unless otherwise ordered, when State organizations are to be mobilized at State mobilization camps, will be shipped direct to training camps, to be there apportioned out according to the needs of all organizations by division commanders, and on the basis of one large pyramidal tent to twelve men, until the total supply of tentage available is increased.

"By order of the Secretary of War.

"JASKER H. BLISS,

"Major General, Acting Chief of Staff.

"Official:

"H. P. McCAIN,

"The Adjutant General."

RED CROSS AID IMPARTIAL.

Americans Ready to Help German Wounded and Prisoners.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—A statement making it clear that the American Red Cross will not neglect German wounded or prisoners and will welcome co-operation from Americans of German origin was authorized tonight by Chairman Davison, of the Red Cross War Council.

"When war was declared between the United States and Germany," said Mr. Davison, "the neutrality of the American Red Cross, of course, ended automatically. The American Red Cross can co-operate only behind the lines of the armies of the United States and its allies. But the Red Cross knows no such thing as the nationality of a wounded man. Any wounded enemy turned over to the care of the American Red Cross will receive as kindly treatment as any friend.

"As to the policy of the Red Cross in this country toward those of German origin: The Red Cross knows no difference and makes no distinction between any American citizens, insofar as base hospital units are concerned, the Red Cross equips and enlists the personnel of those units to be sent to Europe to operate not only with our own armies, but with those of our allies. Once enlisted and mustered into service, these units become part of the army of the United States, and there is of course no discrimination by the Red Cross or the American army against any loyal American citizen no matter of what national origin.

"Our allies in Europe have requested the American State Department not to permit persons born in enemy countries, or of parents born in enemy countries, to travel as civilians in any of the allied countries. Representations, however, have been made by the Red Cross, which it is hoped will ultimately prove effective, whereby loyal American citizens on Red Cross service may be exempted from the operation of this rule no matter what the country of their origin."

EXPECT COMPROMISE ON ALBANY FOOD BILL

Governor and Legislative Leaders Certain of Agreement After a Three-Hour Conference.

WHITMAN STANDS FIRM

Will Not Accept Measure Omitting Provisions Considered Essential to Food Control.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Aug. 10.—Governor Whitman and the leaders of his own party in the Legislature were in conference on food control legislation for three hours today. No agreement was reached, and the conference will be continued on Monday. According to statements from the Governor and the leaders, there is every prospect of a compromise.

"After an extended conference it was agreed that it would be continued Monday, with every expectation that a bill would be agreed upon," was the formal statement given out at the Executive Chamber at the close of today's session.

"We met in a conceding frame of mind and we talked together for some time and will meet again on Monday, when there is every prospect that differences, if any ever existed, will be cleared away and a bill agreed upon," said Senator Brown. Speaker Sweet made a statement of substantially the same purport.

It was noted at the Capitol that the Governor in his statement said nothing about a "conceding frame of mind." The omission was regarded as significant by those who know the Governor's attitude on the pending food legislation. It is not considered likely that he will accept any measure unless it contains all the provisions he has pronounced essential to real food control in the State.

These include the unhampered right of the Executive to appoint the three Food Control Commissioners, broad powers of seizure for the Food Control Commission where food supplies have been hoarded for speculative purposes in cold-storage warehouses, and the right for both the State and Municipal Food Commissions to buy and sell food products and other necessaries of life to stabilize prices.

It is entirely unlikely that the Governor will make concessions except in relation to matters that he regards as of no vital importance. In order to enable his opponents to "save their faces" he may concede something. The present bill, in defining the powers to be vested in municipal market commissioners, provides that before these bodies can buy food products at the public expense and dispose of them for the purpose of bringing prices down to a normal level the State Food Control Commission must certify that a public emergency exists.

The Governor believes that the municipal commissions should be empowered to act independently in such matters, but it is thought likely that in this respect he might be willing to give way to the views of those who framed the War Committee's Food Control bill. He does not believe that, with the sort of commission he expects to name, it will make any real difference.

Senator Brown, before leaving for a week-end visit to his home, announced that the Republican Senators would hold a conference on food control and other legislation at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon. The Legislature will meet at 8:30 Monday night. It is thought that the amended Food Control bill will be favorably reported by the War Committee.

Provided an agreement is reached between the Governor and the legislative leaders at the conference on Monday the Legislature may adjourn over next week, although there are some other legislative matters to come before the lawmakers. A readjustment of the Senate reapportionment enacted last year and of the Aldermanic reapportionment in New York City, certain financial bills, and one or two measures of local importance, in addition to the bills already pending, may be presented to the extraordinary session before it adjourns.

The Senate and Assembly held brief sessions today. The only legislative business transacted was the introduction by Senator Brown and Assemblyman Adler, Republican leader of the House, of a bill enabling officials in the service of the State or any of its political subdivisions to serve on Exemption Boards without forfeiting their places in State or municipal administrations. The Exemption Boards at present are Federal agencies, and there is in existence a statute preventing a person from simultaneously holding offices under the Federal Government and the State Government or the Government of municipalities. The Assembly passed the bill at once, but no action was taken in the Senate.

MEATLESS DAY AT MAJESTIC.

No Beef on Tuesdays, for "It Is for the Soldiers."

The Hotel Majestic will have one meatless day a week beginning next Tuesday. The dishes planned are quite elaborate and great variety will not be lacking. At the top of the menus will be printed the following notice:

To Our Patrons:

Mr. Hoover wants your help. Voluntary economies in the use of some foods now may prevent drastic compulsory regulation later on, so please do not order beef on Tuesdays. It is for the soldiers. But order fish, chicken, squabs, vegetables, fruits, and other foods that cannot be sent to Europe. Help us save sugar, beef, wheat, butter, oil, and fats. The army and navy must be fed.

Another innovation in the food conservation plan will be started next week when bread and peanut butter will be placed on the menu at 5 cents a portion instead of the regular bread and butter at 10 cents a portion.

SEES LABOR PROTECTED.

Gompers Explains Application of Section 4 of Food Bill.

Section 4 of the Food Control bill, making illegal any interference with the production or distribution of foodstuffs, will not militate against freedom of action of labor unions, according to a telegram from Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, read last night at the weekly meeting of the Central Federated Union in the Labor Temple, in East Eighty-sixth Street. Mr. Gompers explained why the labor forces in Congress had not opposed the bill. His telegram follows:

American Federation of Labor did not delay passage of food administration measure for following reasons: Under the interpretation of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Payne Lumber Company versus Neal it was held that private individuals could not institute legal proceedings under the anti-trust legislation. Only the Government could take action. Civil sundry appropriation laws contain provisions that no appropriations for judiciary can be used to prosecute labor organizations. Under anti-trust legislation high authority has given assurance that section four of food administration measure would not be interpreted to apply to normal and necessary activities of trade unions. The provision suggested by American Federation of Labor that section four should not be interpreted to repeal labor sections of Clayton Anti-Trust act will be introduced in the Senate as a separate measure. This course has the approval of President Wilson, who will assist toward the enactment of proposed measure.

SAMUEL GOMPERS.

TO FIX PRICES FOR COAL.

Illinois Operators Agree to Appointment of Justice Carter as Director.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—The price of coal to Illinois consumers will be fixed for the next year by Chief Justice O. N. Carter of the Supreme Court of Illinois, who tonight was named by Governor Lowden to be Director of Coal, and whose services the Illinois coal operators agreed to accept after a four-hour conference with the Governor.

FRANCE TO SEEK SHIPS HERE

De la Touche Coming with Full Power to Arrange Purchases.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—Gaston de Pellerin de la Touche, Director of the Compagnie Générale Transatlantique (French Line) and the Paris-Lyons-Mediterranean Railroad, has been named as a delegate of a group of French shipbuilders to visit the United States. He will also represent the Government, which will furnish him with credentials to André Tardieu, head of the French mission in the United States.

The object of M. De la Touche's visit is to complete an understanding with American constructors and financiers for ship urchases, full powers for which have been given him.

ALL LABOR DISPUTES GO TO WAR BOARD

Government is known to be paying more than the average wage in a given community; in others the Government is paying less. There will be an equalizing effect, it is believed, in the amount paid by the Government and by private interests.

The wages paid will not be uniform, as the present wage scales throughout the country are not uniform. In the Puget Sound region, it was stated, wages are approximately 15 per cent. higher than in the East. In the South last year they were, in some instances, 25 per cent. lower than in the North, although the tendency has been to reach the Northern level in recent months.

The committee will take under consideration temporary conditions in any community which may tend to depress or to lift wages, and will be guided in determining wage scales by normal, and not by any temporary, conditions, it was stated.

The committee to be created by the Council of National Defense will interest itself in disputes between labor and privately owned plants working on Government contracts.

A board representing both the Government and labor will be created immediately by the Council of National Defense to adjust differences between capital and labor and the Government and labor when the disputes affect work on Government contracts. Members of this board are now being selected.

Each of the executive departments of the Government, it was believed today, would formulate its own policy respecting the treatment of labor in relation to the questions of union, hours and wages. The union question has come forward as a result it was said today, of the partial abandonment of the plan heretofore adhered to by the executive departments of awarding contracts on competitive bids. New contracts are awarded on the percentage basis, in order to expedite war work for the Government.

It was made plain that the Navy Department has no intention of abolishing the eight-hour rule on Government work, but wherever it may be necessary to speed up work the department is paying, and will continue to pay, time and one-half for overtime.

There was no noticeable uneasiness in official circles over threats threatened from labor sources, officials being confident that a policy of fairness and justice will win the support of labor and that the new agency to be created by the Defense Council, having the support of all the departments, will be able to adjust all differences with labor which might embarrass the Government.

LONGSHOREMEN NOT OUT.

Union Head Denies Report of a River-Front Strike.

Pier Superintendents and agents of the men's unions denied last night that there was any truth in the report that 700 longshoremen along the North River front had quit work and a general strike of 2,000 or more was expected. J. F. Riley, President of the District Council of the International Longshoremen's Association, whose office is at 164 Eleventh Avenue, said that he had heard no talk of any strike along the waterfront.

"None of our men are out," he continued. "We are with the Government. If we had a grievance, we would not strike at this time, anyhow. It would be unpatriotic. If any longshoremen have quit work, it must be some of the non-union men."

One of the pier Superintendents said last night that the longshoremen were earning from $30 to $75 a week without any overexertion. They were paid a dollar an hour for going down the hatch to load a ship, and frequently earned $24 from midnight Saturday to midnight Sunday.

"They have so much money now," he continued, "that they do not care whether the ships are loaded or not."

Inspector John Daly of the Second District, who was instructed from Police Headquarters to make an investigation of the labor conditions on the steamship piers, reported later that about 100 men had quit work along the railroad piers along the North River, but there was no indication of any general strike.

Alderman Moran Acting Mayor.

In the absence of Mayor Mitchel, who went on a week-end trip to the North Woods yesterday, and President Dowling of the Board of Aldermen, who went to Atlantic City, Robert L. Moran, Alderman from the Thirty-sixth District, the Bronx, Vice Chairman of the board, will be Acting Mayor until Monday.

FOOD BILL SIGNED; HOOVER IN OFFICE

rather by co-ordination with the various trades to effect such constructive regulations as will render gambling, extortion, and other wasteful practices impossible, and will stabilize prices. Indulgence in profiteering in this hour of national danger is far from the wish or the will of the vast majority of our business people, and I am convinced that while we must have ready in reserve the corrective powers given us, we shall by these powers free the great majority from necessity to compete with operators whose sole effort is to inflate prices and bring into disrepute the majority of honest traders. We propose to proceed as rapidly as possible with constructive regulation in various commodities and to announce each program as quickly as it is properly formulated. We hope within the next few days to announce the method of wheat and flour control.

The deep obligation is upon us to feed the armies and the peoples associated with us in this struggle. The diversion of 40,000,000 of their men to war or war work; the additional millions of women drafted to the places of their husbands and brothers; the toll of the submarine all conspired to so reduce production that their harvests this Autumn will fall 500,000,000 bushels of grain below their normal production. Always dependent upon import from other countries for the substantial part of their food needs, our Western European allies, because of the destruction of shipping by submarine and the isolation from the normal markets by belligerent lines, will proceed to carry them and ourselves over the next Winter without suffering. If we fail it is because individual American citizens have failed to see and do this loyal national duty. This is a service in which each man, woman and child in this country may enter. We shall invite all classes and all trades to sign a volunteer pledge to co-operate with us in the undertaking and so become as much members of the food administration as we ourselves are.

There is no royal road to food conservation. It can be accomplished only through sincere and earnest daily co-operation in the 20,000,000 kitchens and at the 20,000,000 dinner tables of the United States. If we can reduce our consumption of wheat flour by one pound, our meat by seven ounces, our fat by seven ounces, our sugar by seven ounces per person per week, those quantities, multiplied by 100,000,000, will immeasurably aid and encourage our allies, help our own growing armies and so effectively serve the great and noble cause of humanity in which our nation has embarked.

This co-operation and service I ask of all in full confidence that America will render more for flag and freedom than king-ridden peoples surrender at compulsion.

STEEL MEN MAY FACE 'BIG STICK' POLICY

President Said to be Preparing to Exert All His Power to Enforce Equality of Prices.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The President, it was said tonight, was ready to exert soon the "big stick" policy in other directions than in the control of food if producers, manufacturers, and speculators refused to meet the Government requirements.

Controversies over the price to be paid for steel and coal, not only by the Government, but by the allies and the public, had reached the stage, it was said, where this course had been decided upon.

One report current today was that the bill introduced by Senator Pomerene of Ohio, one of the men closest to the White House, which would give the President among other powers control of basic materials needed for steel production had been inspired by the White House. If adopted by Congress it would place a mighty weapon in the President's hands in fixing prices.

There was no very definite change in the situation today, except that the immediate steps taken by the President when the Food Control bill became a law, in giving Herbert C. Hoover free rein to proceed against speculators and profiteers, was accepted generally as proof of where the President stood in the matter of price fixing.

AMERICAN TRAINING CAMP IN FRANCE, Aug. 9.—(By the Associated Press.).—The hard training work for the trenches, with its long hours of outdoor life is proving a veritable tonic to the members of the American expeditionary force. The percentage of illness for the entire force is only 2½ per cent., as against an average of 5 per cent. in army posts in the United States. Nearly all the sickness consists of mild cases of mumps, measles, and colds, all of which are yielding to medical treatment.

The remarkably light sick report is most gratifying to the medical staffs which, although shorthanded, have had no difficulty so far in handling all the cases and still finding time to visit the French front and study in detail the plants for the care of the wounded, including the first aid dressing stations underground and the casualty clearing stations further from the firing line, and the means of quick conveyance to the base hospitals well outside the fighting zone.

There is every likelihood, however, that the American medical staff will be considerably augmented before the men actually take their places in the trenches. At present the American army has only one doctor and eleven medical corps men to each 800 soldiers. The French have two doctors and thirty-seven men for the same number of soldiers, and find this staff none too large.

There has been considerable discussion here as to just what part the American Red Cross, with its vast funds, will play in handling the wounded and sick—just where the army work will leave off and that of the Red Cross will begin. It has been suggested that the Army Medical Corps undoubtedly will handle everything within the actual fighting zone, turning the patients over to the Red Cross for conveyance to a base hospital. There seems little possibility that any American wounded will be transported back to America for a long time to come. Those men will have to be cared for wholly in France and looked after during convalescence. It is suggested that this branch of the work would come within the province of the Red Cross.

The marines of the expeditionary force will make a fight to retain their forest-green uniforms against a tentative order which would place them in regular army khaki. The marines think they can arrange a necessary supply of their distinctive clothing, but army officers feel it would perhaps be better to have the entire expedition uniformed alike. The marines hold that to abandon their distinctive dress would tender to lower the morale of the men, which in turn would rob the expedition of the spirit of friendly rivalry now existing between arms of the service. The marines cite the case of the Alpine Chasseurs in France who won their fight early in the war to retain their distinctive uniforms of dark blue against an order that all French troops should wear horizon blue.

The marines today subscribed to a fund of $60,000 to buy French war bonds, the fact evoking great cheers from their French trainers. One company subscribed $4,500 in $10 and $20 gold pieces. An old Sergeant with considerable arrears in pay due him turned over $700 for bonds, while a private with a German-American name, handed over $400 in coin.

These French bonds yield something over 6 per cent. Virtually all the fund was raised in the non-commissioned officers sharing but lightly in the subscription. Other units of the expeditionary force are likely to follow suit.

Most of the soldiers still ask to be paid in American gold, although an increasing preference for payment in francs is shown.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The forest green uniform, which the American marines in France are contending for, was selected about five years ago for field service in cold climates. It never has been used extensively because the Marine Corps usually has been in action in the tropics. It was said here tonight that the green uniform probably would be retained for wear in rest camps, while the regulation army drab would be adopted for trench warfare.

CITES THAW AGAIN FOR COURAGE IN AIR

French Order Also Names Hoskier and Genet, Who Were Killed in April.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—Among the citations in the army orders printed in today's official journal is that of Sergeant Ronald Hoskier of New York, a member of the Lafayette Escadrille who was killed by a German aviator in an aerial encounter over St. Quentin on April 4. The citation reads:

"Sergeant Hoskier was remarkable for his courage and spirit of sacrifice. He fell after a heroic defense against three enemies."

Mrs. H. Hoskier, the mother of Sergeant Hoskier, is with the American Ambulance at Neuilly. His father, a member of an automobile ambulance section, has been commended in French army orders.

Edmond O. C. Genet of New York, a grandson of Governor Clinton, is cited as a courageous and devoted pilot. His last words were "Vive la France forever." Genet was killed in a fight with an enemy airman near Ham in April, being the first American flier to die in France in the war service.

Lieutenant William Thaw of Pittsburgh, who is popularly known in France as "The American Eagle," has again received a citation. It reads:

"Lieutenant Thaw, who returned to the front after recovering from a severe wound, has never ceased to give an example of courage and enterprise. He showed intelligent initiative during a German attack by landing in his airplane near a group of French troops and giving them information that he had obtained by flying low over the enemy's position. This information enabled our troops to avoid a possible surprise. Lieutenant Thaw brought down an enemy aviator on April 20 of this year, that being his second aerial victory."

LIEBKNECHT SET FREE, IS REPORT IN GENEVA

Socialist Leader Imprisoned in Germany Is Said to be Critically Ill.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—Dr. Karl Liebknecht, former Socialist leader in the German Reichstag, who was arrested in connection with the May Day demonstrations in Berlin in 1916, was liberated a fortnight ago by the German Government through fear that he might die in prison. He is said to be suffering from tuberculosis, weighting only 84 pounds.

The authenticity of this news seems certain, says the Temps's Geneva correspondent, although the German newspapers, in obedience to orders, have kept silent regarding it.

"The news," says the correspondent, "was brought here by a Hollander who has just arrived from Germany. He says the trades union organizations brought pressure upon the Government for the release of Dr. Liebknecht, who is now in a private hospital and is not expected to recover, suffering, in addition to the lung malady, from mental depression, the result of inhuman treatment while in prison."

Dr. Liebknecht was tried by court-martial in Berlin for "military treason" and sentenced to four years and one month in prison. A court-martial at Thorn also is said to have sentenced Dr. Liebknecht to four and a half years at hard labor, charging that he had attempted to incite the soldiers of the Thorn Garrison to disobedience and rebellion.

Elihu Root in New York.

Elihu Root, former Secretary of State, and recently Special Ambassador of the United States to Russia, arrived last night from Washington and went to the Hotel Belmont. He will leave New York early today for Clinton, N. Y., to see his family and return to this city on Tuesday to attend a reception given in his honor by Mayor Mitchel.

REPORT BULGARIA LUKEWARM IN WAR

Fear That Austria Is Preparing to Sacrifice Her, Diplomats Hear.

TURKEY ALSO DISTRUSTFUL

Territory Promised to Ferdinand, It Is Said, May Be Offered to Serbia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Trouble is threatened between Austria and Bulgaria, and possibly between Germany and Bulgaria, according to authentic information which has been received in a diplomatic quarter here. Austria is said to have been planning the betrayal of Bulgaria in the peace negotiations. Germany is irritated by the persistent refusal of Bulgaria to sever relations with the United States.

Austria, foreseeing the restoration of Serbia, and fearing to lose Bosnia-Herzegovina also to Serbia, is said to be shaping her policies so as to be in a position to offer to Serbia, instead of Bosnia-Herzegovina, ample compensation in Macedonia, which, under the understood terms of the alliance with Bulgaria, would go to the latter in the event of a Teutonic victory or a draw.

The information came in a roundabout way from Berlin, and for that reason it is believed that the German Government is cognizant of, if not a party to, Austria's attitude toward Bulgaria. It is also considered possible that the Sofia Ministry has been acquainted with Austria's design, in order that Germany might better exercise influence in Bulgaria, which country, from all reports, is satisfied with its conquests and is lukewarm toward any proposal that it enlarge its participation in the war.

"Austria," an Entente diplomat said today, "is playing a familiar card in seeking to serve her own interests at the expense of an ally. Throughout Austria's history the Hapsburgs have sought to sacrifice others, friends as readily as foes, in the dynasty's interests.

"The occupation of Bosnia-Herzegovina in 1908, in violation of treaty obligation, was winked at by Europe, which nevertheless was given a cause for war. Austria sacrificed Italy in every possible way during the Italo-Turkish war, despite the fact that Italy was Austria's ally. The war lasted a year longer than it otherwise would have continued on account of the Austrian opposition to Italy's carrying the war into Turkey. Italy fought Turkish troops only in Tripoli.

"Now Austria is prepared to sacrifice Bulgaria, just as Germany is ready to sacrifice Turkey."

Confidential dispatches received from abroad state that both Bulgaria and Turkey are distrustful of Germany, and are only awaiting the condition of the war to cast off German domination. Reports believed to be reliable state that Turkey, especially, is dissatisfied with German tutelage, but realizes that if she continues in the war she must rely largely upon Germany until its termination.

It is believed here that the conventions relating to commerce and communication now being negotiated at Vienna in a conference which began today and which is attended by representatives of Germany, Austria-Hungary, Turkey, and Bulgaria, will have only a "war life" and will not be adhered to by the two last-named countries after the war.

SLIGHTS POTSDAM STORY.

"Gratuitous," Is Berchtold's Comment as to War Council.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 10—Count von Berchtold, former Foreign Minister of Austria-Hungary, characterizes as "gratuitous" the disclosures of The London Times regarding the Crown Council held at Potsdam in July, 1914, according to a dispatch received here.

It was at the meeting at Potsdam, according to a writer in The London Times and other reports, at which a plan was proposed to let loose the war. The Wolff Bureau of Berlin said it had been officially authorized to declare that the statement was a pure invention.

RUMANIANS REPEL TEUTON ATTACKS

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Russian and Rumanian troops repulsed enemy attacks in the Trotus Valley and then launched vigorous counterattacks, which gained them prisoners and captured machine guns, according to an official statement issued today by the Rumanian War Office. The statement follows:

In the Trotus Valley enemy attacks were repulsed, and in counterattacks Russian troops, who maintain all their positions, forced the enemy to flee in disorder after taking prisoners and machine guns.

Between the Trotus and Putna Valleys Rumanian troops gallantly withstood a violent artillery bombardment with attacks accompanied by asphyxiating gas. They completely repulsed the enemy in five assaults, except at a single point in the Oitus Valley.

On the Putna and Sereth Rivers Russo-Rumanian troops, attacked many times by superior numbers of the enemy, inflicted heavy losses and maintained all their positions.

BERLIN, Aug. 10. (via London.)—In the Oitus sector of the Rumanian front Austro-German forces took prisoner in the last two days 1,000 men and captured thirty machine guns from the Russo-Rumanian forces, according to the official statement issued today by the German Army Headquarters Staff. The statement reads:

Front of Prince Leopold of Bavaria—There has been a revival of the fighting activity near Dvinsk, south of Smorgon, and near Brody. Near the latter town an enterprise undertaken by German and Austro-Hungarian troops resulted in the capture of more than 200 prisoners.

Front of Archduke Joseph—Southeast of Czernowitz, (Bukowina,) stubborn fighting has taken place. Our troops penetrated at several points into the frontier positions of the Russians. Also on the Sereth Plain and at Solka advantages were gained following the repulse of enemy counterattacks.

Between the Trotus and Putna Valleys the allies, (Teutonic,) took by storm several height positions, in spite of tenacious resistance by the Rumanians. In the Oitus sector in the last two days more than 1,600 prisoners have been captured and thirty machine guns taken.

Front of Field Marshal von Mackensen—On both sides of the Fokshani-Adjudinoi Railway line German divisions have forced a crossing over the Suchitza River on a wide front.

During bitter counterattacks the enemy endeavored to hinder our advance by the use of strong masses. All their attacks directed against our front and flank failed under the heaviest losses.

DESTROY MANY MONUMENTS.

Overzeal in Erasing Czarism's Traces Evokes Protests.

PETROGRAD, June 28, (Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Everything associated with Czarism is being ruthlessly abolished, even when the abolitists destroys or profanes historic associations. Names of places and squares taken from Romanoff rulers and Grand Dukes are giving place to names of revolutionary heroes and to abstract terms expressing the enthusiasm for freedom.

The changes are provoking strange controversies and amusing incidents. Elaborate names smacking of China are proposed. One is "Street of the Eternal Memory of the Martyrs of the Revolution." In many towns are now displayed at street corners the names of Kalayeff, Gershuni, and other Terrorists who assassinated despotic Ministers and Governors. In Moscow it has been even proposed to change the "House of Boyard Romanoff," wherein the Romanoffs lived before their elevation to the throne, to "House of a Russian Boyard." The brand-new port town Romanoff, on the Murman coast, has lost its name.

Large towns called after Emperors and Empresses like Ekaterinburg, in the Caucasus, and Nikolayevsk, in Siberia, find it difficult to change their names without causing confusion; so it is suggested that they be temporarily christened "Former Ekaterinburg" and "Former Nikolayevsk."

Destructions of historic monuments associated with the monarchy have gone so far that even the revolutionary Council of Workmen's and Soldiers' Deputies has protested. This has not been done not by incendiary mobs, but by deliberate action of "reform committees." Alone the great Peter's name and statues have been spared. Despot as he was, he commands all Russia's respect.

Leonid Andreyeff and other well known men of letters and artists have protested against the iconoclasm which goes so far as even to deny history.

FEDERATION ASSAILS LABOR SEDITIONISTS

CALLS IT 'PRO-KAISERIST'

Says Workers Are for America and Hate Unpatriotic Peace-at-Any Price Cry.

The American Alliance for Labor and Democracy, of which Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, is the head, yesterday opened its fight on the peace-at-any-price campaign fostered by the Workmen's Council, a branch of the People's Council of America. In a statement issued from its headquarters at 280 Broadway it was declared that an end would be put to anti-American agitation among the workers of the United States. The purpose of the alliance is "to Americanize the labor movement," and under Mr. Gompers's direction branches will be established in all parts of the country.

In the first statement of its campaign the alliance said:

"It has been the constant claim of the People's Council that it represented labor. Nothing could be further from the truth. It is true that there are some few local unions affiliated with the People's Council, but when it is considered that there are about 15,000 local unions in America it will be seen that even a half hundred that may be affiliated with the People's Council is an insignificant number.

"The American labor movement as a body is loyal to America and steadfast in its determination to help secure victory for this country and the cause of democracy. In pursuing this course it must be recognized that it is necessary for the labor movement to take steps from time to time to preserve working standards. This, as a matter of fact, is necessary to the most effective conduct of the war. It has nothing to do with those anti-American, pro-Kaiserist activities of which the People's Council is the promoter, and is, in fact, exactly in opposition to them.

"It is our purpose to try, by educational methods, to bring about a more American spirit in the labor movement, so that what is now the clear expression of the vast majority may become the conviction of all. Where we find ignorance, we shall educate; where we find something worse, we shall have to deal as the situation demands. But we are going to leave no stone unturned to put a stop to anti-American activities among workers.

"The American Federation of Labor is the organized labor movement of America. There is no other. Its position is clear and loyal. It was expressed in the manifesto issued at the Washington conference of March 12th, and there has been no change since. No other organization can express the wishes of the American labor movement, and the presence of the so-called People's Council in that direction are nothing short of ridiculous.

"The People's Council is an organization that is for the most part evidently alien in membership—so far as it has membership—led by men who have never been known as labor men, though some of them have made frantic claims to having been labor men for various reasons. Money evidently is plentiful, and the work of undoing America proceeds merrily. American labor must denounce any movement and any such foreign propaganda. I suggest that the methods of the organization are entirely German in character and that undoubtedly the Kaiser is greatly cheered by the reports he gets of the People's Council activities. We shall do our best to put an end to operations of that kind."

TO TAKE LACAZE'S PLACE.

Charles Chaumet Is Appointed French Minister of Marine.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—Charles Chaumet, Deputy Chairman of the Naval Committee of the Chamber of Deputies, has been appointed Minister of Marine, succeeding Admiral Lacaze, who resigned on Aug. 2.

An Under Secretaryship of Marine has been created, and Jacques Louis Dumesnil has been appointed to the post on recommendation of M. Chaumet.

BRAZIL MAY DECLARE WAR ON GERMANY

President Expected to Send Mission There—Peru and Argentina Also Roused.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Anti-German developments in South America are looked for in official circles here.

The Administration has under consideration the appointment of a special mission to Brazil, to promote the community of sentiment between Brazil and America respecting this country's war aims. It is thought here that Brazil is considering the advisability of declaring a state of war with Germany.

Manual de Freyre y Santander, the Peruvian Chargé d'Affaires, today was informed by his Government that Peru would not accept the new German proposal to submit the case of the Peruvian bark Lorton to a prize court, and that the Minister to Berlin had been instructed to insist upon the reparations and indemnities previously claimed. Unofficial advices yesterday said the Peruvian Senate had indorsed President Wilson's stand in the war, and a break in relations is expected to follow shortly.

Argentina is embarrassed by Germany's refusal to pay indemnity, apologize, and promise immunity to Argentine vessels in the future, and is considering what further steps to take to obtain satisfaction for the destruction of ships flying her flag.

BRITISH DEPARTMENT FINDS NOTHING TO DO

Neville Chamberlain Resigns After Failure to Establish National Service Bureau.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Neville Chamberlain's resignation from the National Service Department and the sad fate which has befallen the whole scheme have prompted some pretty plain speaking.

Its is apparent that the rock upon which the National Service Department split was the fact that a local habitation and a loud-sounding name were given to Neville Chamberlain and that then he was launched with a roving commission to discover his functions and duties, but left without any statutory powers and with no boundaries delimitating his sphere from that of other departments. His reluctance to accept such a vaguely defined post was natural, but he accepted from patriotic motives, and it is generally agreed that he did as much as any man could have done under the conditions.

The circumstances of his resignation show what some of his difficulties were. He prepared a memorandum for the War Cabinet suggesting work which his department was competent to do. He remained without a reply for four weeks and then sent in his resignation.

Lack of a supreme authority co-ordinating and controlling various departments is blamed for Chamberlain's failure. Mr. Chamberlain himself, in whatever direction he turned his energies he found one or other department in possession of the field, and his bantling fared badly in struggles with older and well established rivals. If the War Cabinet, says the Westminster Gazette, had meant seriously by the National Service Department it should have taken steps to make it the ruling authority in the recruitment of labor for war purposes. The efforts of the personal staff which Lloyd George gathered around him with the object of co-ordinating the work of the various departments proved unavailing in this as in other matters, and there is a strong demand for reform.

Owing to the absence of the Cabinet the Government administration is becoming more and more a species of internal warfare between departments. Lord Curzon frankly confessed in the Lords that half the work of government in the War Cabinet at present was devoted to the co-ordination of departments and the composition of differences that arose between them. Lloyd George's experiment, says The Westminster Gazette, has been disastrous and ought to be reversed as quickly as possible.

SCANDINAVIAN SHIP LOSSES.

933 Vessels and 500 Lives Toll of Torpedoes and Mines.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 10.—Nine hundred and thirty-three Scandinavian ships have been destroyed by torpedoes or mines since the beginning of the war, according to the Aftenbladet. Of this number Norway lost 600, Denmark 187, and Sweden 146.

The number of Scandinavian seamen lost in these disasters was about 500.

DIVED AFTER HER FRIEND

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 10.—A 12-year-old girl and two men were drowned near here today in a vain effort to save the life of Estelle Scofield, 20 years old, who stepped suddenly into a deep mud hole in Lounsbury's Pond, near here, and disappeared. George Ruscom, the fifth person to dive into the pond to attempt to rescue the others, recovered the four bodies, but lost consciousness after completing his task, and it was necessary to use a pulmotor to revive him.

Miss Scofield was one of a party of five girls who went to the pond daily to swim. Yesterday they left their accustomed pool and moved along the bank. Miss Scofield dived into the water first, and she did not reappear. Then Elizabeth Henriquies, 12 years old, a capable swimmer, and the daughter of Captain Arthur J. Henriquies of the United States Navy, went into the water to save her companion. Neither did she come to the surface and the other girls became alarmed and screamed for help.

John A. Lent and William Booth, who were working nearby, heard the cries and ran to the edge of the pond. They leaped into the water without waiting to remove their clothing or shoes, and apparently they were caught in the mud at the bottom of the pond, for they did not come to the surface again. As the girls on the bank saw the four persons jump into the water and disappear, leaving the surface of the pond without a ripple or a bubble after the first few minutes, they became frantic, and their cries for help brought scores to aid in the work of recovering the bodies.

When Ruscom and policemen reached the pond the girls were unable to point out the exact spot where the four persons had disappeared, so that it was impossible for the divers to bring the bodies to the surface in time for the pulmotors to do effective work. It is believed that the Henriquies girl was seized by Miss Scofield and was unable to pull the older girl to the surface, and Coroner Robert Johns said he believed it possible that Lent and Booth had also been caught in the mud and perhaps one had held the other in a wild attempt to escape from the mire at the bottom of the pond.

All of those who lost their lives came from well-known families in Peekskill, and Ruscom and his assistants from the Police Department had not got the last body from its tanks in two hours' work before hundreds of persons had come to the pond to offer assistance. Scores of mothers who had sons and daughters out swimming heard of the drownings and ran to the pond, fearing that some of their family were dead. Ten physicians brought all their restoratives and apparatus for use, and the pulmotor was worked for more than an hour upon the body of Lent, the first pulled from the mud by Ruscom.

Captain Henriquies, who was on duty at a Government station near here, came to the pond with some of his men to aid in the work, and the body of his daughter was the last brought to the surface. She had leaped into the pond to attempt to rescue her friend, without taking off any of her clothes, and when she was preparing to swim with the other girls, but the disappearance of Miss Scofield caused the smaller girl to jump into the pond with part of her clothing still on. Captain Henriquies said that his daughter was an expert swimmer, but that the mud at the bottom was apparently too much for her slender strength. All of the bodies bore evidence that there had been a great struggle at the bottom to get free of the mud.

Mrs. Florence B. Scofield, a widow, said that she had warned her only daughter, Estelle, who was not an expert swimmer, that the pond was full of mudholes, and that they ought to find a safe place to swim. Apparently the girls had chosen a place they thought to be safe, for they had taken no precautions in jumping into the water at first. Several other mudholes, with water ranging in depth from seven to ten feet, marked the bottom of the pond near the scene of the drownings, but apparently the spot the girls had left for their new place was safe for swimming.

TO STEADY RUSSIA'S CREDIT

Government Plans System of State Commercial Monopolies.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 10.—N. V. Nekrasoff, Vice Premier and Minister of Finance, today made a statement to the press in regard to the financial resources of the country, in which he expressed his opinion that commercial monopolies that the Government proposes to establish would soon bring about a stable condition of credit. M. Nekrasoff's statement follows:

"The demands of the budget exceed the forecasts as regards the income from direct taxes, which already was at a maximum. The Finance Ministry proposes to establish a number of State commercial monopolies, therefore, as an extreme measure. It considers that the guarantee of Russia's prosperity lies in the development of public and private industrial and commercial enterprises.

"In our troubled condition allowances must be made. We, therefore, aim to co-operate with the Ministry of Commerce and Industry to support development of our resources. It is realized that our credit abroad depends on events on the battlefront, but we believe that our trials soon will end with our financial credit again stable. Incidentally, subscriptions to the Liberty Loan so far are three and one-half million rubles."

MILUKOFF ACCEPTS DARE.

Tchernoff Challenges Him to Prove Charges in Court.

PETROGRAD, Aug. 10.—M. Tchernoff, Minister of Agriculture, has challenged Professor Milukoff, former Foreign Minister and editor of the Rech, to appear before an arbitration court in connection with his comments in that newspaper on the charges against M. Tchernoff. The Rech has been prominent in arraigning M. Tchernoff.

Professor Milukoff has accepted the challenge and nominated legal representatives.

It was recently charged that M. Tchernoff had been connected with the German General Staff. This led to his resignation as Minister, and finally in the resignation of the Cabinet. M. Tchernoff successfully defended himself against the accusations and again became a member of the reorganized Ministry.

BRITAIN MAY GET LONG LOAN

Bonar Law Forecasts Possible New Borrowing Plan Here.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—A. Bonar Law, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons, on the second reading of the war loan bill today, that the British Government did not intend to issue a war loan during the parliamentary recess unless something unexpected happened.

He said that the advances made by the United States had heretofore been in short term notes. It was possible, he added, that America might prefer a long-dated loan. Hence it was necessary that the Government should have power to issue such a loan.

Mr. Bonar Law said he would like to take the opportunity of saying publicly how much the Government appreciated the assistance given, not only to Great Britain but to the other allied powers, by the United States, and how grateful they were for the helpful spirit with which the American Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. McAdoo, had met all these questions.

RAID POLA AGAIN.

Italian Airmen Drop Bombs on Arsenal and Fleet.

Along the whole front yesterday the fighting was somewhat brisk. Two attacks were attempted by the enemy at dawn on our positions in the Coalba Valley, at Brenta, and north of Caterina in the Gorizia sector. The attacks broke up under our fire. The enemy storming parties were almost annihilated, and the survivors, amounting to about twenty men, were made prisoners by our patrols, which had pushed forward in pursuit.

On Wednesday night several large flights of our bombing planes renewed their attack on the fortified establishment of Pola. Favored by good light, our airmen effectively bombed the arsenal and the enemy's fleet at anchor. Our bombing planes dropped eight tons of high explosives on their objective. They then escaped from a heavy anti-aircraft fire and repulsed the enemy seaplanes which arose to oppose them. All of our machines returned safely to their bases.

our allies continue to make progress east and north of Bixschoote.

Our raiding parties entered the enemy's positions yesterday evening on a wide front east of Monchy-le-Preux, blew in his dugouts and did great damage to his defenses. The enemy offered considerable resistance at several points, and severe casualties were inflicted on his troops during the period when our troops were still in occupation of the German front system.

The day report from the French War Office has this to say of the Flanders operations:

In Belgium we continued to advance during the night. Our troops occupied several farms east of Bixschoote and west of Langwarcit and we captured a number of machine guns.

Yesterday was a disastrous day for the German air service," says The Associated Press correspondent. "Seven enemy airplanes were crushed to earth and another was driven down out of control.

The German sausage observation balloons also had a bad time. Two were destroyed and four others, emitting smoke, were forced to descend in flabby condition. Three others were hit by British airmen and three more were forced down by long-range fire from the British guns.

The German artillery continues to pound the British positions before Lens, Points east of Vimy Ridge and west of Lens were heavily shelled throughout yesterday. German gunners were especially active along the whole British front from Nieuport to the southern extremity of the line."

The Belgian communication, issued tonight, reads:

During the day of the 9th and the following night the German artillery was especially active in the region of Ramscapelle. On the evening of the 9th our artillery brought down a German airplane. Today we carried out numerous artillery bombardments with a view to destroying or neutralizing enemy batteries or to find their range.

Berlin Reports Big Allied Attacks.

BERLIN, Aug. 10.—Between the Ysar and Lys Rivers, in Belgium, says the German official statement today, the artillery activity was increased to drumfire this morning when Entente allied infantry attacks were launched over wide sectors east and southeast of Ypres. The statement says of operations along the British front:

Front of Crown Prince Rupprecht—During variable sighting conditions in Flanders yesterday the fighting activity of the artillery fluctuated in intensity. Between the Yser and the Lys the activity generally increased during the evening, continued throughout the night, and grew further in intensity during the early hours of this morning, until it attained the violence of most intense drumfire. Thereupon strong enemy infantry attacks were launched over wide sectors east and southeast of Ypres.

In Artois the artillery activity on both sides of Lens and to the south of the Scarpe was very lively.

During the evening the English, in deep masses, attacked from the Monchy-Pelves road as far as the Arras-Cambrai road. Our destructive fire fell with overpowering effect at the points where they had assembled. The advancing storming waves, which suffered most severe losses under our defensive fire and in hand-to-hand fighting with our experienced regiments, were everywhere repulsed.

GERMANS WIN GROUND NORTH OF ST. QUENTIN

Take French Trenches in a Drive That Extended Over a Front of Nearly a Mile.

BERLIN, Aug. 10, (via London.)—North of St. Quentin yesterday the German troops captured lines of French trenches over a front of 1,200 metres and took 150 men prisoners, according to the report of the War Office. The bulletin reads:

North of St. Quentin Brandenburg battalions wrested from the French some lines of trenches over a width of 1,200 meters; enemy counterattacks failed. More than 150 prisoners remained in our hands.

Between Soissons and Rheims, in Champagne, and on both banks of the Meuse the firing attained considerable intensity from time to time. A French reconnoitring detachment which penetrated into our trenches on the Laon-Soissons Road was ejected by means of a counterattack.

East of the Meuse our Baden thrusting troops forced their way into a French position north of Vacherauville and brought back a number of prisoners.

Lieutenant Gonterman shot down two enemy captive balloons.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—North of St. Quentin yesterday the Germans attacked the French positions along a front of nearly a mile in the region of Fayet, according to the War Office bulletin. The French statement says that the assault was repulsed except at the centre, where German detachments gained a foothold in the French advanced trenches.

In the course of the night the Germans also made violent attacks on the French lines between Pantheon Farm and Epine des Chevregny, on the Aisne front. Some German detachments, which penetrated the French positions, were killed or captured after hand-to-hand fighting. The report says:

North of St. Quentin the Germans attacked in the region of Fayet on a front of about one mile. The attack was broken by our French fire with losses, except at the centre, where detachments of the enemy gained a foothold at weak points in our advanced trench elements.

North of the Aisne the night was marked by a recrudescence of bombardment in the entire region south of Allemant and Filain.

About 4 o'clock the enemy violently attacked our positions from the Pantheon Farm as far as Epine des Chevregny. Troops, estimated to number three battalions and supported by shock troops, attempted several assaults upon our lines. Upon the greater part of the front attacked our precise fire stopped our adversaries, who sustained heavy losses. Some enemy detachments, which succeeded in penetrating our trenches, were either killed or captured after hand-to-hand fighting, in which our soldiers displayed the most admirable spirit. We maintained all our positions and took sixty-nine prisoners.

Other German attacks, notably south of Ailles, southeast of Chevreux, in the region of Vauquois, toward Avocourt and southwest of Flirey, were likewise checked by our fire. The enemy abandoned prisoners and suffered important losses.

The War Office communication issued this evening says:

To the north of St. Quentin both artilleries displayed continued activity. In the region of Fayet at 5 o'clock this afternoon two enemy attacks between the Menechet Hill and the Cepy farm were stopped by our fire.

Violent artillery fighting took place on the front of the Pantheon and Epine de Chevregny. The enemy after his bloody defeat this morning made no new attempt. Prisoners declare the attack had been prepared most carefully with the object of retaking the trenches captured by us on July 30. Besides the three battalions already mentioned, the troops used by the enemy included nine detachments of special storming troops and two detachments of flame throwers. We made in the course of this action more than 100 prisoners.

In Champagne the Germans attacked our trenches to the east of Maisons de Champagne. On the two wings all the attacks broke down under our fire. In the centre, where the assailants had been able to gain a footing, very spirited fighting took place, which ended to our advantage. Our line is re-established in its entirety.

On both banks of the Meuse violent artillery actions took place in the region of Hill 304, La Mort Homme, and on the Bezonvaux sector.

DESPERATE BRAVERY SHOWN IN FIGHTING

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 10.—The British troops had some rather heavy fighting this morning southeast of Westhoek, where there is some ugly country from a fighting point of view.

This country is reminiscent of the bad places in the early Somme battles about Delville Wood and Trones Wood and Mametz Wood, and has the same effect on troops, torn to tatters and flung to the earth by a great shell fire, but still giving cover to enemy groups and to the machine guns which are their chief means of defense.

Between the tree trunks they have tangled strands of wire concealed so that the British sometimes know nothing of this obstacle until caught in it and smash their way through with trench spades or rifle stocks. That was what happened today in one or two places after an early morning attack when the British took back some of the ground from which they withdrew during the rains following the great advance of July 31.

All through the night the British guns were busy and about 4:45 these opened up a storm of gunfire over those woods in which the enemy was crouching below ground, protected for the most part by concrete works. The usual thing happened. The quickness of the British after the barrage was so fast that in the first stage of the attack the German soldiers were unable to get their heads up in time to use their rifles or machine guns, so 200 of them were taken prisoner.

Later the fighting became more difficult as the enemy, further back, got their machine guns into action and took advantage here and there of the check caused to the advancing troops by the tangle of wire among the trees.

On the left Haig's men gained the main points attacked, and, indeed, more, owing to the impetuosity of the troops, who could not be kept back and went on too far. So they had to be recalled to get into the line again.

On the right the fighting was more desperate by the stubborn enemy, and not so much progress was made up to the time I write.

It is not a great battle and people may discount in advance a certain exaggeration of the German wireless, talking of masses of men flung forward and endeavoring to "break through." It was a minor operation of a tactical kind, and as such has succeeded, but also like many another minor operation it led to fierce and costly fighting on both sides with episodes of desperate valor.

The enemy belong mostly to the Ninety-first Infantry Reserve Regiment. In the redoubt some of their comrades have a number of machine guns with which they are pouring out a steady stream of bullets along the ways of approach. The enemy's losses cannot be negligible, as the British guns are pounding them horribly, so that the 200 prisoners are only a small squad in the list of their casualties.

There is nothing to complain about now in the weather except its uncertainty, and our visibility is nevertheless below the rain-swept sky. So the airmen are out again in flocks and there has been great fighting up above. Yesterday I saw the British machines flying over the enemy lines in the usual way with German shrapnel about their wings, but searched in vain for any enemy to challenge them.

There was nothing much doing except shell fire along the other parts of the front west and north of Lens. The Canadians pushed out some posts very close to the inner defenses of the city. The garrison in there is kept in a state of nerves.

The Germans still have a lot of guns around Lens, and some of them are of the heaviest kind.

CROWN PRINCE TESTS LINE.

By G. H. PERRIS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ON THE FRENCH FRONT, Aug. 10, —With the reappearance of the sun the front is waking up after its ten days of submergence in Belgium. The French line, which runs from the Yser Canal north of Steenstraete and around Bixschoote and Korteker Corner to a point on the Boesinghe-Langemarck highroad, halfway between the latter place and Pilken, has been extended and strengthened by the capture of several farmsteads.

At many other points of the front, during last night and this morning, the Crown Prince's troops delivered the sort of nervous blows to which we had become accustomed before the Belgian offensive began, the object being apparently to detain the best French corps and reserves. This, however, is a reciprocal proposition. They can only hold our best, if at all, by giving their best.

So it turned out once more on the Chemin-des-Dames, at the west end of which a sharp attack on a two-mile stretch between Pantheon farm and Chevregny crest led to four or five hours' fighting this morning.

gates, and in view of the condition of public opinion I intimated to them that if they were prepared to change the conference from an obligatory to a consultative one, I would recommend that the British labor movement reverse its previous decision and make a consultation possible. That position I maintain.

"The Russians wanted a binding conference to arrive at peace terms. I made it clear that if our representatives participated there could be no question of negotiating terms. Our case is not properly understood in Russia to this day, and to have refused pointblank to consider the question would have done incalculable harm. The Russians still insist upon a binding conference. British labor would be placed in a most dangerous position by sending delegates to such a meeting.

"I still favor a consultative conference with a proper safeguard to leave the decision as to that to the conference, but it should be settled from the standpoint of national interests, and not of party.

"I made it clear to the Russians that only governments could negotiate terms. However, seeing that a conference was inevitable, I concluded that it would be inadvisable, perhaps dangerous, for the Russians to meet enemy and neutral representatives alone. I recommend that the British attend provided conditions satisfactory to us are arranged.

"Such a conference might be productive of much good. A frank statement probably would provide the German minority Socialists with important facts hitherto withheld from the German people."

The conference after listening to Mr. Henderson adjourned, the delegates leaving to discuss his speech among themselves and returning later in the afternoon to vote on a motion of sending delegates to Stockholm.

While the conference was in recess the miners, who were accredited with holding the deciding vote, decided overwhelmingly to support the resolution proposing that delegates be sent to the consultative conference at Stockholm.

A representative of the textile workers moved, and a representative of the miners seconded, the resolution to send delegates to Stockholm. A representative of the dock workers moved that "no case has been made out for the sending of delegates to any conference that includes delegates from enemy countries."

Macdonald in a Fist Fight.

James Ramsay Macdonald, ex-Chairman of the Labor Party, arose to support the first resolution and an uproar began. While it was going on Macdonald and Will Thorn, Labor member of Parliament and founder and General Secretary of the National Union of General Workers, came to blows.

Macdonald made a vigorous plea to the delegates to "bury the past, go to Stockholm, lay your case before the conference, hear that other side, discuss matters generally, and return with the basis of peace in your pockets."

"What we want from the democracies of Europe," Mr. Macdonald added, "is a clear statement of their aims."

Privy Councillor James H. Thomas, Labor member of Parliament for Derby and Assistant General Secretary of the Amalgamated Society of Railway Servants, was

1,266 SELECTED FOR SECOND PLATTSBURG

MORE THAN 5,000 APPLIED

Every Man in the New Camp Who Successfully Completes Course Will Be Commissioned.

The headquarters of the Eastern Department of the Army, on Governors Island, made public last night the names of the 1,266 men who have been selected from the New York district to attend the second Officers' Training Camp, which opens at Plattsburg on Aug. 27. More than 5,000 men applied for admission, and of these more than 3,800 appeared at Governors Island for examination, and from these the successful candidates named yesterday were selected. An additional list of 126 men who are listed as alternates, who will take the places of any who fail to appear at Plattsburg or are disqualified for other reasons, will be made public on Governors Island this afternoon.

The official notifications to the successful candidates were mailed from Governors Island last night. These notifications inform the men of the dates on which they must report at Plattsburg.

The new Plattsburgers represent all walks in life, and among them are many well-known New Yorkers. Some of those selected are William M. Evarts, Devereux Milburn, the polo player, a son of John G. Milburn; Rufus Gaynor, son of the late Mayor Gaynor; Robert Warwick, one of the best-known motion picture stars in America; C. W. Wickersham, Martin J. Keogh, Jr., and A. C. and N. E. Schermerhorn.

Every man in the new Plattsburg camp who qualifies will be commissioned an officer of the army, some of them obtaining grades as high as Lieutenant Colonel. It is probable that no Lieutenants will be chosen, as officers of those ranks will be obtained from the selective draft army.

RELIEF SHIP SAILORS IN SMUGGLING PLOT

HAD BROUGHT BONDS HERE

Commission for Relief in Belgium Gave Tip Which Led to the Arrests.

A smuggling plot, by which Germany has been able for several months to obtain a considerable quantity of rubber goods from agents in this country, was uncovered by Police Captain Tunney of the Bomb Squad yesterday with the arrest of ten Belgians, six of whom were firemen on the Belgian relief ship Gothland. After hearing the confessions of some of the smugglers, Captain Tunney said there was every reason to believe that merchandise valued in this country at $25,000 to $30,000 was being smuggled weekly from Atlantic ports into Germany by way of Holland and Belgium. In Germany, of course, the material acquires a fivefold value, especially rubber medical goods such as were found on the persons of the smugglers who were arrested yesterday.

Yesterday's coup was the result of information originally transmitted to the Police Department by the Belgian Relief Commission. As early as last June agents of the commission suspected that the Belgian relief machinery, by some underground methods, was being used as a channel for smuggling merchandise from this country into Germany. On several occasions, for instance, it was noticed that certain goods were stolen from the cargoes shipped to Belgium for relief purposes. Some sailors, suspected of theft, were arrested. There was no indication, however, until yesterday that these thefts were part of an organized smuggling scheme, in which a certain group of sailors on the Belgian relief ships were apparently collecting a handsome price for whatever they could purchase or steal in this country for German consumption.

Sailor Got $4 a Trip.

Against the men who were arrested yesterday there was no evidence of theft. According to Captain Tunney, they were supplied with the goods found on their persons by German agents and sympathizers, who made it possible for the sailors to earn from $4 to $6 a trip extra by smuggling the rubber aboard ship and concealing it in the coal bins, where it escaped the British searchers at Halifax. The money required to purchase these materials, according to Captain Tunney, was raised by the sale to alien enemies in this country of German bonds, which were also smuggled into the United States from Germany by the sailors on the Belgian relief ship.

Aside from the ten men arrested yesterday, Captain Tunney believes there are a dozen more in the vicinity of the city who are connected with the plot. The police detectives are warm on their trail, and every effort is being made to prevent their escape into other States. Captain Tunney said there would undoubtedly be more arrests before the week was over. In the meanwhile the agents of the Department of Justice are making a very close investigation into the identity and connections of German "agents and sympathizers" who are behind the plots. The men arrested yesterday were:

Louis Tinch, 39 years old, a boarding house keeper at 512 West Twenty-fourth Street; John Mertens, 29 years old, a boarding house keeper at 493 West Twentieth Street; Frank Bollaert, 32 years old, a diamond polisher at 529 West Twentieth Street; Hippolite Bowyne, 23 years old, a chauffeur for Tinch, living at 512 West Twenty-fourth Street; and firemen on board the Gothland: John A. Bollaert, 35 years old; August C. Mayert, 22 years old; August Bollaert, 40 years old; Cornelius Neuwlatt, 26 years old; Alphonse Dalhaes, 30 years old; Anton Darns, 32 years old.

Acting upon the information that the departure of the Belgian relief ship was invariably preceded by extensive purchases of medical rubber goods from houses specializing in those lines, Captain Tunney and a squad of his detectives had kept a close eye on the sailors and firemen of the relief ship. On Thursday night some of the detectives trailed the six firemen from the pier of the relief ship at the foot of Twenty-ninth Street, Brooklyn, to Mertens's boarding house on Twentieth Street in Manhattan. They became convinced that this place was the headquarters of a smuggling plot, and when the firemen came out the detectives trailed them all the way back to the pier.

Smugglers Put Up Fight.

Lieutenant Busby, with Detectives Kennelly, Murphy, Walsh, Gilbert, Starrett, and Kiley, surrounded the dock, and when the men went aboard they followed and arrested them in their cabins. Some of the alleged smugglers put up a fight, but not for long, as soon as they observed that the detectives, with revolvers in their nands, meant business. On searching the six firemen, the detectives found them to be "walking rubber shops."

Under their clothing they found soft rubber medical articles wrapped layer upon layer about their legs, arms, and bodies, giving them an exceedingly muscular and fat appearance. One man carried a hundred or more rubber bathing caps, of the kind worn by women, between his skin and underwear. The wholesale price of the material found on the firemen was estimated at $1,000. Captain Tunney said it would have been worth $15,000 in Germany, where rubber of any kind is very scarce.

After being grilled for several hours by Captain Tunney, the firemen made statements which, according to the police, implicated Martens and Tinch, the boarding house keepers, and Frank Bollaert, the diamond polisher. They were arrested at their homes. Nothing was found in the home of Tinch or Bollaert, but on Martens's premises the detectives said they found seventy-five pounds of rubber medical supplies. These three men, said to be the agents who received the German bonds for sale in this country and accumulated the material for transportation to enemy agents in Belgium, refused to make any statements to the detectives. The firemen of the Belgian relief ship, however, were finally induced to talk with considerable freedom.

Firemen Complain of Pay.

According to the police, some of the firemen complained that they were very poorly paid, considering the kind of work they had to do and the risks they ran in crossing an ocean infested by submarines and mines. When they reached Belgium, they said, they collected no more than 15 kronen, equivalent to $7 of our money, as remuneration for their labor. Hence they were eager to make whatever extra money they could. According to the police they fell easy prey to the inducements of the German agents in Belgium, who loaded them down with German bonds and small but valuable articles of prewar manufacture, which were to be sold in this country. On arriving here the firemen, of course, were also prepared to complete the transaction by taking back to Belgium and Holland for German consumption rubber goods and other materials which allen enemies and sympathizers had accumulated for them.

According to the police, the smuggling has been going on for at least a year, despite the fact that the Belgian relief ships put into Halifax each voyage and are searched at that port from stem to stern by British officers. It was explained, however, that firemen on the ships would be in position to conceal merchandise in nooks and corners of coal bins, that the officers would never think of searching.

The prisoners arrested yesterday were placed in custody of the United States Marshal, James M. Power, in Brooklyn, and locked up in the Raymond Street Jail, where they will remain until they are arraigned before a United States Commissioner. The arrest of the smugglers was followed by the disappearance of several other members of the crew, who deserted the relief ship, according to the police, ostensibly because they were also implicated in the smuggling plot and feared arrest.

WOUNDED PAYMASTER FIGHTS OFF BANDITS

Six Men with Guns and Pistols in Battle for $10,000 on Jersey Road.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Aug. 10.—Four masked men sprang from a thicket near Cliffwood today and tried to steal $10,000 from Ray Robinson, paymaster for the New Jersey Brick Company of Cliffwood, but Robinson and his companion disregarded the command to throw up their hands and the masked men began shooting with their pistols and a shotgun. All of the robbers shot at Robinson, wounding him and his companion, William Eversham, but the fire of the paymaster was so hot that the men were compelled to flee without the money.

It has been the custom of Robinson to drive from Matawan to Cliffwood with the money to pay off the men in the plants of the brick company. The way leads across barren meadows, where there is only a light growth of underbrush to provide cover for highwaymen along the road. Robinson and his companion were thus taken by surprise when the four masked men sprang from a small thicket and with a command to the two men to throw up their hands opened fire on the horse in the hope of preventing any escape. Robinson ordered Eversham to whip the horse and to try to break through the men, who had formed a cordon across the road. But the men killed the horse and then began shooting at the paymaster, who returned the fire with a short shotgun and with his pistol.

Even after they were wounded Robinson and Eversham kept shooting at the men until they began to flee. As they ran two of the men dropped their hats, and with these as means of identification the police hope to catch the would-be robbers, who, it is believed, were Italians formerly employed in the brick plant and familiar with the custom of paying off the men. Farmers who heard the fusillade ran to assist Robinson, and they succeeded in getting an accurate description of the robbers as they ran away.

Robinson was sent to St. Luke's Hospital in New York to have his wounds attended, and physicians said that he would recover. One bullet struck his arm and the other entered the shoulder. Eversham was shot in the leg, and was sent to the Long-Branch Hospital.

CLUE TO HOLMES SLAYER.

Police Hold Man as a Witness in Policeman's Murder.

After tracing the history of a brown felt hat with the initials "H. A." from the moment it left a Fifth Avenue shop on the head of a wealthy broker, who lives on Riverside Drive, to the time it was dropped in West 139th Street on Monday night, when a negro burglar shot and killed Robert Holmes, a negro policeman attached to the West 135th Street station, the police last night held Walter Hill of Stamford, Conn., as a material witness in the murder.

When the hat was found Acting Captain McKenna of the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau immediately began to search for all persons who might have worn a hat with the initials "H. A." Finally he found a broker whose head and initials fit the hat, and then began a tracing of the history of the hat. The broker lost it in Stamford, Conn., last Summer while he was hurrying through the village, and he dared not turn back in his swift automobile because he feared the village policeman would arrest him for speeding. But a resident of the village saw the fine hat rolling in the dust, and he picked it up. A few days later he sold it to a negro for 50 cents.

Hill gazed upon the ruins of the hat last night, but he disclaimed ownership. Now the police have asked the broker, who is in New England, and the man who sold the hat in Stamford, to come to the bureau to identify it.

The police also held as a material witness Cora Green, also colored, who lives at the same address in Stamford. It is alleged that on the night Holmes was shot she was staying in the house in 139th Street that the burglar entered. Later she wrote a letter to Hill at Stamford, telling him that a burglar had shot a policeman near the house where she was staying.

3,000 FIELD GUNS ORDERED.

Government Furnishes Materials and Guarantees Profits.

Government orders for war supplies continue to appear rapidly in the markets day by day. The American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company was reported yesterday to have received a contract for 3,000 field guns under an arrangement whereby the Government furnishes the material and assures the manufacturer of a reasonable profit. While details of the contract could not be obtained, it was assumed in steel trade circles that the actual price terms would not be decided upon until the Federal Trade Commission had completed its inquiry into steel costs.

The Government also placed orders with the leading railroad equipment companies for 6,000 freight cars, to be used on the army railroads under construction in France. These contracts supplement the orders recently closed for 150,000 tons of rails and a number of locomotives. Further buying of cars for France is expected in a few days.

BURGLARS INCREASE INSURANCE RATES

RISKS 'EXTRA HAZARDOUS'

Company Representatives Will Confer with Police on How to Cut Down Loft Thefts.

Following an all-day conference, the Burglary Insurance Underwriters' Association yesterday adopted the recommendations of the organization's Mercantile Committee, and voted a substantial increase in rates for risks covering certain lines in which losses by theft in this city have of late been especially heavy. W. P. Learned, Vice President of the Fidelity and Casualty Company of New York, presided at the meeting, which was held at the offices of the company, 92 Liberty Street. Representatives from twenty-two companies, doing business in New York City were present at the conference.

J. J. Kenney, Chairman of the Mercantile Committee, submitted a report which advocated a rearrangement of the existing four classes of burglary insurance by creating a fifth class covering extra-hazardous risks. This new fifth class, it was explained by the committee was made to include silks, velvets, velours, furs, and similar goods, all of which were taken out of the other classes of risks. While there had been some talk of putting laces and embroideries in the fifth class calling for increased rates, it was finally decided to leave them under the old classifications. The representatives were not unanimous in favor of raising rates on the extra-hazadrous risks, as some of the companies doing only a comparatively small amount of business in textile insurance, or whose losses had been trifling, stood out against a stiffening of rates at this time. The final vote, however, showed that a majority of the members approved the recommendations.

Effective Sept. 1, insurance covering the lines of goods composing the new fifth class will be on the basis of $40 for $1,000 worth of risk, $70 on $2,000 worth of business underwritten, and $25 additional to existing rates for each $1,000 of risk between $3,000 and $10,000. Above $10,000 each additional $1,000 will cost $20 more than rates under the old schedule. The existing rates for silks, velvets, velours, furs, &c., are as follows: $1,000 risk, $38.60; $2,000 risk, $56; $3,000 risk, $78.40; $4,000 risk, $92.40, and $5,000 risk, $105. Over $5,000 the schedule to be supplanted next month calls for an additional charge of $10 per $1,000. An official of the Underwriters' Association said after the meeting that despite the increases made at the meeting, rates here would continue to be lower than similar risks underwriten in Chicago, Kansas City, and California. In those zones the existing charge for $1,000 worth of insurance on the lines advanced here amounts to $44.80, while a policy for $2,000 costs $74.66, and upward in proportion. Yesterday's conference took action in favor of a slight increase in charges for business underwritten in flat houses in Chicago It was announced that no change would be made in apartment house risks here. While the members of the conference went into all phases of the present-day burglary insurance risks in this city, Samuel B. Brewster, Secretary of the Burglary Insurance Underwriters' Association, said last night that there had been no criticism of the New York Police Department in connection with the many burglaries taking place of late in textile houses.

It was estimated that the advances agreed upon by the underwriters would cost merchants in the lines affected many thousands of dollars in excess of present charges. When asked whether the new rates on textiles called for an additional outlay by insurers of $1,000,000 or more annually, Mr. Brewster said he was unable to make an estimate at this time. He added that it would take time to figure out the actual sum involved in the new schedule. The underwriters' Secretary pointed out that the new rates would mean only slight advances in the cost of premiums to those concerns making use of services of burglary protective agencies and burglar and automatic alarm apparatus, owing to the sharp discounts allowed on such insurers' rates. A proposition was advanced at the meeting for the formation of an investigation Bureau in connection with the underwriters' association to look into all losses. No conclusion was reached in the matter and the subject will come up at a meeting to be called later.

Officials of burglary insurance companies operating in this city have been invited to attend a conference next Monday afternoon at Police Headquarters for the purpose of considering ways and means to cut down the number of loft burglaries which have caused heavy losses to the companies in the last few months. Police Commissioner Woods designated Inspector Faurot, of the Detective Bureau, and Inspectors O'Brien and Cahalane to make a special study of thefts of this kind, and these officials will be prepared at the forthcoming conference to make several suggestions for the consideration of the underwriters. Inspector Faurot was quoted yesterday as saying the underwriters would be asked to co-operate in urging merchants to adopt sensible precautionary measures tending to diminish the number of burglaries. Under the present conditions, the Inspector said, burglars received an invitation to steal.

Opinion on the responsibility of the police for the increase in burglaries here was apparently divided among the insurance people, for while some representatives were inclined to hold the police lax, others said no blame attached to the force. Some of the insurance men, however, will probably be called before the Grand Jury, which meets Aug. 27, to consider burglaries in the general investigation of the Police Department. Secretary Brewster is preparing for the District Attorney a list of all claims paid by the insurance companies since Jan. 1. This will form part of the evidence before the Grand Jury.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Thirty men were lost when a German patrol ship collided with a German mine, according to a report from Stubbekjobing, says a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

AUTO KILLS CHILD OF L. C. LEDYARD, JR.

Virginia, 4 Years, Run Down at Syosset, Near Her Parents' Summer Home.

Virginia Ledyard, the 4-year-old daughter of Lewis Cass Ledyard, Jr., was killed at noon yesterday by an automobile while she was walking with her brother and sister and nurse in the North Hempstead and Flushing Turnpike, a short distance from the Ledyard home at Syosset, L. I. The car was owned by Mrs. Howard Barney of Lloyd's Neck, L. I., who was driving with some friends, and was driven by Jesse Hayden, a chauffeur.

The automobile, which was bound for New York, was going along a stretch of road in which there is a slight curve. When the nurse saw it nearing them she caught two of the Ledyard children, a boy of 8 years and a girl of 10 years, and drew them to the side of the road, calling at the same time to Virginia to follow them.

The little girl did not see the automobile coming, and evidently misunderstood the nurse's words. At any rate, she was in the middle of the road, and the machine bore down on her and passed over her body. According to witnesses, the chauffeur had a clear view ahead for a considerable distance, in spite of the slight turn in the road, but failed to avoid the child when she did not escape with the others to the side.

The car was stopped immediately and Mrs. Barney hurried with the unconscious child to her residence, a little more than a mile away from the scene of the accident. Dr. J. S. Hall was summoned, but the child died within fifteen minutes after being hurt. She had suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries. No one was arrested.

The child was a granddaughter of Lewis Cass Ledyard, a brother-in-law of J. P. Morgan. The mother, Mrs. Lewis Cass Ledyard, Jr., was formerly Miss Ruth Langdon Emery of Boston. The Ledyards' town house is at 40 East Seventy-fourth Street.

SPEEDER SENT TO JAIL.

Court Refuses Leniency Plea of Chauffeur's Victim—Child Killed.

Edward A. Quinn of 609 Ninth Avenue, chauffeur for Mrs. May Frances Havemeyer Butt of the Ritz Carlton, was one of the victims yesterday of the policy recently announced by Magistrate House of the Traffic Court of sharp treatment of persons whose operating of automobiles endangers the public. He was sentenced to ten days in jail as the result of an accident at 111th Street and Riverside Drive on July 23, when he drove Mrs. Butt's car into the machine belonging to Miss Van Gillelan of 123 West Ninety-second Street.

Miss Gillelan's engine had stalled, and before she could start it Quinn ran into her car, though witnesses said he was seventy-five feet away when her machine stopped. Miss Gillelan and a friend, Mrs. Kate Knox, were thrown out and badly injured. Miss Gillelan was unable to appear in court, but her mother asked Magistrate House to suspend sentence, as Quinn's wife had become a mother on the day before the accident. The Magistrate, however, said that he thought Quinn was looking at the warships in the river instead of at the roadway, and refused to reconsider.

A number of heavy fines were imposed in Traffic Court. Minnie Ruth M. Brady of 1,401 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, daughter of the late Supreme Court Justice Brady, was fined $30 for traveling at thirty miles and hour. She said that after she was stopped by a policeman she had her speedometer tested, and found it was five miles out, but this plea was ineffective.

Ruth Grant, 10 years old, of 599 West 190th Street, while playing at West 190th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue last night was run down by the automobile of Willis J. Abbott, a writer, of 361 Wadsworth Avenue. Abbott took the child in his car to the St. Lawrence Hospital, but she was dead before he reached it. He was not arrested.

HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Attache of Venezuelan Consulate Suffers Fractured Collarbone.

Domingo Gonnell, 35 years, of 870 West End Avenue, who said he was an attaché with the Venezuelan Consulate in New York, was riding yesterday in an automobile driven by his friend, Leon Grasswald of the same address, when it was accidentally struck by a truck driven by William Schramm of 246 East Seventy-seventh Street.

The accident, which occurred at Broadway and 125th Street, resulted in Mr. Gonnell being thrown into the street with such force that he suffered a fractured collarbone and dislocated left shoulder. He was taken to the office of Dr. L. M. Pearlman of 3,136 Broadway, who treated the fracture. Mr. Gonnell was driven home by his friend, who escaped with a few bruises.

BIG EXPLOSION IN LONDON.

Bodies of 13 Women Workers in Chemical Plant Already Recovered.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—An explosion and fire in a big chemical works in East London last night wrecked the building and killed or injured scores of workers. Thirteen bodies of women so far have been rescued from the ruins.

A large number of injured have been treated at the police stations and other convenient places. Bodies are still being searched for.

DE SAULLES KILLING RE-ENACTED BY MAID

TELLS OF PROVOCATION

Says De Saulles's Looks Were Terrifying and He Declared Mother Should Never Have Boy.

Suzanne Monteau, the French maid, who accompanied Mrs. Blanca De Saulles on her trip on the night of Aug. 3 from her home in Roslyn to The Box, at Westbury, where she shot and killed her divorced husband, John Longer De Saulles, gave testimony in favor of her mistress when her deposition was taken yesterday afternoon in the office of District Attorney Weeks of Nassau County, as part of the record of the inquest.

The maid said that Mrs. De Saulles in starting on the trip shortly after 8 o'clock in the evening, had told the chauffeur to hurry in order that she might get the boy away before De Saulles arrived home; that De Saulles had told her that she could not have the boy "now, or ever," and that she believed De Saulles was on the point of striking her when she fired.

Her testimony strongly supports the contention of the defense that the killing was not premeditated. The statement of Mrs. De Saulles herself was that the butler at The Box had informed her that her husband was at the Meadow Brook Hunt Club and would not return until after 9 o'clock. The maid's story agrees perfectly with the story of Mrs. De Saulles that she hoped to get possession of the boy without seeing her husband and that she killed her husband on a sudden impulse, which, the defense will contend, was born in an overwrought and temporarily unbalanced mind.

After a few preliminary questions, Suzanne Monteau was asked to tell what Mrs. De Saulles had said and done just before starting on the trip to The Box. She said:

"She told the taxi man to drive as fast as he could to The Box, because she said we would be able to get the baby and get back before Mr. De Saulles returned from the club."

"Did she tell you that, or did she tell that to the driver?" asked Henry A. Uterhart, counsel for Mrs. De Saulles.

"She told the driver to hurry—she told me that we could get the boy and get away before Mr. De Saulles came back. When we got to The Box we left the taxi not very far from the house and walked to the front door. We saw his sister on the stairs with the baby. Mrs. De Saulles asked for her husband."

"What did she say?" asked District Attorney Weeks.

"She said, 'I want to see Mr. De Saulles.' Then Mr. De Saulles came toward us. She said: 'I don't think it is very nice for you to keep the baby so late and not let me know anything about it. I don't think that it is very nice.' Mr. De Saulles said: 'Blanca, you can't have the baby now or ever.'"

District Attorney Weeks interrupted to ask if Mr. De Saulles had used the words "Now or ever."

Miss Monteau replied "He said, 'You can't have him now or ever.'"

Mrs. De Saulles turned very pale at this, the maid said, and asked: "I can't have my baby?"

"No," replied De Saulles, according to the maid. Then Mrs. De Saulles began to shoot. The maid stopped her story to illustrate by assuming the attitudes of Mr. and Mrs. De Saulles. She described De Saulles as lounging forward to the door opening out on the porch when Mrs. De Saulles said that she wanted to talk to him. He leaned his shoulder against the door in rather a bored attitude, according to the maid's description.

They were about eight feet apart when De Saulles gave the final "No" to her. Mrs. De Saulles reached her right hand into the left pocket of her white silk sweater. The maid was asked how De Saulles looked at this time. She said:

"Before she shot him, he looked terrible. Oh, my! His eyes were terrible. He looked as if he would jump on her."

"Did he look as if he would strike her?" asked District Attorney Weeks.

"Yes."

"How far was his wife from him when you noticed this look?"

The maid indicated that the distance was about eight feet, and that Mrs. De Saulles in stepping swiftly toward him, as she drew the revolver, approached within two feet of him before she began to fire. Contradicting the stories of other witnesses that De Saulles had turned away from his former wife and that she had fired the first shot into his back, the maid said:

"She took the revolver out and shot him. He didn't move. He had his face toward her. She shot him in front three times, and then he turned. Nobody said anything. Nobody moved. Everybody was there. She put the gun on a table and said: 'Now call a policeman.' We waited a few minutes and the police came."

The maid's deposition will be turned over to Justice of the Peace Walter R. Jones, who will later report his verdict on the inquest.

Mrs. De Saulles remained in bed most of the day, but her condition appeared somewhat improved because of the visit of her son. Mrs. Phineas Seaman, wife of the Sheriff, said that, for the first time since she has been in prison, Mrs. De Saulles had some color in her cheeks. Mrs. De Saulles told her lawyer and the Sheriff yesterday that her boy was coming to make another visit to her yesterday afternoon. This was confirmed by representatives of the family early in the afternoon.

Attendants at the prison were kept ready to admit the automobile with the boy into one of the large gateways of the prison, and the mother waited expectantly, but for some reason the boy did not arrive. It was learned later that the mother had expected the boy's arrival, because he had told her the day before that he was coming. She continued in expectation until 9 o'clock in the evening, when attendants at the jail told her it was useless to wait longer, as the boy certainly was not coming until another day.

At the home of G. M. Heckscher at Westbury, where the boy had been staying, no reason could be obtained for the apparent changes of program. Questioners were referred to Charles A. H. De Saulles, a brother of the dead man; but he could not be reached.

Dr. J. Sherman Wight of Long Island College Hospital and County Physician Guy F. Cleghorn made another long examination of Mrs. De Saulles, using the X-ray, yesterday afternoon. Dr. Wight did not complete his diagnosis, but said that he found the patient suffering from "great exhaustion."

SPAIN FACES BIG STRIKE.

Railroad Men Break Off Negotiations with Company.

MADRID, Aug. 10.—After negotiations covering a long period between the railroad employers and employes, the men last night broke off relations with the company. A strike of the men is expected to begin at 8 o'clock tonight. The Government is taking all measures to maintain traffic.

The strike will affect the employes on many divisions of the Northern Railroad Company. Employes of other companies are threatening to take similar action, which seems likely to lead to a general railroad strike taking effect on Aug. 17.

The Government is striving to prevent a rupture and is taking measures to insure the delivery of mails, which will be accomplished by the use of numerous private automobiles.

PARIS, Aug. 10.—Madrid dispatches indicating that the differences between the Spanish Northern Railroad Company and its men in Spain become acute are viewed as threatening a situation of extreme gravity, taking into account the internal difficulties already existent.

In the effort to meet eventualities Premier Dato is expected, according to the advices, to put measures into effect for mobilizing the railroad men little by little, as circumstances demand, following the precedents set by ex-Premier Briand here and by the Italian Government in dealing with railroad strikes in recent years.

FAILS TO REACH PALESTINE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Professor Felix Frankfurter of Harvard, assistant to the Secretary of War, who went abroad recently as a member of a semi-official commission, having for its object the determination of the condition of the Jews of Palestine, has returned to Washington.

Professor Frankfurter, who has resumed his duties at the War Department, declined today to say anything about his journey abroad or why he had returned. Elsewhere it was learned that the members of the commission had not gone beyond France. While there they ascertained that fighting in Palestine made it impossible for them to go to that country, and conditions were such that it would have been futile if they had gone to Egypt, as they had contemplated, in the hope of gathering information.

Another member of the commission is Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey. Mr. Morgenthau is still abroad.

RUSH HOUR CROWDS IN TRAIN FIRE PANIC

MANY PENNED IN BY FLAMES

Two Persons Severely Injured—Traffic Suspended for More Than an Hour.

Thousands of homeward-bound passengers on the Third Avenue elevated were thrown into a panic at the rush hour last night by a fire which started under the platform of a car in a local train just above the Forty-second Street Station. Fourteen persons reported injuries, two or three of them burned and the others bruised in their frantic efforts to escape from the burning train. Only the efforts of the police reserves from the East Fifty-first Street Station, under Captain Duggan, prevented a more serious tumult which might have resulted in a far more extended casualty list.

Miss Edna Diffenbeck of 138 East 104th Street was taken to Flower Hospital suffering from burns, and Jeannette Isaacson of 1,926 Daly Avenue, the Bronx, went to the same hospital. Several of her ribs were broken. Twelve other persons were injured slightly, but were able to go to their homes. Of these Miss Gussie Stein of 163 Essex Street was slightly burned; the others suffered from bruises and cuts or from shock and hysteria.

It was a few minutes after 6 when the train, a northbound local, operated by Motorman George Morgan, pulled out of the Forty-second Street Station. It had hardly started when there was a flash of flame from the trucks under the third car, due to a short circuit. The flames rolled up and about the sides of the car; some one pulled the emergency brake and stopped the train, and then, amid the smoke and flames, a screaming crowd fought its way to the doors of the cars. Most of them were still abreast of the station platform, and exit was easy; but passengers in the front cars swarmed out on the narrow footway beside the track and tried to make their way to safety past the blaze. There most of the injuries occurred.

Meanwhile other trains, moving at short intervals along the crowded line, had been brought to a standstill behind the one that was on fire, and as passengers, staring from platforms and windows, saw the smoke ahead, they, too, began to crowd out and try to make their way to safety along the footpath. There was much excitement for many blocks along the line when the police pushed their way slowly through the throngs of fugitives rushing out through the station and gradually brought the crowds to quiet. Firemen extinguished the blaze after no great damage to the car, but it was 7 o'clock before traffic was resumed on the line.

WON'T RAISE RAIL FARES.

New York Central Withdraws Notice of Advance in This State.

The New York Central Railroad Company has withdrawn the passenger tariffs filed with the Public Service Commission on July 31, which showed marked increases in rates between New York City and other points in the State. A letter to the commission requesting permission to withdraw the tariffs stated that a similar request to withdraw like tariffs filed with the Commission for the Second District had been approved.

The action of the railroad follows the action of the commission on Aug. 7, when on motion of Commissioner Charles S. Hervey the tariffs were ordered suspended until Sept. 30. On Aug. 15 the commission will begin an investigation of the proposed increases.

Clark Howell of The Atlanta Constitution says: "I have devoted the last two evenings to reading 'The Master of the Hills.' I completed it last night, and am writing immediately to thank you for the wonderful work you have done in your charming portrayal of the old Southern civilization before the Civil War, and particularly to commend you for your splendid insight, and your admirable picturization of the life of the Georgia mountaineers—a civilization peculiar to itself and little understood even by our own people."

THE RESPONSE.

Not in any war in which the United States has ever been engaged has there been such a response to the call to arms as in this one. Those misguided folks who are still occasionally to be found talking about "apathy" and about the need for "arousing the people to a realization of the war" seem to owe their delusion to the lack of that hurrah-boys sort of atmosphere which they somehow regard as necessary. It is like those Presidential campaigns in which the people have quietly made up their minds from the first and in which the politicians lament the condition of "apathy" until a record-breaking vote on Election Day enlightens them.

In previous wars the atmosphere of hurrah and excitement was needed, perhaps, to stimulate a lagging interest and to conceal the sluggishness of the response. It has not been needed in this one. Without any fuss or noise 182,000 volunteers have enlisted in the regular army, bringing it up to 300,000 men. The National Guard, with 300,000 men, was drafted into the Federal service on Monday. The navy, for which men have been volunteering in the same noiseless fashion, has been raised to over 137,000 men, the Marine Corps to its authorized war strength of 30,000, and in the Naval Reserve and the National Naval Volunteers there are 45,000.

There are 800,000 men and more now bearing arms. The draft will add 687,000 more, bringing the number up to nearly 1,500,000, and their mobilization will take place from Sept. 1 to Sept. 5. It is only four months since this peaceful and unprepared nation was forced into the war. In that time it has floated and oversubscribed a war loan of $2,000,000,000. It is a record unsurpassed by any nation, a record which this nation never reached in any of its other wars.

AN AMERICAN QUALITY.

ELIHU ROOT might have declined the Russian mission, for excellent personal reasons. The journey to Petrograd was long and tedious, perhaps not altogether safe. Certainly it was a serious undertaking for a man past the age of threescore and ten. As he advanced beyond that age, CALEB CUSHING appeared to grow fonder of foreign travel and sojourning, of the tasks of diplomacy and public life, but he was an exception. The labor imposed upon the head of the Russian mission was bound to be severe and burdensome, even for a much younger man. Mr. ROOT might have felt, it might have been urged in his behalf, that he had done his full share of service to the State and the nation, that after a long life of arduous professional toil, crowned by performance of the even more exacting duties of high office, he was entitled to ask that this demand for new service be made upon some man who had less completely earned the right to repose and ease.

It was, too, a most difficult undertaking, in which full success was hardly to be expected. We may be sure that that very fact largely influenced Mr. ROOT's acceptance. The country felt that this was a task for its most distinguished statesman, that ELIHU ROOT was pre-eminently fitted to undertake it. The challenge of difficulty, of obstacle, of the untried, the unknown, the uncertain, was one very likely to prevail with a man like Mr. ROOT, to be decisive. But in accepting the mission he acted quite in the American way, he displayed the characteristic American quality of willingness to serve, of readiness for public service, at whatever personal sacrifice. It is the spirit that has prompted the enlistment within a few months of more than 180,000 men in the regular army, the spirit that prompts the hundreds of thousands of young men who will accept service under the selective draft. When there is work to be done, the American worker is ready.

These considerations will not be absent from the minds of Mr. ROOT's fellow-citizens as he returns to the city where his life has been spent, the city that is so proud of the many distinctions he has won. The value of his service in Russia, to Russia and to this country, cannot yet be measured. Undoubtedly it has been very great. There was no thought that he and his fellow-members of the Commission could within a few weeks mold Russian thought and action into American form, the Commission did not seek to do that. Its purpose was, first of all, to assure the Russian Government and the Russian people of our sincere friendship, of our sympathy with their endeavor to establish the rule of the people for the people where so lately an autocrat held sway, and of our hearty good wishes for their success. That in itself was a service to the Russians, it laid the foundation for relations of amity and mutual respect between the two nations. But Mr. ROOT did speak words of wise counsel to the Russians. Like Admiral GLENNON addressing the sailors of the Black Sea, he put before them thoughts to the expression of which they listened with interest and profit. Principles, views, aspirations which they had not heard expressed by their own leaders were presented to their minds by Mr. ROOT in an American way, in a different way because he came from another land where they had been the outgrowth of long experience. KERENSKY's influence, KERENSKY's authority, were undoubtedly strengthened by the visit of the American Commission, and it is upon the wisdom, the courage, and the leadership of that statesman that Russia now must depend for its deliverance from the perils which beset it while its liberties were yet so new.

Mr. ROOT and the members of the Commission have full confidence in the future of Russia. They make no concealment of the anxiety with which they view the Russian strayings from the straight path of security and order and wise moderation, but they feel that the heart of Russia is sound, that when it comes to a sober sense of what liberty means, of what restraints free peoples must impose upon themselves, if they would be sure of their freedom and happy in the enjoyment of it, when the path of duty and of security is revealed in a clear light, Russia will take its place among the great nations under government like our own, of laws, not of men, firmly established in order and in freedom. To these great ends in the shaping of Russia's destiny we may feel that Mr. ROOT and his associates on the Commission have much contributed.

FOR CAREFUL CONSIDERATION.

To run or not to run? That is the question to which Mr. Justice CROPSEY is going to give "careful consideration." He has ten days of consideration yet, if he choose to take them. The petitions begging him to be a candidate for Mayor in the Republican primaries were signed by 31,705 voters. Since these didn't have to take the trouble to be sworn before a notary, and since the facile yielding of the American right hand to petition signing, almost an automatic action, is only too well known, it is a little surprising that Mr. JACOB LIVINGSTON's industrious colporteurs didn't reap richer sheaves of names. They are not all Republican names, at that. Their geographical distribution is hidden as yet. We are not permitted to know how rigidly the message of the faithful was confined to Kings and Queens, how far Manhattan and the Bronx allowed themselves to share in the call.

Senator CALDER got 134,000 votes in Kings County last Fall. Numerically and mathematically, Justice CROPSEY's signers are scarcely impressive. Here is matter for careful consideration.

Then, Justice CROPSEY, if he decides to run, will not run on personal grounds. A man with thirteen years on the bench before him doesn't step off and court defeat without some other than a personal motive. What is to be the reason of the act of self-sacrifice to which the signers of the petitions beckon him? Is it for the greater good of the city that Tammany should have a better chance once more to rule and loot it? Is it for the greater good of the Republican Party of New York that a part of it should revive the policy of complicity or alliance with Tammany?

Pending the result of Justice CROPSEY's careful consideration, Tammany is as happy as a housebreaker who hears that the policeman will be off his beat on the night of his intended exploit. No more very respectable, highly delectable candidates. No more high moral camouflage. The Grand Worthy Guard of the Temple of Virtue in East Fourteenth Street is "optimistic." He wants a straight Tammany man nominated. No more paltering with respectability and decoration. If Justice CROPSEY will run, why, the Tiger isn't a harmless, necessary house cat, but the same old ravening, royal tax-eating Tiger from the Tigris.

THE MISSING 500,000.

In the installment of his forthcoming book printed yesterday in The Philadelphia Public Ledger, ex-Ambassador GERARD furnishes an interesting addition to the story of his most celebrated interview with Herr ZIMMERMANN. That was the interview, shortly after the sinking of the Lusitania, in which ZIMMERMANN alleged that the United States did not dare do anything against Germany because there were 500,000 German reservists in America who would rise in arms, to which GERARD made his well-remembered retort. Mr. GERARD now completes the account of that spicy conversation as follows:

> I also called his attention to the fact that no German-Americans making use of the American passports which they could easily obtain were sailing for Germany by way of Scandinavian countries, in order to enlist in the German Army. I told him if he could show me one person with an American passport who had come to fight in the German Army that I might more readily believe what he said about the Germans in America rising in revolution.

Perhaps ZIMMERMANN believed that the reason the 500,000 did not "come to fight in the German Army" was that they were waiting to start that revolution in the United States. If he did, it was another Kultured hope gone wrong.

FRIENDS OF GERMANY IN THE CAPITOL.

The People's Council gave a characteristic and an illuminating performance in Washington Thursday. By false representations, a member obtained from Senator CHAMBERLAIN, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, the use of its meeting room in the Capitol. Under pretense of holding an innocent conference of "a few citizens and members of Congress" the use of the room was obtained for a meeting of this German Peace Party, for such is the People's Council, one of the long succession of societies of German propaganda and anti-American purposes that have had their hour in the patient United States.

Thus by deception the place where the National Defense bill was made was turned into a shelter of sedition. The selective draft was denounced as "infamous" and "an organization for murder." One pacifist, whose genius has been transmitted to a son lately arrested for refusal to register, demanded the impeachment of Mr. WILSON. Congressmen were threatened with defeat at the polls if they refused to repeal the Selective Draft act. The sin and shame of sending Americans to "fight Europe's battles" were comminated thunderously. In short, the language of some of the speakers was such as invites violence in a crowd and the intervention of the police. Heard in the Capitol of a nation which is bending all its energies to a war of self-preservation, the insolence of these anti-patriots seems almost incredible.

Themselves of little importance, the names of some of them are familiar only by the evil, easy notoriety of their opposition to the will of the American people. It is well, however, that their desecration of the Capitol should focus public opinion upon the so-called People's Council. That represents the people as much as the Three Tailors of Tooley Street were "we, the people of England." It is a union of pacifists and Socialists to bring about a German peace and to retard or prevent the victory of democracy, humanity, and international law. While the German Chancellor talks of a "powerful peace" and sends telegrams capable of only a Pan-German meaning to Pan-German leagues crying for annexations, the People's Council repeats the old, stale, false patter of "no annexations." By its attempt to repeal the Selective Draft act, it is palpably seeking to weaken the military power of the United States and aid Germany.

If in either house of Congress there are men who will consent to further this German game, the country knows what to think of them, as it knows what to think of the People's Council. That in itself is nothing. It is simply a vehicle or a tool of the small but motley and noisy anti-American element, the American abettors of Germany. When our soldiers get into action in France, these persons will have to learn a little discretion. The voice of sedition, the voice of treason, will not then be heard tolerantly in the Capitol or anywhere else.

LABOR OPPOSING THE COMMON INTEREST.

The Council of National Defense announces the appointment of a Labor Adjustment Commission on the same day that the necessity for it is put beyond doubt by strikes against the public welfare, and even against the specific interests of labor. The proposal is to give Government contracts only to those employers and workers who will agree to abide by the Commission's findings upon the merits of differences about conditions of employment. It is mandatory that the Commission shall act in cases concerning 1,000 workers, and discretionary in smaller cases, whenever the intervention of the Department of Labor has failed to pacify the disputants.

The need for such action is shown by conditions at the cantonments. Strike orders were issued affecting hundreds of men, with possibility of affecting thousands. Inasmuch as there was a jurisdictional quarrel between unions, it is not possible that labor should be entirely in the right. From one point of view labor is in the wrong. The demand is that only unionists shall work for the Government, although the unions themselves disagree as to which sort of unionists are entitled to the work. The demand that private employers shall not employ any workers upon terms mutually agreeable is at least arguable or contentious, whatever may be the merits of the closed shop as covering the right of labor against the lawful rights of all. But the advancement of that principle as applicable to the Government, because contractors for Government work are the employers, cannot be admitted. President ROOSEVELT settled that issue in his peremptory manner. There are unionists at Washington in Government employ, but they are held in restraint in most of the departments, and do not monopolise Government jobs. The Brotherhood of Carpenters does not hesitate to say publicly that it intends to unionise every cantonment now building.

Such a strike, SAMUEL GOMPERS says, is contrary to the agreement between himself, for the federation, and Secretary BAKER that there should be no strikes during the war without opportunity for adjustment. But, as it happens, this strike was against a union which does not acknowledge the jurisdiction of the federation. The carpenters at work were disfellowshipped by the federation over a jurisdictional dispute as to whether these carpenters had an exclusive right to work on docks. The ironworkers then chartered the dock carpenters, and the federation revoked the charter of the ironworkers. These outcast unionists may be in the wrong. They are the cause of the demand, objectionable in principle, that only one sort of unionists shall work on cantonments. There is no quarrel over pay, for the non-federation unionists are getting $50 to $60 weekly for work which can be done by anybody who can drive a nail or use a saw. It is because the pickings are so rich that there is such rivalry for their exclusive possession. There will be small local sympathy with the carpenters' unions, for the reason that there is a court record of one of their factions having entered into an agreement with their employers to exclude all products of nonunion labor from use in New York. That is the unusual case of a combination of labor and capital for monopoly. Now the demand is for a monopoly of Government work, not for bettering the condition of labor.

This is not a time when there can be sympathy with any set of men excluding other men from work, on whatever ground. There is work for all, and there is urgency for Government work on behalf of all. When the demand is that the Government shall suspend the law which protects all workers impartially in their lawful occupations, patience fails and labor puts itself in the wrong. The disapprobation of this strike by the federation sufficiently qualifies the strikers and strengthens the federation's claim to act for reasonable organized labor. On the other hand, the refusal of federationists to work beside other workmen also claiming union standing raises an issue which cannot be settled by yielding the point in this particular case. That is the adjustment which was made yesterday. It will be an agreeable disappointment if this easiest way does not raise new difficulties.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Our Summers Easily Tolerable.

So strong was the impression made on the minds of most New Yorkers by the high temperature and high humidity of last week's first four days that a good many of them are talking quite sincerely of this Summer as having been marked by weather exceptionally hard to bear. Even such a day as yesterday, which stands far from alone in closely approaching seasonable perfection, will not do much toward removing this belief.

It is a peculiarity of human nature, at least in this part of the world—probably it is different in Kerguelen Island, Tierra del Fuego, Scotland, and other like regions—that good weather is taken as a matter of course and soon forgotten, while bad weather counts as a grievance to be long remembered. Great storms and "Big Winds" even get recorded in the encyclopedias, but there are few records anywhere of the longest stretch of weeks in which matters meteorological were in exact accord with the prevailing taste in any given locality. To complain of this would be useless, but it is unfortunate for the reputation of New York City, among other places, as a place of Summer residence.

That we do have here, almost every year, one, and sometimes two or three, periods of more than tropic heat cannot be denied, but these afflictions rarely continue longer than the four days of the last one, and then comes a weak or so of reparative coolness, and so we get a good start for running through the next hot wave. Great numbers of people have a subconscious, if not a conscious, appreciation of these facts, for though New York is not usually listed among the American Summer resorts, it is in reality quite the most popular of them all, and no small fraction of its Summer visitors come from parts of the country claiming to have a better climate—and proving it so far as concerns thermometrical highs and lows.

This Summer the city seems to be crowded as never before, for it not only contains more than the usual number of strangers—if anybody is a stranger in New York—but large numbers of New Yorkers who are wont to spend a portion of the heated term elsewhere are now remaining, for one or another reason, in town. Both classes have their reward in the diversity of urban comforts, amusements, and opportunities, and it would be commendable if they were to admit oftener than they do that New York isn't at all a bad place in which to pass even the whole of a Summer.

Chances of Survival in Warfare.

For the widely current belief that the casualties in this war are greater than those of any previous conflict there is only one basis—the vastly larger number of men who are engaged in it. That does make the total death list sufficiently appalling, but it does not prove that the soldier now in arms has a smaller chance than soldiers ever did before to survive till peace returns. As a matter of fact, the statistics are all the other way, and, while it would be absurd to deny that any participant in this war may be killed or wounded, the ratio of those who escape both fates is probably larger than ever before. Certainly it is larger than it was in our civil war or in the Napoleonic wars.

The comparative figures were recently given in full by M. TARDIEU, the French Commissioner, and he was able to demonstrate not only that the armies of today lose fewer men in proportion to their sizes than was formerly the case, but that, as regards the forces fighting for the Allies, their losses are now less than at the beginning of the war and are steadily growing smaller. That is because the offensive is now everywhere in the hands of the Powers antagonistic to the Central Empires, while the latter are on the defensive, and it is the defense that suffers most from artillery fire and the offense that is most protected by it.

All this is easily available information, yet certain people are industriously promulgating the assertion that enrollment in our army is practically a condemnation to death and that the young American who sails for France might as well take a last farewell of his friends and relatives, for he will never see them, or they him, again. The motives for this sort of talk are chiefly two—the pro-German propagandists do it in the hope of delaying or minimizing additions to the number of Germany's armed enemies, and our own pacifists and conscientious objectors do it in order that their arguments may be echoed and supported by cowards and slackers of all kinds. One never hears from the members of either class that in the first six months of 1917 the French lost in killed and wounded only 3.6 per cent. of their force in the field, and never a word about the new sanitation that protects the soldier almost entirely from what formerly were perils more to be dreaded than bullets or shells.

Fighting at Home or Abroad.

Even parrots would tire in time of saying that, while they were willing to fight for their country at home, they would not take part in war abroad. Certain human beings, however, are more persistent, and never a day passes without at least a few people getting into the papers as making this wildly absurd statement. It comes occasionally even from the South, where, almost more than anywhere else, there should be a realizing sense of the advantage that lies in keeping war in the enemy's country and out of one's own.

But of course this silly protestation is made, not because of a special dislike for fighting abroad, or any special preference for doing it at home; it is the result of something between a hope and a belief that there never will be any need to fight here and that therefore it is quite safe to promise to be a militant patriot if it comes. No such promise deserves the slightest confidence, and those who utter it are little better than open enemies. They may not be exactly against their country, but obviously they are not for it, and between those two attitudes of mind there is no easily measurable difference.

The rightness and wrongness of war do not depend on where it is waged, but on its motives and objects. When the excellence of those is granted or can be proved, the man who really is willing to fight for his country's cause infinitely prefers, if he be of ordinary intelligence and he possibly can do so, to keep the war away from his home.

OBJECTOR'S CONSCIENCE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As you are publishing correspondence on the subject of the "Conscientious Objector," and as this letter is not a private one but intended for publication, I feel free to send you a copy of it for wider publicity.

BOYD VINCENT,
Bishop of Southern Ohio.
Cincinnati, Aug. 8, 1917.

[Inclosure.]
Cincinnati, July 30, 1917.

Rev. Frederick Lynch, D. D.,
Secretary Church Peace Union,
70 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Dear Dr. Lynch: I gladly give you my views as to the claims and treatment of the conscientious objector.

1. I take my stand, to start with, on the principles so clearly enunciated by the old Massachusetts militia law of 1758, viz.:

> It is the essential property of a free government to depend on no other soldiery but its own citizens for its defense. So in all such free governments every freeman and every freeholder should be a soldier. A freeman that is no soldier does as much as in him lies that he should be no longer free. It is base not to be allowed to bear arms in his own and his country's defense. It is perfidy in a free citizen not to be willing to bear arms.

2. All of which translated into modern American means this: That any man who has been willing, with a perfectly cheerful conscience, to sit down and enjoy the blessings of liberty, peace and prosperity in a free and reunited country—blessings which have been won for him by previous wars and the blood of others—has no ground for conscientious objection to a succeeding war necessary to preserve these very blessings for him and for the rest of mankind.

3. The conscientious objector has a right to his opinions on war in general and to his objections and even actual opposition to a particular war—just as much as the pro-Germans had—until the Government declares war. Then it is his duty just as conscientiously to obey the powers that be, as having been ordained of God, and to serve his country if called on, and so to put the responsibility of the objection raised by his individual conscience on the collective conscience of his fellow citizens as represented by the Government.

4. In case of actual war such as the present one, he is entitled to declare his objections and ask for exemption from military service, for other and non-combatant service, until the Government needs him in the field; and then he ought to be made to do his share of just such military service, like any other citizens, for he owes the same debt of gratitude and loyalty as they; and if he is not willing to acknowledge and pay this debt in the way the Government asks it of him, then he ought to get out of the country into some other country not so well worth fighting for.

Sincerely yours,
BOYD VINCENT.

For Soldiers Deafened 'n War.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The soldiers who are deafened in the war must be taught lip-reading, and they must go through a period of vocational readjustment at least, if not in many cases vocational re-education. It is a pressing need that these soldiers should be recognized as war cripples, and be given the same economic consideration that such men will have.

The New York League for the Hard-of-Hearing has offered a corps of teachers of lip-reading to the American Red Cross, and it is now making a study of the subject of war deafness from its educational, vocational, social, and economic aspects. Statistics upon the number of soldiers deafened during these three years of war are very few. The league will be most grateful for any such statistics which TIMES readers may have, or any suggestions as to how to procure such figures. Information, too, regarding the teaching of lip-reading to deafened soldiers and their vocational re-education will also be appreciated. The office of the league is at 37 West Thirty-ninth Street.

Plans are under way in several cities for dealing with deafened soldiers, but such plans will not meet with the encouragement which is their due until the hard-of-hearing man receives his quota of serious attention.

GERMANY IN AFRICA.

Why the Powers Might Hesitate to Give Back the Colonies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now and then some one suggests that the influence of the United States should be used to secure the return to Germany of her African colonies when the war is over. Just before the war began Henry Holt & Co. brought out an American edition of a very interesting book of travel, "A Wanderer's Trail," by A. Lofton Ridger, who shows himself an accurate and impartial observer, with no disposition either to praise or blame on purely national grounds. He made a trip through a long stretch of native African territory, in an effort to enlist native laborers for work in the mines. Let me quote a few sentences from his observations:

> The police force of the Bechuanaland Protectorate (British) consists of 180 men, all told. Of this number 136 are natives, the remaining few being Britishers. The annual cost in 1909-1910 was £37,832. . . . Glance for a moment at the adjoining colony of Damaraland. Up to the middle of the year 1905 over £12,500,000 had been expended on the colonization of that territory, practically every penny on the pacification of the natives, which has resulted chiefly in their extermination and expulsion from the country. There must be in Damaraland mere hundreds of troopers than there are single ones in Bechuanaland. Thousands of natives have been shot down, and such a steady exodus of Hereros has been going on during the last few years that the country is becoming almost denuded of its labor.

After criticising Japan and Portugal for copying Germany's mistake in confusing colonization with military occupation and expressing the opinion that they should have learned wisdom from Cromwell's bloody "victories" in Ireland, he adds that he is not denying the possible material success of this military method, but protesting against its indefensible spirit.

"I wonder if the Germans in Germany know," he says, "that a track of bones stretches from the copper mines of Otavu through the waterless deserts to Lake Ngami, the bones of those who preferred death in a desert to life in their own country under German rule. That is what militarism has done for Damaraland!"

And that is the kind of life to which some among us would have us use our influence at the close of this war to condemn the hapless natives who have temporarily been relieved from its grinding oppression, through the fortunes of war! Who has heard of any of these natives taking up arms in defense of their German overlords? If there is any mercy in the hearts of the allied nations now fighting against Germany that is not a mere sham, it will display itself first, when victory comes, not in the spreading of downy cushions for Germany to fall upon, but in doing the little that is possible to soften the hard couch of the outraged women, the orphaned children, the widows, the crippled workingmen, the beggared families, with which Germany's lawless and brutal ambition has filled Europe during the past three years. If the wisdom and justice of the Allies cannot find a better solution of the problem of the African colonies than to turn them over again to Germany, with the soil of all Europe soaked in the blood that tells of the cruel contempt of Prussian militarism for the rights and lives of others, the outlook for the future of mankind is hopeless indeed. To the proposal of an international responsibility for the African colonies wrested from Germany, France and England, the two countries most directly concerned, can well afford to listen. It may turn out to be the one happy thought so far uttered on the subject. But to turn them back again to Germany, even to a Germany rid of the Hohenzollern, would be wholly inadmissible.

Two Wars.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The United States is engaged in two wars: an external war with a world-mastering autocracy, as impersonated by Germany, and an internal war with the seditious wreckage of Europe, here come ashore, as impersonated by the socialistic revolutionary.

The first, the forces of supreme concentration, would weld the world into a steel-bound spoon to be used for the feeding of the Teutonic peoples by the Man Dominant, who has laid hold of them in the name of God; the second, the forces of extreme disintegration, would shatter the organized powers of society so that out of the fragmentation of its accumulated savings as represented by property they shall be free to satisfy themselves.

The organized concentration of social power made necessary to resist the one is resented by the other because it fortifies the citadel of representative government against both. Thus the autocrat, sword in hand, and the socialistic revolutionary, torch within reach, are joined for the destruction of the world's self-governing commonwealths, the one conspirator knitting loyalty within the abodes of democracy, the other smashing in their doors. Representative government must crush not one but both to be safe.

How long, O Sir, will my fellow-Americans continue to permit the enemy within to stab our cause to death?

I know of two corporations, each having the same capital invested and each making about $250,000 this year. A will pay over $100,000 in taxes; B about $18,000. Why? Because A made less than 6 per cent. during the years 1911, 1912, and 1913, while B made the same profit as it is making now. Thus A is penalized for the years of struggle, while B is rewarded. A took work at a loss to keep its organization together and provide a living for its employes; B was fortunate enough to be in a business which did not feel the depression.

Is this right? Should these two firms (which are typical of many) not at least pay equal taxes? Why should A's earnings be considered excess profits and B's normal profits? Would it not be equitable to tax all profits above a normal earning on a sliding scale, so that each per cent. contributes a gradually increasing amount to the revenue? In this way the two cases cited would each pay the same amount.

WOODLAND IN WARTIME.

Creeping down the hillside winds a long, white road;
Flashing in the Summer sun a bright bird flies;
With a world of wicked wisdom in his small, bright eyes.

Who could sing of war and strife on such a day?
That were rankest treason to New England hills;
Treason to the song-bird on that jasmine spray,

Yesterday I wept at all the mad world's pain,
And tomorrow other sorrows may impart,
But today I thrill to life and love again,

By STEPHEN LAUZANNE,
Editor of Le Matin and Member of the French Commission.

In the letter written by Kaiser Wilhelm to President Wilson on Aug. 10, 1914, we find the following passage:

> While I was preparing a note to H. M. the Czar next morning (July 31) to inform him that Vienna, London, and Berlin were agreed about the treatment of affairs I received the telephone messages from H. E. the Chancellor that, in the night before, the Czar had given the order to mobilise the whole of the Russian Army, which was, of course, also made against Germany, whereas up till then the southern armies had been mobilised against Austria.

It is not the first time that a similar assertion is made by the German rulers. In an official document issued from Berlin last year we read the following lines:

And in his maiden speech at the Reichstag Dr. Michaelis, the new Imperial Chancellor, declared that "the Russian mobilization was the real cause of the war," because that mobilization obliged Germany, for her safety, to take military precautions.

Unfortunately, all these assertions—letter of the Kaiser, official communiqués, speech of the Chancellor—are entirely untrue, and constitute one of the most audacious and impudent lies. The Germans, who are masters in the art of falsification, may falsify history and geography; but they will find it more difficult to falsify chronology and to prove that a fact which takes place at 10 o'clock in the morning is posterior to a fact which took place at 6 in the evening.

The truth, the undeniable truth which all historians will be obliged to admit, is that the German mobilization took place before the Russian mobilization, and this is undeniably proved by German documents.

On July 31, 1914, at noon, took place in Germany what is called the "Kriegsgefahrzustand"—that is, the official proclamation of danger of war. It is the first preliminary measure to the complete mobilization of the German forces. It took place at noon; it was placarded at noon all over Berlin, announced by special editions of the papers, and telegraphed through the empire. A few hours later, at 4 P. M., the German Kaiser telegraphed to King George of England, (the telegram has been published in the German White Book,) and this is what he says:

> Many thanks for your kind communication. * * * I have just heard from the Chancellor that intelligence has just reached him that Nicholas, this evening, has ordered the mobilization of his entire army and fleet. He has not even awaited the result of the mediation in which I am engaged, and he has left me completely without information. WILLIAM.

Now this is extremely clear. At noon the Kaiser proclaims the "Kriegsgefahrzustand" and at 4 P. M. he just hears that the Chancellor has just learned that the Czar has, in the evening, ordered the mobilization of the Russian Army. The "Kriegsgefahrzustand" is therefore undoubtedly anterior to the Russian mobilization, and undoubtedly the Kaiser lies when in his letter to President Wilson he writes:

> While I was preparing a note in the morning I received the telephone messages from the Chancellor that in the night before the Czar had given the order to mobilize the whole of the Russian Army.

He lies, because he has himself avowed in his telegram to King George that it was not in the morning, but in the evening, that the news had reached him through the Chancellor that Nicholas had just ordered the mobilization of his army. The Kaiser has indeed telegraphed too much in these tragic hours of 1914, and he has forgotten what he telegraphed, or he has not taken the trouble of comparing his telegrams. To King George he wires that the Russian mobilization has taken place in the evening of July 31. To President Wilson he writes that the Russian mobilization has taken place in the evening of July 30. Historians may compare and choose. But what is the value of the assertions of a man who says one thing in a telegram and another thing in another telegram?

But there is something more. In his telegram to King George the Kaiser complains that the Czar had left him "without information." This is another lie, because before mobilizing his army the ex-Czar sent four telegrams to the Kaiser of Germany. The last one was couched in the following terms:

> To H. M. the Kaiser of Germany:
> Thanks for your telegram, which is conciliatory and friendly, whereas the official message presented today by your Ambassador to my Minister was conveyed in a very different tone. I beg you to explain this divergency. It would be right to give over the Austro-Serbian problem to The Hague Tribunal. I trust in your wisdom and friendship. NICHOLAS.

Not only did the Kaiser not answer that telegram, but he suppressed it. And in the official German White Book, giving all the documents about the war, the last telegram of the Czar has disappeared. The reason given by the German officials for suppressing the telegram is the following: They say that it was not interesting!

History will decide if the proposal of the Czar to give over the whole Austro-Serbian problem to The Hague Tribunal was or was not interesting. But it is not necessary to wait for history to decide what degree of confidence must be placed in assertions of the German Kaiser.

THE SOCIALISTS' MISTAKE.

The United States did only its international duty, as one of the great world-family of nations, in going to the defense of the weaker nations of Belgium and France, struggling in the grasp of a brutal and criminal conqueror. We Americans would have been selfish cowards and shameful moral delinquents had we shirked this plain duty to humanity and civilization. I am proud of America that she has done this, more so than of any other act in her history, and hope she has established a world precedent, so that always hereafter, whenever any weaker nation is assaulted by a stronger one, every other nation claiming to be civilized, and no matter how far away or detached, will go to its assistance.

This war was declared by Germany at what seemed a favorable moment, with no justifiable excuse at all. There was no good capitalistic reason for it, for the merchants of Germany were already dominating and absorbing the world's trade, and their agents, goods and ships went freely everywhere, even to their rival, England. Germany had the freedom of the seas and rich colonial possessions in Africa, China and the Indian Ocean. Nobody was interfering with Germany, but she simply wanted to be the greatest country on earth and decided to be so by force of arms—as deliberate and cold-blooded a crime as any in the world's history and carried out with unexampled unscrupulousness and barbarity. I have the testimony of a German friend of mine, a man of the highest character, that relatives of his in the German army told him of this plan in 1913, and defended the right of Germany to expand by military attack on France. But I believe also that the war was partly instituted by the Kaiser to break and bleed out the rising power of socialism in Germany which threatened to emasculate his army.

And this peril has not passed. On the contrary, at the time the United States was appealed to by France and England, Germany had not only despised and flouted our rights and those of all neutrals, sunk our ships and killed our men, but she had smothered innocent Belgium, bled France white and had England by the throat through the U-boat menace. It was an S O S that came to us, a cry for help against a ravisher, a thief and a murderer, and the world's liberty and civilization's cause were at stake. Had we tamely obeyed Germany and kept out of this fray, in six months the Kaiser would have won his war and been the supreme world-lord of land and sea, and orders to us to submit would have come next and very soon. If the Kaiser once gets where he wants to be, no socialism at all in our use of the term will be permitted on earth. On the other hand, if America now enables the Allies to prevail, and Germany is defeated, or induced to overthrow her Kaiser and his autocracy, we shall see a wave of democracy and social revolution sweep the world and measures taken everywhere to insure international peace.

In my opinion, the Socialist Party has made a monumental mistake. Could it have rightly apprehended the situation and thrown the weight of its influence to the nation's support, as the party did in Belgium and France, for instance, it might have grown as never before, and been able to take advantage of every situation to point out the necessity and value of Socialist methods to meet the public needs and increase national efficiency in war and peace.

It should at least have left the question of the war to the individual conscience, as it did that of religion. But, instead, the party has placed itself squarely up against the Government, like a cow on a railroad track, helpless before the locomotive. It will not stop the war or conscription, but it will compel the Government to take up its challenge, and to more or less suppress its meetings, papers and literature. It will have less freedom of speech and it will split the party, compelling most of the American members to withdraw and form a new party, thus dividing the Socialist vote and influence. Already it has lost or is losing many of its most eloquent and influential authors and leaders. Was it wise or worth while? It will gain some new members, but these will be mostly anti-conscriptionists, with little interest in socialistic ideals, who will mostly drop out as the crisis passes.

Colonel Roosevelt's Services.

Theodore Roosevelt had gifts which, if availed of by our Government at this time, would be of the highest value to our country, to our allies, and to the cause for which we and they are contending. If he were sent to France for service under General Pershing, or as a member of a commission from this country to supervise the proper co-ordination of our efforts with those of our allies, his energetic co-operation would at once arouse the utmost confidence and enthusiasm among the leaders and forces of our allies, as well as of the people of this country, and would inspire all to exert greater efforts and aggressive energy toward forcing the war to an issue. His presence in the war zone and active assistance would convince the allied powers that the war will be waged on the part of the United States with determination and energy and with all needed resources. The effect of his strenuous participation would be to shorten the war and insure a righteous peace under such conditions and arrangements between nations as would make for permanent international peace.

Why is he not called upon to serve. Why is he, in a time like this, relegated to inactivity? Let the Government summon him for such service as he can best render to the country. The nation needs him in this hour of its greatest trial. The people want him and will not rest until they see him in a position where he can serve them best. Is it necessary to wait for a greater emergency before yielding? VOX POPULI.

May an old friend of Dr. Frissell be permitted to add his testimony to the value of Dr. Frissell's life and work and to express the sense of sorrow which will come to a great many friends as they learn of his death?

We were together in college at Yale more than forty years ago, and I have followed him in his work with the greatest interest and with knowledge of what he did.

It was a great undertaking for him to succeed General Armstrong, with his national reputation and his great company of supporters of Hampton Institute. No one knew this better than Dr. Frissell, but it was a call to service in a great place which he had to accept. His strength lay in his steadiness, wisdom, and persistence.

LEGAL STAFF QUITS FLEET CORPORATION

AMERICA TO CONTROL SHIPS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The legal staff of the Emergency Fleet Corporation of the United States Shipping Board, most of the members of which were selected by Major Gen. Goethals, who quit recently as General Manager of the corporation, has resigned in a body, and there was considerable agitation today when the news got out. There also was much speculation as to the cause of the action taken.

One report had it that the staff, which included a number of prominent lawyers, most of them from New York, who were working on a volunteer basis, was dissatisfied by the fact that General Goethals had practically been forced out. It is understood that they had been in full accord with his plans, and felt that they were not being carried out by the new régime under Rear Admiral Capps.

Another report was that the staff had said it had no work to do, and that contracts which had been put into shape had not been executed since the retirement of the General, either because the new régime wanted a lower price quoted for steel or for other reasons. The fact that the Goethals plan to build big Government-owned yards for the construction of fabricated steel ships, on which the lawyers had worked, was put on the shelf, at least temporarily, also may have had something to do with the trouble.

Legal Offices Closed.

The offices of the legal staff were closed today. Some of the members left town two or three days ago. At the offices of the Shipping Board and the Emergency Fleet Corporation it was stated there was nothing to indicate a lack of harmony or holding up of the program.

The attorneys who quit included Joseph P. Cotton, of Spooner & Cotton, 14 Wall Street, New York; George Rublee, who was named early in the Wilson Administration as a member of the Federal Trade Commission, and was beaten in the Senate by a clique headed by Senator Gallinger; Edward B. Burling of Chicago, Charles Howland of New York, and George H. Savage, employed in the office of Spooner & Cotton. Mr. Savage was the only one receiving more than the nominal $1 a year.

When the places of the attorneys are filled and one more member is named for the Shipping Board, the reorganization of the board and corporation will have been completed.

The Shipping Board, it was reported today, had about decided upon a program for commandeering American tonnage on the seas, which would keep the direction of all its shipping entirely in the hands of this Government. This, of course, would be accomplished in cooperation with the Allies on the most successful prosecution of the war against Germany. It would not mean, however, that the United States would enter into any agreement with the inter-allied chartering conference which would give any other nation, such as Great Britain, the upper hand in the determination of policy or freight rates.

These matters were discussed in some detail today at conferences with Thomas Royden of the British Mission and André Tardieu of the French Mission.

American Control of Fleet.

The Shipping Board, it is said, is negotiating along the lines that the United States should have power equal at least to that of any other nation, in the shipping program from this time, especially in view of the fact that, with wartime construction, this country in a reasonably short time will have a great merchant fleet on the seas.

A proposal under the terms of which the American Government would have become a member of the inter-allied chartering conference was said to have been dropped when it was discovered that American ships caught on the other side of the Atlantic without coal would have been subject to British regulations, which might force them into the British carrying trade. Before the United States entered the war a number of the American vessels which received coal in British ports were compelled to carry British cargoes.

It was said today that negotiations had reached a point where definite action in connection with the commandeering power might be exercised within a very short time.

An understanding as to rates probably will be reached within a few days and will be put into effect as soon as the Shipping Board requisitions American ships now on the seas. The arrangement will call for allied control of neutral tonnage and a freight scale for neutral ships no higher than that enforced by allied owners.

Rutgers Registrar Weds Secretly.

NEW BRUNSWICK, Aug. 10.—Luther H. Martin, Registrar of Rutgers College, today started on his wedding trip. He announced that he had been married secretly on May 8 to Miss Mariane Ricardo of Brooklyn. The wedding was not known even by his relatives.

COLONEL WANTS CURB ON GERMAN PRESS HERE

OYSTER BAY, L. I., Aug. 10.—Colonel Roosevelt today urged that steps be taken immediately to muzzle the German-American press in this country, his remarks being made during a discussion of his alleged conversation with Dr. Kuno Meyer last year, which the latter is giving in his own version in Germany.

"Kuno Meyer's statement is substantially correct, with this exception," said the Colonel. "I did not say that an Austrian-German victory would entitle them to compensation and indemnities, or to form a Middle Europe federation under German aegis.

"What I said was that if Germany was victorious she would undoubtedly exact the utmost limits of compensation and indemnity she could wring from all of her adversaries, including the United States, and I added that she would take the United States, whether we went to war or not. I also said that if the Germans won a complete victory they would not only establish a Middle Europe federation in which Austria-Hungary, as well as Turkey and Bulgaria would be vassal States, but also Holland and Poland. By the way, I never mentioned England in connection with Holland.

"Mr. Meyer and his wife called on me in May, 1916, just after I had spoken at Chicago on April 20 and at Detroit on May 19 and about two months after the publication of my book entitled, 'Fear God and Take Your Own Part.' What I said to him was what I said in those speeches so far as Germany and German-Americans and the duty of this Government is concerned.

"He is right in saying that I stated that if Germany were beaten and I had any say I should do all in my power to see that conditions were made such that Germany would not again be able to repeat what she has done.

"Dr. Meyer in his article, in which he commits the gross impropriety of detailing our confidential talk, shows that my forecast was entirely correct, that if Germany won she would with ruthless brutality seek to reduce her opponents, including ourselves, to utter helplessness, and to establish her dominion over the world.

"This is our war fought for our vital interests. Now let every man and woman in this country strain every nerve so that at the earliest possible moment every ounce of our giant strength will be prepared and used to gain victory.

"As one first step, I trust that Congress will pass a law refusing to allow any newspaper to be published in German or in the language of any other of our opponents while this war lasts. It is all very well to stop The Appeal to Reason and similar Socialist papers, but at the same time let us make the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung, the Illinois Staats-Zeitung and other Germans papers talk in a language ordinary Americans understand—so we shall all know just what they are saying and doing."

WEDDINGS NEXT WEEK.

BRITISH TAXES QUADRUPLED

They Now Amount to $61 Per Capita of Population.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—Lord Robert Cecil, Minister of Blockade, in a talk with The Associated Press today on "Great Britain's War Expenditure," said:

"In the period from April 1, 1914, to Aug. 4, 1917, the British Government's total expenditure has been $27,878,000,000. Of this total $5,223,000,000 has been advanced to our allies.

"Taxation per head in Great Britain has increased from less than $16 a year before the war to $61 yearly at present. Of this average $61, while every man, woman and child pays annually to the Government, $50 is collected by direct taxation, namely, income tax, excess profits tax, stamp tax, and death duties or inheritance tax. The other $11 comes from indirect taxation, namely, custom or excise. We are now raising $514,000,000 yearly in direct examination."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 10.—After a stormy session of Congress on Thursday, General Castenada, a Congressman, and Colonel Otero exchanged cards for a duel, which took place this afternoon. The affair resulted in the death of both Congressmen.

CAMP AGAIN TODAY IN VAN COURTLANDT

Seventy-first and Twenty-third Regiments Ordered There from Up State.

TO MOVE SOUTH SOON

Marine Corps Is Filled and General Barnett Orders All the Recruiting Stations Closed.

As an indication that the National Guard of New York will move South possibly within a week, the Eastern Department at Governors Island issued an order yesterday directing the Seventy-first and Twenty-third Regiments to concentrate today at Van Cortlandt Park. Both regiments have been doing guard duty up-State. With their arrival in New York today, these regiments will again transform Van Cortlandt Park into a big military camp, as it was prior to the departure of the troops for the Mexican border. Guard officers at division headquarters, however, felt that the stay in New York would last no more than a week, before the whole division would be ordered to move to Spartanburg.

The Seventy-first Regiment until yesterday was stretched over a territory of more than 700 miles, up-State, operating in battalion formation. With the issuance of the concentration orders from Governors Island, the various squads were consolidated as companies, and in company formation moved to the three battalion bases from which they will entrain this morning for Harmon and thence to Yonkers. From Yonkers they will march to Van Cortlandt Park.

The Twenty-third Regiment has been doing guard duty in the Catskills. While the Twenty-third and the Seventy-first are concentrating at Van Cortlandt Park, the Third Infantry at Buffalo will mobilize in Pelham Bay Park, in the Bronx. By bringing the guard organizations together, the War Department will be able to move the division almost en masse to Spartanburg immediately after the National Guard parade takes place.

Although not included in the concentration orders, other sections of the guard were also on the move or preparing to move yesterday. The Third Battalion of the Forty-seventh Regiment, under Major Walter E. Corwin, consisting of Companies I, K, L, and M left the armory in Brooklyn yesterday and entrained at Jersey City for Philadelphia. Col. Ernest E. Jannicky and his staff, together with the headquarters supply company and the First Battalion, will leave today for Richmond.

Division headquarters of the National Guard also heard unofficially from Washington yesterday that when the New York State troops move to Spartanburg, there will be a complete reorganization of the units of the divisions. Instead of each regiment having a 2,000 men, the strength of a regiment will be about 3,700. Similar orders have been issued to the guards of other States.

The regular army is making a special effort to fill quotas in National Guard regiments which have not yet reached their war strength. Some enlistments were recorded for the artillery branch of the regular army, this branch having been thrown open to volunteers again in order to fill vacancies which have recently occurred by drafting of men from the artillery into other departments of service. Recruiting for the marines was suddenly brought to a halt when Lieutenant Gardner of Marine Recruiting Headquarters received from Major Gen. Barnett a telegram ordering that all marine recruiting stations be closed from today noon. The telegram read in part as follows:

> At noon, Aug. 11, close all Marine Corps recruiting stations and allow men well-earned rest. Marine Corps enlisted to full strength. All reports from recruiting depots and by personal inspection at Paris Island and Philadelphia convince me that the Marine Corps ranks have been filled with a class of men that in physique, education, and spirit compare favorably with any aggregation of young men in the nation.
> One year ago the Marine Corps consisted of 346 officers and 10,000 men. Today it consists of 1,075 officers and 32,000 men. The corps has been more than trebled during the year, over 700 officers and 22,000 men having been added to it.
> I desire that you extend to every individual in your district my heartfelt thanks and appreciation for the splendid work done by the recruiting service and for the results obtained. Please extend my thanks and appreciation also to the gentlemen of the press and to those patriotic associations and individuals who have so notably contributed to the success of the Marine Corps' recruiting campaign. Reopen all recruiting stations at noon Aug. 22 and accept only a limited number of applicants, maintaining the highest standard."

Jan. 1, 1917	11,733
Today	30,000

The full enlisted strength fixed by act of Congress, May 22, authorized the increase of the corps from 17,400.

ACTORS WIN CONCESSIONS.

United Managers and Equity Association Come to Agreement.

At a meeting of the United Managers Protective Association held yesterday in the organization's offices in the New York Theatre building the contract prepared by committees representing the association and the Actors' Equity Association was ratified. This is the mutual, equitable, uniform contract which the Actors' Equity Association has been working to have adopted ever since its organization several years ago.

The contract was framed by committees from the two organizations at a series of conferences stretching over the last two months. Its terms embrace the important points for which the cators have contended. It contains a clause necessitating the giving of two weeks' notice before discharge or withdrawal from a cast. Half pay at Christmas and Easter holidays, a traditional prerogative of the manager, is done away with, and players will receive full salaries whenever employed. The maximum time a player may be called upon to rehearse without pay is four weeks for dramatic attractions and six for musical shows. A joker included in many old forms allowing the manager to dismiss a player arbitrarily on the ground of not giving satisfaction, a privilege that sometimes resulted in sudden discharge after weeks of service, is eliminated. There are many other minor points, such as the period a manager may hold an actor without providing employment, covered in the contract, but these are the principal ones.

The contract drawn up by the Actors' Equity Association has been used by a number of managers for some time, but the action of the Managers' Association obligates the use of the new form by all members. In the event of disputes arising they will be settled by an arbitration board including members of both organizations.

Marc Klaw, President of the Managers' Association, after the body had taken action said:

"A great many contradictory things have been printed about this matter—a victory for one side or the other—but no such thing happened. There was no sense of conquest in anybody's mind. When the two committees originally met their conferences were marked by great patience and a sense of the mutuality of interests. A give-and-take policy was pursued all the way through, and we are as pleased as the Actors' Equity Association can possibly be over the agreeable outcome."

'MAYTIME' PLANS CHANGED.

New Operetta Will Open at the Shubert Instead of the Casino.

The torn-up condition of Broadway in the neighborhood of the Casino, due to the construction of the new subway, has determined the Shuberts to present "Maytime" at the theatre bearing their name instead of at the Broadway house next week. The date, too, has been changed, and the first local performance will take place Thursday instead of Monday night.

WILL CUT COTTON SPINNING.

Plan to Control British Trade Will Have a Serious Effect.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The Cotton Control Board's plan for the future conduct of the cotton trade has been accepted by the Board of Trade because of the present shortage in the supply.

It is estimated that the new scheme, which involves control of the cotton trade, will reduce spinning 40 per cent.

The plan will go into operation Sept. 3, when the number of spindles and looms spinning will be limited to 60 per cent. of the present output for Egypt ian and 70 per cent. for American cotton. After Oct. 1 only 60 per cent. will be permitted for both kinds.

Manufacturers who exceed this percentage will be liable to fines. Money raised in this way will be devoted to preventing losses that workers suffer from the fact that they have withdrawn a demand for an increase in wages.

In view of the fact that conditions relating to raw material are better than it had been supposed they would be, the plan is expected to remain in operation for only three months.

Captain Henry B. Dewey, nephew of the late Admiral Dewey, and several other officers of the Sixty-ninth Regiment will appear in a sketch entitled "A Day at the Barracks" next Monday night at the Jefferson Theatre in East Fourteenth Street. The soldiers have been commissioned actors to speed up recruiting for the army. They will present the sketch, which includes some military drills, at the Regent Tuesday night, and at the Hamilton the following evening. All three theatres are under the management of B. S. Moss, who is co-operating in the presentation of the playlet.

TARDY HOME RUN CONQUERS YANKS

Elmer Smith's Circuit Clout in Fourteenth Gives Victory to Indians by 8 to 7.

MARSANS BREAKS ANKLE

If ever a man had reason to entertain a feeling of deep hatred against another man, Bob Shawkey, the Yankee pitcher, is justified in having such dire thoughts against Elmer Smith of Cleveland. Smith smashed one of Shawkey's curves into the grand stand up at the Polo Grounds yesterday in the fourteenth inning of a see-saw, seething argument, broke up a 7 to 7 tie, and won the game for Cleveland by a score of 8 to 7. This is not the first time Smith has treated Shawkey this way. Twice last season when Bob was pitching Smith was injected into the games and broke them up with home runs just as he did yesterday.

The Indians are getting so that they frown on an ordinary one-base hit. Yesterday they got two home runs, two triples, and five two-baggers. Many of these extra-base smashes were due to the St. Vitus dance actions of the Yank outfielders. When they were not getting in each other's way they were getting in their own way.

The Yankees suffered a setback which was even more alarming than the losing of the fourteen-inning rumpus. Armando Marsans, the Cuban outfielder who was recently obtained from St. Louis for Lee Magee, broke his left leg at the ankle in the first inning while sliding into the plate. The Cuban will be helpless for a long time. Since coming here Marsans has been hitting the ball and filling up a big gap among the Yankee batsmen. This accident adds another to the Yankees' list, which within the last few seasons has been longer than any club has suffered in the history of the national diversion.

Just about the time that Manager Bill Donovan was consulting a lawyer for a writ of habeas corpus he got a wire from Ban Johnson telling him that he was released from custody. Bill therefore resumed managing the Yanks. Bill was a howling success at managing in the first inning, when the Yankees got six runs, which would ordinarily be enough to win a ball game. Then Cleveland began an uphill fight and eventually knocked Lefty Mogridge out of the box.

While Shawkey was pitching in the seventh, the Indians caught up and went to the front by a score of 7 to 6. Elmer Smith was sent into the game to bat against Shawkey in this chapter, and it was his sacrifice fly to Hendryx which sent Chapman over the plate with the count which shoved the Indians into the lead. Then the Yanks tied the score at 7 to 7 in the seventh, and Shawkey and Coveleskie had an airtight pitching battle until Smith threw a monkey wrench into the Yankee machinery with his homer in the fourteenth.

The Indians loaded up the bases in the first, but got only one run out of it. With one out, Chapman walked and Speaker bounded one over Baker's head. Marsans lost Roth's fly and the bases were loaded. While Peckinpaugh was throwing Harris out at first, Chapman scored.

The Yanks proceeded to hammer Klepfer all over the scenery in their half of the first, but the pitcher took a lot of punishment before he decided to depart. Hendryx got an infield hit and went to second on Evans's wild toss; Maisel rolled to Chapman, who made a lurid heave to Evans to get Hendryx, and all hands were safe. Peck's single to right scored Hendryx. Maisel and Peck turned in runs on Pipp's crack to centre. Pipp counted on Baker's double and Baker romped in when Marsans bounded a two-bagger off the right field wall. Gould then succeeded Klepfer.

High's sacrifice sent Marsans to third and the Cuban then scored his costly run on Walter's sacrifice fly to Roth. It was while sliding home to beat the throw that the Cuban broke his left leg.

Harris opened the fourth with a single and scored on Evans's double to right. In the fifth, with two out, Tris Speaker spanked a home run into the right field stand. Cleveland knocked Mogridge out of the game in the sixth. Harris smashed a double to centre and scored on Wambsganss's triple to centre. That was the end of Mogridge, and Shawkey entered the picture. After Evans went out at first, O'Neil lofted a sacrifice fly to Miller and Evans scored.

The Indians thumped Shawkey in the seventh and went into the lead. Graney banged a double to centre and went to third on Hendryx's limpid return of the ball. Chapman doubled to right, scoring Graney. Chapman went to third on Speaker's out and scored on Smith's short sacrifice fly to right. Hendryx's making a bad throw to the plate. The Yanks tied it up in the seventh when Hendryx walked, went to second on Maisel's sacrifice, and scored on Pipp's single to centre.

RED SOX TRIUMPH TWICE.

Boston Defeats Detroit in Double-Header.

BOSTON, Aug. 10.—Boston after losing every home game played against Detroit this season won both ends of a double header today, the first by 5 to 4 and the second 5 to 1.

In the first contest the Red Sox trailed until the ninth inning, when Boland walked three men. Hoblitzell then tripled and Hooper singled, four runs scoring.

Ruth drove the ball into centre field bleachers, the longest hit ever made on the grounds and the first time the feat has been accomplished.

GIANTS PROFIT BY ST. LOUIS' MISPLAYS

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 10.—The Cardinals beat themselves today. All the Giants had to do was lag along and wait for St. Louis misplays. The Cardinals made seven errors and as many more escaped official tabulation. Those usually reliable workmen, Hornsby and Jack Miller, were the chief offenders. The score was 7 to 4 in favor of New York.

The Giants are cleaning up on this trip. Twelve victories and four defeats speak for themselves. Today's triumph makes the St. Louis-New York record for the season eleven wins and three defeats for New York.

Packard fanned Walter Holke in the first with the bases filled. One down, the Giants filled them up on Herzog's hit, Baird's wild throw and Miller's fumble. Fletcher fouled out, Robertson rammed a hit through Miller, sending Herzog home. Holke then fanned.

The Cardinals counted twice in the same inning on two hits and two infield taps. Long's triple hopped off the left field bleacher fence. Betzel bounced one in front of the plate. Long scored and Bruno was on first before Benton got the ball. Miller got a real hit to left, Betzel reaching third. Zim removed Hornsby from the scene. Holke got Cruise's hopper, but Herzog took the throw on the bare hand and muffed it, Betzel scoring. Paulette hit into a double play.

Burns singled to left in the second inning and tallied on Herzog's triple to right centre. Zimmerman and Fletcher punched hits in the third. Long and Miller made a double-barreled error on Fletcher's hit and everybody scored. Cruise drove a hit by Herzog in the fourth and scored on Paulette's double to centre. The Cardinals then proceeded to pack the bags, but Benton retired Betzel.

Horstman relieved Packard in the third and did well until the seventh. In that inning Fletcher was hit by a pitched ball. Hornsby muffed Miller's throw, and Umpire Harrison missed a play at third. Wilhoit singled to left, scoring Fletcher and Robertson. Holke strolled home after Long caught Benton's fly.

Hornsby and Cruise hammered Benton in the eighth. Pep took third on Walton's third hit, and scored on Paulette's sacrifice fly to Kauff. Jack May, the San Antonio younster, signalized his début on the mound by striking out Kauff. He also fanned Holke in the ninth.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 10.—Cincinnati hammered Rudolph hard, Allen, who relieved him, was wild, and as a result the locals won today, 7 to 0.

DODGERS LOSE IN ELEVENTH

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—The Cubs and the Dodgers continued battling for fifth place today with all the gusto of pennant possibilities, eleven innings being run off before Harry Wolter tripled with Flack on first. This blow settled Brooklyn and gave the Bruins the game by a score of 5 to 4.

Claude Hendrix, who held the Robins to eight hits, was responsible for ending the contest in the eleventh, for it was his single that helped Flack to get on base.

Pfeffer's error gave the Cubs the lead in the third, when he walked Flack after disposing of Hendrix. Wolter singled, and Doyle's out moved the runners along. Merkle tapped toward Pfeffer, who let it roll through while Flack breezed home.

In the visitors' fourth inning Myers and Stengel opened with singles. Johnston sacrificed, and when Cutshaw slammed to Doyle, Myers was cut down at the plate. O'Rourke came through with a single, marking up Stengel and Cutshaw. The Cubs tied it up on Deal's Dilhoefer's single.

In the seventh Doyle broke down Hendrix's defense with an error after Cutshaw singled and O'Rourke forced him. Larry missed a slow hopper off Miller's club while O'Rourke went to third. Pfeffer hit to Deal, whose throw caught O'Rourke at the plate. Olson poked a single to centre, Miller counting from second.

The Dodgers raised the edge to two in the eighth on Stengel's triple and Johnston's sacrifice. In the home half Wolter and Doyle banged singles, Merkle sacrificed, and Williams bumped a single into right, both men scoring.

NEW YORK MEN WHO HAVE BEEN ENROLLED IN THE NATIONAL ARMY

THE LISTS HERE PUBLISHED INCLUDE ALL THE ENROLLMENTS OBTAINABLE LAST NIGHT FROM THE DISTRICT BOARDS IN SESSION IN MANHATTAN, THE BRONX, BROOKLYN, AND QUEENS.

Reports received yesterday from sixty-three Exemption Boards in the city showed that 5,015 men had been examined, and that 2,081 of them had been enrolled in the draft army.

Under the caption "Yesterday's Report" the results of the work in each district heard from are shown. Opposite the word "examined" in each case is the number of men who came before the board for physical examination. Opposite "excused" is the number of men who, because of public service automatically making them unavailable for the draft army, foreign birth, or physical disability, were rejected or excused by the examiners. Opposite "claiming exemption" is the number of men who were found physically and otherwise acceptable for military service but announced their intention of claiming exemption. Opposite "enrolled" is the number of men who were found physically fit and made no claim for exemption when examined and those enrolled as members of the draft army when their claims for exemption were denied or when they failed to respond to notices to appear for physical examination.

In the daily report from any district the number of "enrolled" may be larger than the number of "examined," because those whose claims for exemption have been denied and those who have been posted as failing to appear for examination are included among the "enrolled" on the day on which their enrollment is announced, although they have not come up for physical examination on that day.

It should be noted that many of those claiming exemption may be drafted into the army, their claims being denied, and that others not claiming exemption when declared physically acceptable may file claims for exemption within the period allowed them for this purpose.

YEAR'S DIRECT TAX TO BE $3,000,000,000

Senator Simmons, Explaining War Revenue Bill, Says Nation Is to Spend $10,000,000,000.

CORPORATIONS MUST PAY

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—In opening the debate in the Senate today on the War Revenue bill, with its proposed $3,006,970,000 levy of direct taxes, Senator Simmons, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, said the country must realize that this huge tax would cover only a little over one-fifth of the war expenditures of this year.

"The country is going to spend something like $10,000,000,000 this year," explained Senator Simmons. "We have sought to cover as much as we logically could through the War Revenue bill. We realized that we must not put too heavy a burden upon the people, for they must have increasingly large burdens to carry as the war goes on."

Senator Simmons spoke of the existing tax law producing approximately $1,313,000,000 of revenue, which, added to the $3,006,970,000 carried in the War Revenue bill, would make the direct tax this year aggregate approximately $3,000,000,000.

"We must be as moderate as we can in applying the direct tax," said Senator Simmons, "so that, as the war goes on, we may tap again and again the great reservoirs from which the money must come.

"The people have to pay for this war in direct taxes, as this bill provides, and in taking up the Government's bond issues; the lesser taxes are applied to the people, the greater ones to the corporations which are making big profits out of war industries. Upon those who have the most money, either through accumulated war profits or through other means, the Government must largely depend for taking up its bonds. That means that we must not put the burden too heavily upon business, and yet business must pay its share.

"In framing this tax bill the committee has tried to distribute the tax where it can most easily rest. We have endeavored to put nothing in this bill that will in any way work an injustice to business capital, for to do harm to that would only be to ultimately destroy the chief source of revenue that is to keep the war going."

Aims at Profit Takers.

During his talk Senator Simmons produced figures to prove the contention of the Finance Committee that the tax upon corporations as it now stands in the bill would produce much more than the original levy of the House of Representatives.

"The House corporation levy was based upon fallacy and falsehood," commented Senator Simmons.

The Senator produced figures compiled by J. P. Morgan & Co. showing that forty-eight corporations dealing in the manufacture and distribution of supplies to the Allies had accumulated war profits estimated at $659,858,490 in 1916. Under the Senate excess profit tax, he said, these corporations would have to pay $239,377,272, while under the House levy it would be $77,736,619.

Senator Simmons submitted the following estimates of the principal war profits taxpayers:

	Est. Excess Tax Under Tax Under
	Prop'd Bill. House Bill.	Senate Bill.
U. S. Steel	$207,945,000	$76,720,000	$21,686,000
Beth. Steel	53,715,000	28,045,000	7,124,000
Gen. Elec.	6,523,000	1,136,000	1,083,000

Am. Sm. & R.	20,000,000	5,402,000	1,228,000
"Big Four"	5,845,000	1,033,000	.....
E'winLoco.	1,324,000	203,000	75,283
Std.Oil,N.Y.	20,428,000	5,065,000	4,024,000
Corn Prod.	3,798,000	1,030,000	.....
U. S. Rub.	4,837,000	901,000	.....

"The necessity for increased revenue on account of the large deficiency estimates for the army presented by the Secretary of the Treasury after the bill was recommitted at my request, on account of the Smoot amendment to the Food Control bill.

"As a partial adjustment of an alleged and an apparent discrimination against partnerships, which discrimination was accentuated by the action of the committee in subjecting individuals to the war profits tax."

The proposed tax on corporations' undivided surplus, he declared, would "more nearly balance the relative conditions as between corporations, partnerships, and individuals with respect to income surtaxes." The House 5 per cent. gross sales taxes, he said, constituted "a very questionable method of raising revenue."

Tariff a Burden to Masses.

Regarding elimination of the House general 10 per cent. ad valorem tariff levy, Mr. Simmons said:

"While the Government would realize from these tariff levies $200,000,000, the domestic producers of this country would, as a result, collect out of the people an amount three or four times greater than the amount which it is estimated the Government will receive from the tax. In the face of these facts, the contention of some that the Senate amendments in these respects have increased the tax to be paid by the masses of the people is manifestly without foundation. On the other hand, it seems clear that by these amendments the Senate has relieved the people of the country of several hundred millions of dollars which they would under the House provisions have been compelled to pay, either to the Government or to private interests."

The reduced tobacco taxes, he said, would raise the same revenues as the House rates without burdening either producers or consumers. Liquor rates be added, were raised because the food control law's provisions stopping manufacture of whiskey made it advisable to find other revenue sources.

Mr. Simmons's statement regarding the publishers' tax was:

"Your committee decided to eliminate the House zone system, because it was made clear to them that it is a tax which would be not only burdensome but in a number of cases disastrous to many valuable publications. Representatives of practically all the great publications of the country appeared before the Committee against this tax. The tax substituted by your Committee is not a logical one, it must be confessed, but it was the best your Committee was able to devise in view of the present conditions of the publishing business."

COMMODITIES PRICES.

More fluctuation than for some time was shown by Dun's list of wholesale commodities prices this week, with the excess of advances over declines larger than that of last week. Eighty-six of the 334 listed items showed change, forty-seven of them being advances. Last week there were sixty-two revisions, of which thirty-nine were upward. There were no marked features, aside from higher prices on some foodstuffs, notably provisions and eggs.

Flour prices have established a new kind of record, in that they have not shown a change either way for two weeks in succession. In the Chicago provisions markets, on the other hand, there was more strength shown than for some time. Live hogs went down, but this was the only decline. Live sheep did not change. Live beef was higher, and prime lard, mess pork, and short ribs also went up. Hams and bacons were quoted higher here.

The dairy products also were more unsettled than usual, but most of the changes were upward. Especially noticeable was a further rise in eggs, which fancy nearbys went up 4 cents a dozen, and the best Western stock went up 2. There is now a margin of 15 cents a dozen in the best eggs between the current price and last year's corresponding figure. Choice was 1 cent under in the listed grades, while the butter prices also varied from last week's. The best grade went up three-fourths of a cent a pound, and is now about 10 cents higher than at this time in 1916. State dairy butter fell off slightly.

The features of the vegetables list were the rise in potatoes and a general shading off in the prices asked for beans. In the fresh fruits, apples were quoted lower, but in the dried ones no revisions were shown. Coffees show no changes, but in the teas higher prices were asked for fair Formosa and low Japan.

Mace, cloves, and Cochin ginger—all declines—contributed the spice changes. The raw sugars continued their advance, and with it the refined, this time went granulated. The advance in the last named was marked, a matter of 90 cents a hundred pounds in barrel lots. It is now $1.15 a hundred higher than at this time last year.

None of the grains advanced, but corn, oats, rye, malting barley, and prime timothy hay were "off." In the drugs, chemicals, dyestuffs, and oils, eleven of the twenty-one changes were upward. A drop in opium, in jobbing lots, to $23 a pound was a feature. Last year it cost $10.95 at this time.

Bessemer billets at Pittsburgh and open-hearth billets at Philadelphia were lower in the metals list, as was electrolytic copper. Lead and tin showed the only advances, but furnace and foundry coke, which is listed with the metals, also went up. In the leathers there were no price reductions, but an easier undertone was evident to close observers. The hides showed five declines in the ten varieties listed.

Hops, tallow, Brazilian crude rubber, raw silk, and spirits were all higher. Some wools were firmed up a little. In the paper list certain book and writing stock was a bit easier.

Openings of new lines of woolen and worsted goods brought out higher prices, but in the cottons the advances were confined largely to gray and brown goods. No declines were listed. Burlaps were very firm under the stimulating effect of small supplies and a complete lack of selling pressure.

POTASH BILL PASSES.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—The Senate today passed the Pittman bill, to encourage the development of the country's potash and other chemical resources through lease of Government lands at Searles Lake, San Bernardino County, Cal., and of other Government lands in the West. The measure will go to the House for action, and is expected to pass.

The acquisition of some 20,000,000 tons of chloride of potash from San Bernardino County is expected to accrue as a result of operations to be opened up by prospectors under Government grant or lease.

The bill authorizes the Government to permit prospecting for chlorides, sulphates, carbonates, borates, salicilates, and nitrates of potash for a period of not exceeding two years, the area to be embraced in the prospecting to be not over 2,500 acres of land "in reasonably compact form."

Leases may be issued to develop the lands running up to fifty years, subject, after that, to adjustment for longer periods by the Secretary of the Interior. The lessee must pay a royalty to the Government equal to 2 per cent. of the gross value of output at the point of shipment. Rental of not less than 25 cents per acre for the first year, not less than 50 cents for the second, third, fourth, and fifth years, and $1 for every succeeding year up to the expiration of the lease, is stipulated.

During the brief debate on the bill Senator Pittman explained that the development of the vast potash resources would be of immense value to the agriculture of the country. While the country depended on Germany before the war for its potash supply, Senator Pittman pointed out that there was ample deposit in the Government's own lands to meet all the country's demands.

Senator Shafroth of Colorado had read into the record an editorial in The New York Times of today calling attention to the importance of passing the Pittman bill.

"The editorial shows sufficient reason for Congress to pass the measure," said Senator Shafroth. "We must provide our own potash, and this bill enables us to work the Government lands which hold it."

DRY GOODS TRADE IMPROVES

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—Marshall Field & Co., in their weekly review of the dry goods trade, say:

"Current wholesale shipments of dry goods are running ahead of deliveries for the corresponding week last year. Road sales for immediate and future deliveries are well ahead of those for the same period a year ago. Customers have not attended the market in quite as large numbers as in the preceding year. Collections continue to be favorable."

BUSINESS NOTES.

A Ministerial order of recent date permits the exportation from France of raw and manufactured hair and transmission halting of all materials to the usual allied and American countries, according to a cable received by the Department of Commerce from the American Consul General at Paris.

Hillman & Co., 200 Fifth Avenue, will in the future sell the production of the Mallett Knitting Mill, Brooklyn, in addition to the other mills represented by them. The new line will be sold to the jobbing trade and the large retailers.

Friday Dullness Is Waning.

One of the interesting features of the retail dry goods business at the moment is the disappearance of the Friday dullness that so often is the bane of store owners. While much of the buying that is now being done on Friday is attributed to all or part day closing on Saturday, the question appears to be why this trading should be so much better now than it has been in former years, when early or all-day closing on Saturday also was the rule. What further adds to the wonder is that in most cases no more particular efforts are made to get customers into the store on Fridays than on other days. The increased prosperity of the public generally, together with the growth of the vogue for spending week-ends out of town, is thought to have something to do with the improvement reported.

Will Show New Kind of Handbag.

Something new in the way of women's handbags will be put on the market by a local manufacturing concern in time for delivery after Sept. 1. This bag, which is made on a patented, specially constructed frame, at first glance does not appear to differ from the ordinary one, but an examination of it discloses an outside compartment designed particularly for carrying change, handkerchiefs, and other articles that may be needed frequently. This compartment runs the full width of the bag and is about 3½ inches deep. It does away with the need of mixing change, bills, and a dozen and one other things in the main compartment. The bag and can be resorted when necessary without opening the latter. The new bag will be offered in all shapes and sizes up to the very largest and will retail at $3 to $15, according to size and material. It is to be made in various leathers, velvets, chiffon velvets, fancy brocades, and moires.

Gray Goods Prices Steady.

The slip in the cotton market yesterday did no damage to local gray goods prices, but it did have the effect of causing the advance to pause for a moment. Buyers were again after narrow print cloths, with the result that there was a firmer sentiment in relation to them, though actual increases were missing. In the wider goods, however, it seemed more inclined to go after 39-inch 68-72s than on Thursday, more than one considering them a good "buy" at 11¾ cents. In fact, there was a disposition on the part of some sellers not to trade in them under 12 cents. The fine cleaner goods there was business reported on 5.50 sheetings at 9 cents, though some buyers are balking at the extra quarter cent. For four-yard 56-60s 12¾ cents still can be done, though the "bulls" want 12¾ to 13 cents. Print cloths closed thus:

How Reciprocation Works.

A local business man, who was seeking a pair of outing shoes and having trouble in finding just what he wanted, was surprised yesterday as he was leaving one store to have its manager give him a card to another shop that was under entirely different ownership. The man in question wondered just why this was done and expressed his wonder. "There are several reasons for it," the manager said. "First, you go away from here feeling better toward us for trying to help you out instead of trying to force something on you that you did not want. This means you may come again. In addition, the manager of the other store reciprocates, though, often enough, neither of us gets the sale. But best of all, you will tell somebody what we do here, and that is the kind of publicity we like to get."

Fur Business Up to the Mark.

Even though last year put up a sales record in the fur trade, figures compiled for the last month and now available show that the present season is keeping up to the mark. The August sales held by retailers turned out very successfully and have developed quite a good business on fur sets and coats. The demand is of a comprehensive sort, taking in most varieties of skins. Beaver and nutria are especially strong, and quite a large inquiry has been received for skunk. The dealers feel that, in addition to the orders taken on sets and garments, there will be a considerable amount of the better class of fur trimmings sold.

Large Sales of Army Uniforms.

Some of the representative houses in the clothing trade are doing a nice business on army officers' uniforms. The models are attractively styled, with special features of tailoring that are not found in the common variety of such garments. One concern, for instance, has been complimented on a haircloth-lined collar that even in wet and stormy weather retains its shape. Ordinarily, the collar is lined with canvas, and when this becomes wet it crumples, presenting a very untidy appearance. The haircloth, on the other hand, keeps the collar band upright and smooth under all conditions.

Dyes Still Causing Trouble.

In spite of the progress reported in the manufacture of fast dyes in this country, retail stores are receiving complaints almost daily in regard to garments that have been injured or wholly ruined by colors that would not stand washing. A recent case is that of an expensive wash silk waist that was trimmed with hand-embroidered designs in colors. The color of the waist "stood up" all right under the laundering, but the hues of the embroidery yarns were so intermingled with it that the waist looked like a kind of modern Joseph's coat. In another case perspiration took the dye out of the lining of a piece of Summer fur and transferred it to the neck and waist of the wearer with generally disastrous results. Complaints of "fugitive" colors in children's garments are frequent.

Concerned Over High Prices.

When the clothier is questioned concerning trade prospects, the first thing he mentions nowadays is the high prices that have to be paid for woolens. The decision of a one-price house to mark up its prices $2 is regarded as very significant in the industry. The manufacturers feel that such action is indicative of the sentiment in the trade as a whole that prices should be raised rather than a constant substitution be kept up. Even when high prices are paid, however, there is not always the same value obtained. A clothier mentioned an instance yesterday where a flannel had been increased from $1.30 to $2.07, and the cloth at the higher price was not the equal of the lower priced material.

Large Shipments for Fur Sale.

It was announced yesterday by an officer of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation that the auction of the company to start on Oct. 15 will have an amount of goods equal to the March sale. As a rule, the Fall sale is generally the smallest offering of the three sales held during the year. Shipments have been made, therefore, in unusually larg quantities for this time of the year. The fur dealers do not expect to see any diminution in the domestic supply of furs as a result of the war, because trappers in this country are generally young boys below the draft age.

You Can't Please Everybody.

There is a certain salesman in this city who is inclined to believe the assertion that you can't please everybody. He sells for a concern that does business only with jobbers, but by continued hammering away he got his house to let him sell a certain big retailer who could buy in case lots and who would take as much in this way as an average jobber. All went merrily until the big retailer happened to mention the fact to a smaller one in a nearby town. Then the small man asked the big one to "fix it" for him. When it developed that the little man could only buy in pieces, instead of cases, the fireworks began and it took diplomacy enough to settle a good-sized war to convince the big retailer that his small friend did not come "within the law." In the process the big man's account came perilously close to being lost.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The public is still almost entirely out of the stock market and will probably remain so until prices follow a definite trend for a few days. In the meantime the professionals are trying to catch each change made in the situation by new developments at Washington, and as the news often conflicts with that of the previous day, the fluctuations in some of the industrials are extremely erratic. If the market does not go up on the expectation of long continued activity resulting from newly created war business, neither does it yield easily to occasional selling drives directed by big operators at the weak spots.

Yesterday's list was highly irregular, but with losses predominating at the close. The greatest weakness developed in Bethlehem Steel, General Motors, and some of the higher class rails. The downward movement in the latter class of securities was not explained by any of the recent news. Canadian Pacific, St. Paul, Rock Island, Delaware & Hudson, and Norfolk & Western all sold off easily on only moderate activity. St. Paul sold down at one time to 65¾, almost equaling its low record made in expectation of the recent divdend reduction. Some of the other railroad issues enjoyed small gains, with Southern Railway, the most active stock in this department, touching a new high for this movement. The weakness in Bethlehem was not surprising in view of the continued uncertainty in the matter of the price fixing policy. It is idle to speculate as to what effect on earnings the new program of Government control of prices will have until the Federal Trade Commission has brought in its report upon current costs, but it is the consensus of opinion that efforts will be made to arrive at a price which will insure the continued operation of all of the steel mills at their maximum capacity.

In this connection the monthly statement of unfilled tonnage reported by the United States Steel Corporation yesterday attracted not a little interest because of the showing of a decrease of 539,000 tons for the month. The total business on the books, as of July 30, was 10,844,000 tons, representing the third successive decrease from the maximum of 12,183,000 tons reported for April 30. A decrease in the unfilled tonnage at a time when requirements are greater than ever before is explained by the unwillingness of the corporation to accept new business pending determination of the Government's needs. In that respect the showing is misleading if regarded as an indicator of the current demand for mill output.

An immediate oversubscription was the market's response to the offering of $20,000,000 of Great Northern Railway short term notes. There is apparently no limit to the extent to which high-class short-term issues can be placed at this time, but bankers are wisely cautioning corporations to provide only for urgent needs. It is not regarded as good financing to issue short term securities to provide funds for permanent improvements when the future of the bond market is so uncertain. Call money was easier yesterday, most of the day's loans being made at 3½ per cent.

LONDON MARKET CHEERFUL.

Renewed Demand for British 4 1-2 Per Cent. War Loan Bonds.

LONDON, Aug. 10.—The stock market had a cheerful tone today, and bonds were well supported. The British 4½ per cent. war loan and also the French loan were in renewed demand, and Scandinavian issues recovered on buying for remittances to Scandinavia.

Peruvian bonds were in good demand and South American rails improved. Marconi stock rallied on a statement that the company is likely to receive full compensation during the suspension of its services. Oil shares were active leaders, silver mines finished strong, and rubbers were quietly firmer.

Money was in ample supply, and short-dated paper was in demand.

ISSUE BY LIGGETT & MYERS.

$7,376,040 of New Stock for Additional Working Capital.

The Liggett & Myers Tobacco Company has completed plans for a new stock issue, to be dated Oct. 1, and offered at par to stockholders of record Sept. 10, in the proportion of one share of the new stock for each five shares, either of preferred or common, now held by them. The new stock is to be 7 per cent. cumulative preferred, and the total amount of the issue is $7,376,040. The object of the new financing is to provide additional working capital.

The Liggett & Myers Company is one of the two largest tobacco manufacturing concerns in the United States, but at the time of the dissolution of the tobacco trust a few years ago, was compelled to start business for itself with practically no surplus, and has been doing a business conservatively estimated at $75,000,000 a year on a capital of $15,383,800 of 7 per cent. preferred and $21,496,400 of common stock, with $29,967,800 of bonds outstanding. Authority for the new issue of preferred stock was voted by the stockholders three years ago.

Funds for Smith Motor Company.

J. & W. Seligman & Co. have undertaken to finance the requirements of the Smith Motor Truck Company under an arrangement which calls for advancements up to $750,000 on the corporation's notes. It is understood that the notes bear 7 per cent. interest, and in addition the bankers receive a bonus in stock. The company, with a substantial amount of orders, has lacked adequate working capital, the new arrangement, it is understood, provides sufficient funds for the company's needs.

DECREASE IN STEEL ORDERS

The United States Steel Corporation's orders in hand on July 31 amounted to 10,844,164 tons, a decrease of 539,123 tons during the month. The falling off was in line with expectations in the trade, as it had been known that negotiations at Washington over prices were keeping many potential buyers away from the market. With the possibility of getting lower than current prices, consumers have been waiting.

The total of forward business at the end of the month was the smallest for any monthly period since Oct. 31, when the bookings aggregated 10,015,260 tons. Compared with the high record month, last April, the July orders represented a drop of 1,350,000 tons. In this table is presented the record of unfilled contracts in tons at the end of each of the last seven months, with comparisons:

$96,111,111.11 CHECK IN CLEARING HOUSE

Record Payment There Made by J. P. Morgan & Co. to Bank of Montreal.

DAY'S TOTAL $1,141,541,259

Transactions Including Exchanges and Balances Exceeded Former High Mark Made Sept. 2 Last.

Several new high records in banking were established yesterday as a result of the heavy payments made on Thursday for Treasury certificates of indebtedness and the $100,000,000 issue of Dominion of Canada notes. In the first place, the New York Clearing House reported total transactions of $1,141,541,259; secondly, the net balance of the day's clearings amounted to $127,736,879; thirdly, the Federal Reserve Bank had a net credit balance of $115,701,136, and fourthly, there passed through the Clearing House the largest check ever brought over in the exchanges.

Payments for the 3½ per cent. Treasury certificates of indebtedness made on Thursday amounted to approximately $175,000,000, this figure representing the total of allotments made to subscribers in this district by the Secretary of the $300,000,000 of certificates offered. The banks sent over to the Federal Reserve Bank their cashiers' checks, and the same were passed through the Clearing House yesterday. In accordance with the usual practice of the Government redistributing the proceeds of the sale of its securities, the Federal Reserve Bank, acting as fiscal agent for the Government, redeposited about $130,000,000 with the subscribing banks, the latter, of course, agreeing to pay 2 per cent. interest. Some of the banks deposited the Reserve Bank checks at the bank, but others passed them through the Clearing House, in consequence of which the volume of transactions was greatly swelled.

Yesterday's total clearings amounted to $1,013,804,380, a figure exceeded only once, namely, on Sept. 2 last, the day following the payments for a $250,000,000 British Government loan, when the exchanges totaled $1,038,926,000. The total transactions on that day (transactions indicating exchanges plus balances) were $1,112,282,205, a record which was beaten yesterday, when the total transactions reached a total of $1,141,541,259.

Yesterday's balance at the Clearing House of $127,736,879 is the largest since May 26, the day following the payment of an issue of Treasury certificates, the balance on that day amounting to $80,-669,114. The previous high record for balances was made on April 27, the figure being 410,630,752. The National Bank of Commerce's record credit balance of $115,701,136 yesterday compares with $52,061,642, the previous high figure, also established on May 26.

Although checks for considerably larger amounts have been drawn, the $96,111,111.11 drawn by J. P. Morgan & Co. in payment of the Canadian notes was the largest that ever passed through the Clearing House. When the United States Government made the initial advance of $200,000,000 to the British Government the Financial Secretary of Great Britain drew a check of that amount on the Federal Reserve Bank, but that piece of paper was presented for payment at the counter of the bank, and was not put through the Clearing House. In payment of the Canadian notes the Morgan firm on Thursday drew the $96,-111,111 check on the Liberty National Bank and to the order of the agency of the Bank of Montreal, for the credit of the United Kingdom of Finance and Treasury-General of Canada. The Bank of Montreal deposited the check in one bank and drew several checks against it, which in turn were deposited with several of the banks where the agency has an account.

The biggest check previously cleared was drawn by J. P. Morgan & Co. on the National Bank of Commerce on April 8, 1916, and it was over $72,000,000. It was in payment of a $75,000,000 Canadian Government loan, and was also drawn in favor of the agency of the Bank of Montreal. In June, 1915, Kuhn, Loeb & Co. drew a check of $62,000,000 on the National Bank of Commerce in payment of a Pennsylvania Railroad bond issue.

Yesterday's transactions at the Clearing House were put through with simplicity and with practically no shifting of actual currency by reason of the recent adoption of the plan by which member banks and several non-members settle their daily clearings by bookkeeping entries through the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, the Reserve Bank being a special member of the Clearing House. The amount of cash that had to be brought to the Clearing House by debtors and carried away by creditors was very small indeed. Under the old sytem it would have been necessary for the banks to send messengers with $127,-736,879, and messengers of other banks would have carried that amount away.

A number of local banks have sold several million dollars' worth of Treasury certificates to Scandinavian banks which maintain large balances here. The certificates appeal to these institutions as short term investments, especially in view of the fact that they are readily salable and that the interest rate is 3½ per cent. By reducing the cash surplus of Scandinavian banks held here, dollar exchange in their home markets is improved. Any move that helps dollar exchange is regarded as important by reason of the fact that dollars are at a discount in neutral countries. By investing in the certificates the foreign banks are getting 3½ per cent. on their money as compared with 2 per cent. paid by banks on deposits.

BIG CHEMICAL MERGER.

National Carbon, Union Carbide, and Air Reduction Companies to Join.

Plans are being completed for the consolidation of the National Carbon Company, the Union Carbide Company, and the Air Reduction Company, according to information obtained yesterday in banking circles. A new company will be formed, whose stock will be exchanged for the shares of the three corporations. The new organization is expected to have authorized capital stock of $150,000,000.

The Union Carbide Company has outstanding $20,966,600 stock, which, at the current market price of approximately 200 is worth close to $42,000,000. The National Carbon's outstanding capital consists of $9,965,000 common and $5,-600,000 preferred, with a current market value in the neighborhood of $18,000,000. The Air Reduction Company has 125,000 shares without par value, which at yesterday's quotation of 97 on the curb would be appraised at $12,125,000. The total for the three companies would be around $67,000,000.

The concerns make allied products. The Air Reduction Company was formed about a year ago to obtain nitrogen from the atmosphere by patented processes and also to manufacture equipment for welding metals. Details of the merger are expected to be announced in a few days.

LIBERTY BANK'S NEW ISSUE.

Its Capital Stock is Increased from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000.

The capital stock of the Liberty National Bank, it was announced yesterday, has been increased from $1,000,000 to $3,000,000, the details of the transaction having been approved by the Controller of the Currency. Interim certificates have been issued to stockholders.

According to the arrangement voted by the Directors, the old stockholders received the privilege of subscribing to two shares of the new stock at par for every share of old stock that they held. The surplus of the bank has been increased from $2,000,000 to $3,000,000, making the total capital and surplus $6,000,000.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

United States Steel common, with more than 28,000 shares as its turnover, and International Mercantile Marine preferred, with 5,500 shares, were the two most active stocks on the Consolidated Stock Exchange. The decrease in United States Steel unfilled orders appeared to a large extent to be discounted so far as the stock was concerned. General Motors was a soft spot in the list. The general afternoon tone of the market was somewhat inclined toward heaviness. Commission houses handled a broad business in odd lots.

THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10. — A severe cyclonic storm developed southeast of Nantucket early Friday morning and passed northeastward from Cape Cod during the day, skirting the eastern Coast of Maine, where a maximum wind velocity of 56 miles an hour from the northeast was recorded, and being located tonight about Sable Island. The barometer is low in Wyoming and a second depression appears over California.

There was a marked diminution of the number of thunder storms in the Gulf and South Atlantic States. Elsewhere generally fair weather prevailed, except on the Massachusetts Coast and in Maine, where heavy rain fell.

MANHATTAN FROWNS ON CROPSEY BOOM

Republican Leaders There, Says Chairman Koenig, Will Not Support Him.

JUSTICE REMAINS SILENT

The Mayoralty boom of Justice James C. Cropsey of Brooklyn received no encouragement yesterday from Manhattan Republicans. Not a single Republican leader, in that borough will support Justice Cropsey if he decides to run in the Republican primary against Mayor Mitchel, it was asserted by Samuel S. Koenig, Chairman of the Republican County Committee. Manhattan Republicans, he said, would remain loyal to Mayor Mitchel to a man, no matter who was put upon the Cropsey ticket.

"So far as I can learn," said Chairman Koenig, "there is not a single Republican district leader in New York County who favors the nomination of Justice Cropsey as against Mayor Mitchel. Every one of the five district leaders who hold positions in the office of the State Controller and who have been represented as favoring Mr. Cropsey's candidacy have assured me that they are for Mayor Mitchel's renomination."

The five leaders in question are Anthony Ludden, Thirteenth District; Albert J. Berwin, Fifteenth District; Richard M. Greenbank, Fifth District; Philip Samuels, Tenth District, and John J. Lyons, Thirty-first District. It was stated that Mr. Lyons, who holds the position of Transfer Tax Appraiser in the office of State Controller Eugene M. Travis, had permitted his name to appear on Cropsey petitions for the office of Sheriff. Admitting that such petitions might be in circulation, Mr. Lyons said he had given no authority for his name to appear.

"My attention had been called to designating petitions circulated with my name on them as a candidate for the nomination of Sheriff," said Mr. Lyons. "This has been done without my consent or knowledge and without my being consulted. I am for Mayor Mitchel's renomination, and always have been. No leader outside this county has the right to make up a county slate for the party here."

It was said that Jacob A. Livingston, Republican leader of Brooklyn and chief Cropsey boomer, was responsible for the circulation of the petitions, but this he denied. It was also denied on the part of State Controller Travis that he was using his influence to promote the Cropsey cause. Mr. Cropsey continued to remain as silent as ever regarding his political plans. He merely said he had no statement to make at this time.

Cropsey sleuths also continued their activities yesterday. It was said that the Cropsey adherents were urging Borough President Marcus M. Marks to repudiate the fusion ticket and go on the Cropsey ticket for Borough President or Controller. Herman W. Beyer, Second Deputy County Clerk and Republican leader of the Eleventh Manhattan District, intimated that he would be a candidate for County Clerk on the Cropsey ticket, but only if the fusionists nominated a Democrat.

County Clerk William F. Schneider, Chairman of the Democratic Fusion Committee, refused to take the Cropsey boom seriously. "Who cares who's nominated on either side?" he said. "The only thing that anybody is thinking about now is the draft."

The slatemakers suggested that Charles E. Gehring, one time Chairman of Hearst's Independence League and former Deputy County Clerk, might be drafted for Controller if a Cropsey ticket was put in the field. William B. Ellison, who was attacked by United States Marshal Thomas D. McCarthy at a meeting of the Democratic Fusion Committee on Thursday night, refused to answer Mr. McCarthy.

At a meeting of the Republican Club of the Thirteenth Assembly District a resolution was unanimously adopted indorsing the administration of Mayor Mitchel, and unanimously ratifying the action of the Fusion Committee of 250 in naming John Purroy Mitchel, William A. Prendergast, Robert Adamson and Marcus M. Marks. It also pledged the organization to support the ticket at the primaries. The organization designated Carroll H. Brewster as candidate for the Assembly and Maurice A. Burke as candidate for Alderman of the Fifteenth District.

Interest in the Tammany Mayoralty situation yesterday switched decidedly to Thomas W. Churchill, former President of the Board of Education. While Sheriff "Al" Smith continued to be the favorite among many Tammany leaders, it was pointed out that Mr. Churchill, more than any other candidate, was conversant with the school issue, and that he would be an aggressive campaigner. Mr. Churchill's speeches at meetings of the Board of Estimate, where he frequently heckled both Mayor Mitchel and Controller Prendergast, were cited as arguments for his ability on the stump. It was said at Tammany Hall that Mr. Churchill was under serious consideration by Charles F. Murphy and his advisers. It was said that, in view of the possibility of a third ticket headed by Justice Cropsey, Murphy's choice now lies between Sheriff Smith and Mr. Churchill.

The Committee on Nominations of the Democratic Fusion Committee held a final open session at its headquarters, 50 East Forty-second Street last night and listened to suggestions for candidates from a large number of speakers. Supporters of Mr. Churchill, Sheriff Smith, General DeWitt Hamilton, William R. Hearst and others were heard. Friends of Register Edward T. O'Laughlin of Brooklyn also urged him for the nomination for Controller. General Hamilton had six supporters and Mr. Churchill five. Those who spoke in favor of Mr. Churchill were Louis H. Pink, who was Secretary of the Committee of 107 that nominated Mayor Mitchel four years ago; Frank R. Galgano, on behalf of many Italians; Patrick J. O'Beirne, Rabbi Dr. Nathan Krass, Michael J. Healy, Jr., Maurice Hotchner, Isidore H. Lehman, and A. J. Novi, former Assistant District Attorney of Kings County. General Hamilton's supporters included Henry L. Redfield, ex-Assemblyman Thomas E. Wilmont, Joseph Dorf, representing the Real Estate and Business Men's Association, and John McGuire of Brooklyn. Those who spoke for Sheriff Smith included ex-Assemblyman Andrew W. Murray and Joseph H. Dahm. Several of the speakers insisted that the municipal ownership plank in the platform called for William R. Hearst as the logical candidate for Mayor. The committee will meet in executive session on Monday and will report to the full committee Tuesday evening.

MRS. HUMISTON WINS.

Court Stops Display Film Showing Her Cruger Case Activities.

The application by Mrs. Grace Humiston for an injunction restraining the Universal Film Manufacturing Company from using the news film, "Woman Lawyer Solves Ruth Cruger Mystery," including views of Mrs. Humiston at the scene of the crime, was granted yesterday by Supreme Court Justice Ordway, pending the trial of the action in which Mrs. Humiston asks $100,000 damages for the unauthorized use of her picture.

In his opinion Justice Ordway says that the Universal Animated Weekly, in which the pictures of Mrs. Humiston were used, is not entitled to the protection afforded a newspaper under the constitutional provisions for the liberty of the press, although the defendant's films are photographs of actual current events and are produced and distributed weekly as soon as possible after the occurrence of the events. The court pointed out that the United States Supreme Court heard recently a similar case in an action of the Mutual Film Corporation against the Industrial Commission of Ohio, in which case the Supreme Court said:

"It cannot be put out of view that the exhibition of moving pictures is a business, pure and simple, originated and conducted for profit, like other spectacles, not to be regarded, we think, as part of the press of the country or as organs of public opinion."

Justice Ordway concludes that Mrs. Humiston has the right to object to the unauthorized use of her pictures because she is not "the commander of an army, a visiting Ambassador, or even a public official, but a private citizen entitled to be protected in her right of privacy."

The court directed Mrs. Humiston to file a bond of $2,500 to protect the defendants in case they win the suit and recover damages because of the injunction.

NAMED TO PROTECT GIRLS.

Mayor Appoints Committee to Advise with Mrs. Humiston.

At the request of Police Commissioner Woods, Mayor Mitchel yesterday appointed a committee of men and women to advise in the work of finding missing girls and matters pertaining thereto. In a statement the Mayor said:

"This committee is appointed especially for the purpose of advising with Mrs. Humiston in her work as special investigator for the Police Department, but the Commissioner has asked that it also interest itself in the rest of the work of the department along these lines, and in anything that may help toward the welfare of young women in this city who may be without friends, without proper homes, or in trouble for any other reason."

STUDYING OUR METHODS.

Russian Mission Inspects Nebraska College of Agriculture.

LINCOLN, Aug. 10.—Members of the Russian mission to the United States here today inspected the Nebraska University College of Agriculture. Nickolas A. Borodin of the mission said:

"We are here to study your methods of agriculture, your dairy industry and your packing houses; so that we may go back to Russia and teach our people. We will take back with us some of your experts to teach the young men of our country, and we will take back also young Russians who have been studying these things since the arrival of the Russian mission in the United States."

The Russians came to Lincoln from Fremont, Neb., where they made arrangements for the purchase of tractors.

CROPSEY REOPENS BROOKLYN SALOONS

Declares Unconstitutional Law Under Which Places Near Munition Plants Were Closed.

CALLS ACTION ARBITRARY

Says Legislature Cannot Delegate Powers or Take Property Without Compensation.

The Newton law, designated as Chapter 521 of the Laws of 1917, passed by the State Legislature as a war measure, making possible to close liquor selling places about camps, barracks, munition plants, shipyards, and other places where Government work is being done, was declared unconstitutional yesterday by Justice Cropsey of the Supreme Court in Brooklyn. The law had been invoked by Mayor Mitchel to close thirty-six establishments in the vicinity of the E. W. Bliss Works and the plant of the Morse Dry Dock in South Brooklyn.

The decision of Justice Cropsey was handed down on an application for a writ of certiorari by Celler & Kraushaar, 51 Chambers Street, attorneys for Henry J. Doscher, who keeps a grocery store at 5,401 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, and holds a liquor license allowing the sale of liquor not to be consumed on the premises. The action, however, was really taken in behalf of the Long Island Family Liquor Dealers' Association, and the members of the organization whose places had been closed were advised to reopen at once and conduct business pending a decision of the Appellate Division in October.

Justice Cropsey reviews the case, discusses the law, and concludes: "As Chapter 521 of the Laws of 1917 seem clearly to be unconstitutional, the restraining order asked for is granted and the respondent is enjoined from enforcing his order pending the decision on the writ which is allowed."

The law which Justice Cropsey finds unconstitutional provides that the State Excise Commissioner, with the approval of the Governor, can, on the application of the Mayor of a town or city, close saloons in particular districts for public good and welfare. The law was invoked on July 25, when, at the request of Mayor Mitchel and with the approval of Governor Whitman, a dry zone was established in South Brooklyn. Certain boundaries were set by State Excise Commissioner Herbert S. Sisson, and agents of the Excise Department closed every saloon in the district, as well as three places operating under a second-class license, which permits the sale of liquor to be drunk on the consumption on the premises.

The region within which the sale of liquor was prohibited extends from Fifty-second Street to Sixty-second Street, and from Third Avenue to New York Bay. No attempt was made to close up saloons just beyond the boundaries. This is Chapter 521 of the Laws of 1917 which Justice Cropsey says is unconstitutional:

The Excise Commissioner, with the approval of the Governor, whenever in his opinion the public peace, health, safety and good order may require and on the application of the Mayor of a city or the Town Board of a town, may during the present war, suspend the privileges under a liquor tax certificate heretofore or hereafter issued and prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages for such period or periods and during such days and parts of days in such part of such city or town as he may deem proper in proximity to camps or barracks of State or Federal troops or of munition factories or plants or of places of manufacture or production of material used in the manufacture of munitions and order the closing of places within such limit in which the sale of such beverages has been heretofore or may be hereafter authorized by law. He may also prescribe that the sale of alcoholic beverages, if any, within such limits shall be exclusively to drunk upon the premises.

In his decision Judge Cropsey points out that the claim is made that the act takes property without due process of law, and that it takes it for a public use without making compensation.

"The question is an especially important one," he says. "It is important because of the desirability and the necessity of upholding, wherever possible, all war measures. On the other hand, it is of momentous importance to the relator because he has a large stock of liquors on hand which he bought on the assumption that he would have the right to sell them under his liquor tax certificate, which he procured long before the act in question became a law. Under the Excise Commissioner's order he is prohibited from selling this liquor. The order is virtually an absolute prohibition against a sale for—in effect the order prohibits him from selling it anywhere, for a sale cannot be made unless in quantities of five gallons or over without a license. All the relator's rights under his liquor tax certificate have been suspended, and he is in the same situation as though he never had a license. The effect upon the relator, as the papers show, would be to work a great injury and damage to his business, and thus to him.

"While in a very real sense individuals must in time of war yield to the Government, it is still true that the Government must proceed lawfully. No emergency justifies an act of lawlessness. So the question is clearly raised whether Chapter 521 is constitutional."

"Chapter 521 further conflicts with the Constitution, in that it attempts to delegate legislative power. The Legislature can no more delegate its power to repeal a law than it can to enact one and it must follow that it cannot delegate its power to suspend the operation of a law, as that, in effect, is a repeal. This act confers an arbitrary power upon the officials named to suspend the privileges under liquor tax certificates already issued or hereafter to be issued and to prohibit the sale of alcoholic beverages during the whole or a part of the duration of the present war. No rule or regulation is laid down for the guidance of the officials clothed with this power. There is no limitation even upon the exercise of the power. The power granted is absolute. There is nothing to insure any uniformity of action. The officials are left to act as they deem proper. In a word, they are to legislate. Such an act cannot be upheld. And a statute which makes an arbitrary classification or permits others to do so is invalid."

The act, he finds, does not apply to persons holding second-class licenses such as Doscher holds. For this reason, he says, that without taking up the question of the constitutionality of the act, Doscher's grocery store could not be closed.

"If the act," he continues, "applies to any other one than a person having the right to sell liquors to be drunk on the premises, it must apply as well to druggists as to grocers and others."

It is pointed out by the Justice that the statute does not provide for the giving of any notice, does not give a chance for a hearing, and does not comply with the provisions of the Constitution which provide that there must be a due process of law.

MORE PAY FOR SHOPMEN.

CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—An increase of from 11 to 15 per cent. in the wages of 18,000 employes in the shops was announced here today by the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fé Railroad. The advance goes into effect Sept. 1. It calls for an additional expenditure of about $2,500,000, and practically completes the circle of advances which the Santa Fé has been making at intervals for more than a year.

The raise was granted owing to the general tendency in that direction all over the country, due to the high cost of living, and in recognition of the faithfulness of the employes, particularly in responding to the need for increased energy, efficiency, and devotion because of the movement of war supplies, it was said at the Santa Fé office.

TEARS SUFFRAGE BANNER.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—A banner displayed at one of the White House gates by a Woman's Party suffrage picket, addressed to "Kaiser Wilson," was torn down today after an indignant crowd had jeered and hissed the suffragists for several minutes. The banner was carried by Miss Lucy Burns, who figured in several of the previous demonstrations in front of the White House. It was inscribed:

"Kaiser Wilson—Have you forgotten your sympathy with the poor Germans because they are not self-governed? Twenty million American women are not self-governed. Take the beam out of your own eye."

It immediately drew a crowd, which gave free voice to its indignation. There was no concerted attack on Miss Burns, but a Navy Department clerk tore the banner from the pole, shot out through the crowd and up Pennsylvania Avenue before anyone could touch him. He was not pursued.

10 NEW DIPHTHERIA CASES.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, Aug. 10.—Ten new cases of diphtheria were reported today by the Board of Health, making a total of 276 cases under treatment in Newport. Medical Dircetor M. F. Gates, U. S. N., in command of the Naval Hospital, has detiled three of his medical officers to co-operate with the Newport Board of Health. Drs. George W. McCoy and Joseph Bolton, of the U. S. Public Health Service, are inspecting about the city and farms on the island besides assisting in other work.

A few cases of diphtheria has been discovered in Tiverton, which was traced to ice cream, the cream coming from certain farms in Portsmouth, the seat of the present trouble. There are no new cases at Fort Adams, nor has there been any for four or five days. The few cases there are fast and fully recovering. The training station is still free from infection, with a rigid quarantine maintained.

Goldsmith Secretary Jewish Board.

In a dispatch from Washington several days ago, describing the activities of the Jewish Board for Welfare Work in the United States Army and Navy, it was said that Dr. Sidney E. Goldstein was Secretary of the board. That was an error. It has been stated by the board that its Secretary is Samuel A. Goldsmith, General Secretary of the Y. M. H. A. movement.

URGES MAXIMUM COAL PRICE

Clifford Thorne Asserts Peabody Agreement Has Proved a Failure.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 10.—Charges that bituminous coal dealers are exacting extortionate profits from consumers under the so-called Peabody agreement were made today before the Federal Trade Commission by Clifford Thorne, appearing in behalf of various public utilities and a national municipal organization. The Trade Commission gave the hearing in connection with its investigation of coal prices.

The entire Peabody agreement, entered into by the operators and Chairman Peabody of the defense council's coal committee, was declared by Mr. Thorne to be unfair to the consumer. Coal now being sold under it at from $2.75 to $4.50 a ton, he said, can be produced at slightly more than $1 a ton. As the best means of dealing with the situation he urged immediate abandonment of price-fixing negotiations with coal operators and the establishment under the Lever Food Control bill of a reasonable maximum price.

Operators, Mr. Thorne declared, are refusing to make contracts direct with consumers, and compelling them to contract with friendly jobbers that they may share in the extra 25 cents a ton profit allowed jobbers by the Peabody agreement.

CASTRO AT VERA CRUZ.

America to be "Very Weak" After War, Says Former Dictator.

VERA CRUZ, Aug. 10.—General Cipriano Castro, ex-President of Venezuela, arrived here today having come from Havana on a Spanish line steamship. The former Venezuelan dictator expressed great pleasure at being in Mexico and said he thought he could now "enjoy a life free from the surveillance of American secret service men." To the newspaper men here General Castro said:

"The United States after the war is over will have many accounts to settle with smaller nations. After this great war the United States will be very weak."

By

ALICE CHOLMONDELEY

The second edition is now ready
The third edition will be ready next week

"Alice Cholmondeley deserves our congratulations and hearty thanks. She has written a book which is absorbingly interesting, with much in it of beauty and even more of truth."—N. Y. Times.

CHRISTINE

"A book which is true in essentials—so real that one is tempted to doubt whether it is fiction at all—doubly welcome and doubly important. . . . It would be difficult indeed to find a book in which the state of mind of the German people is pictured so clearly, with so much understanding and convincing detail. . . . Intelligent, generous, sweet-natured, broad-minded, quick to see and to appreciate all that is beautiful either in nature or in art, rejoicing humbly over her own great gift, endowed with a keen sense of humor, Christine's is a thoroughly wholesome and lovable character. But charming as Christine's personality and her literary style both are, the main value of the book lies in its admirable and lucid analysis of the German mind."—New York Times.

CHRISTINE

A WARTIME NOVEL OF COURAGE, LOVE AND MYSTERY

"This 'Red Planet' is going to live. It is a splendid tour de force . . . worthy of a place alongside Locke's 'Beloved Vagabond'—just as romantic, just as tender . . . The one great charm of 'The Red Planet' is that once having started it you never put it down."—Brooklyn Daily Eagle.

BEHIND the sweat and the grime; the horror and the suffering of the world cataclysm — behind and above all this flames a great white light of sacrifice and idealism. And each man in the Allied ranks is touched in greater or less degree by this splendid spirit. The army has a soul and in this book it finds expression. It is undeniably the most remarkable volume which the great struggle has yet produced.
